The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The month of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground. The rainfall reported on any day is for 24 hours preceding 8 a.m. of that day.

6. (1) Every insolvency petition shall be in writing, and shall be made to the Court exercising jurisdiction under this Act in any local area in which the debtor ordinarily resides or carries on business or personally works for gain, or, if he has been arrested or confined in prison, where he is in custody. In the latter case he may be admitted as a petitioning creditor to the extent of the balance of the debt due to him after deducting the value so estimated in the same way as if he were an unsecured creditor.

(4) In addition to the publication required by sub-section (3), the Court shall give to the creditors such notice, whether by the ordinary forms of process or by registered letter or by public advertisement or proclamation, as subject to any rules which the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, make in this behalf, it may consider expedient.

(5) Where the debtor is not the petitioner, notice of the order under sub-section (1) shall be given to him or to his pleader in the manner prescribed for the service of process. [347.]

(6) All expenses incidental to the giving of notice under sub-sections (3) to (5) shall, in the first instance, be borne by, and be recoverable from, the petitioner as costs:

9. (1) Every debtor by or against whom an insolvency petition has been presented, shall, unless he is prevented by sickness or other sufficient cause or unless the Court thinks fit to dispense with his personal attendance, attend on the date specified in the notice referred to in section 8, and on any subsequent date to which the proceedings may be adjourned, and shall at all times submit to such examination and give such information as the Court may require.

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing provision, the debtor shall give such inventories of his property, and such lists of his creditors and debtors and of the debts due to and from them respectively, submit to such examination respect of his property or his creditors, attend at such times before the Court, officer of the Court or receiver, execute such instruments, and generally do all such acts and things in relation to his property and the distribution of the proceeds amongst his creditors, as may be reasonably required by the Court, officer of the Court or receiver, or as may be prescribed by rules made under this Act.

(3) The debtor shall, if adjudged an insolvent, aid, to the utmost of his power, in the realisation of his property and the distribution of the proceeds among his creditors.

(4) If a debtor wilfully fails—

(a) to perform the duties imposed on him by this section, or

(b) to deliver possession of any of his property which is divisible among his creditors under this Act and which is for the time being in his possession or under his control, he shall, on conviction by a Magistrate, be punishable with imprisonment for a term which may extend to six months, or with fine which may extend to one thousand rupees, or with both.

[Ct. 25.]

10. Where the Court is satisfied that the debtor, with intent to defeat or delay his creditors or to avoid any process of the Court,—

Seizure of property and arrest of debtor.

(a) has absconded or has departed from the local limits of the jurisdiction of the Court, or is about to abscond or to depart from such limits, or is remaining outside them, or

(b) has concealed, destroyed, transferred or removed from such limits, or is about to conceal, destroy, transfer or remove from such limits, any documents likely to be of use to his creditors in the course of the hearing, or any part of his property other than such particulars (not being his books of account) as are exempted by the Code of Civil Procedure from liability to attachment and sale in execution of a decree, the Court may, either of its own motion or on the application of any creditor, appoint an interim receiver of the property of the debtor or of any part thereof, and may order attachment by actual seizure of the whole or of any part of the property in the possession or under the control of the debtor, other than such particulars as aforesaid, and may also issue a warrant, with or without bail, for the arrest of the debtor, and direct either that he be detained in prison until the disposal of the petition, or that he be discharged on such terms as to security as may be reasonable and necessary.

11. (1) On the day specified in the notice referred to in section 8, or on any subsequent day to which the hearing may be adjourned, the Court shall examine the debtor in the presence of such creditors as attend in person or by pleader, and shall hear such creditors or their pleaders in opposition to the debtor's discharge.

(2) The Court may, if it thinks fit, call for, receive or grant time to the debtor or to any creditor to produce any evidence which appears to it to be necessary for the proper disposal of the petition.

(3) A memorandum of the substance of the examination of the debtor under sub-section (1) and of any oral evidence admitted under sub-section (2) shall be recorded in the manner provided by the Code of Civil Procedure in cases in which no appeal is allowed.

12. (1) Where, after the examination of the debtor and such further inquiry (if any) as may be made under section 11, sub-section (2), or at any earlier stage of the case, the Court is satisfied that there is no sufficient ground for proceeding with the petition, it shall dismiss the petition.

(2) Where a petition presented by a creditor is dismissed under sub-section (1) and the Court is satisfied that the petition was frivolous or vexatious, the Court may, on the application of the debtor, award against such creditor such amount, not exceeding one thousand rupees, as it deems a reasonable compensation to the debtor for the expense or injury occasioned to him by the petition and the proceedings thereon, and such amount may be realised as if it were a fine:

Provided that a Court competent to try a suit for compensation shall not award an amount exceeding the amount for which it might pass a decree in such a suit.

(3) An award under this section shall bar any suit for compensation in respect of such petition and the proceedings thereon.

13. (1) On the making of an order of adjudication the whole of the property of the insolvent, save in so far as it includes such particulars (not being his books of account) as are exempted by the Code of Civil Procedure from liability to attachment and sale in execution of a decree, shall thereupon vest in the Court or in a receiver as hereinafter provided and shall become divisible among the creditors. The insolvent, if in prison, shall be released, and thereafter, except as directed by this Act, no creditor to whom the insolvent is indebted in respect of any debt provable under this Act, shall have any remedy against the property or person of the insolvent in respect of the debt or shall commence any suit or other legal proceeding, unless with the leave of the Court and on such terms as the Court may impose:

Provided that this section shall not affect the power of any secured creditor to realise or otherwise deal with his security in the same manner as he would have been entitled to realise or deal with it if this section had not been passed.

(2) An order of adjudication shall relate back to, and take effect from, the date of the presentation of the petition on which it is made.

(3) Notice of an order of adjudication shall be given in the manner hereinbefore provided for notice under section 8.

14. (1) The Court may, at the time of the order of adjudication, or at any time afterwards, appoint a receiver for the property of the insolvent, and such property shall thereupon vest in such receiver.

(2) Where the Court appoints a receiver under this section, it may—

(a) remove the person in whose possession or custody any such property as aforesaid is, from the possession or custody thereof;

(b) by general or special order, fix the fee or commission on the rents and profits of such property to be paid in respect of the services of the receiver; and,

(c) by general or special order, fix the remuneration (if any) to be paid to the receiver out of such fee or commission:

Provided that, where the debtor is an agriculturist, the receiver shall be such officer as is prescribed by any rules which the Local Government may, by notification in the local official Gazette, make in this behalf, and shall, save as may be otherwise provided by such rules, be entitled to no fee, commission or other remuneration in respect of the administration of the estate.

(3) Where a receiver appointed under this section

(a) fails to submit his accounts at such periods and in such form as the Court directs, or

(b) fails to pay the balance due from him thereon as the Court directs, or

(c) occasions loss to the property by his wilful default or gross negligence, the Court may direct his property to be attached and sold, and may apply the proceeds to make good any balance found to be due from him or any loss so occasioned by him.

15. When a petition is presented by or Summary administration against a debtor, if the Court is satisfied by affidavit or otherwise that the property of the debtor is not likely to exceed in value one thousand rupees, the Court may make an order that the debtor's estate be administered in a summary manner, and thereupon the provisions of this Act shall be subject to the following modifications, namely:

(a) no appeal shall lie from any order of the Court except by leave of the Court,

(b) the estate shall where practicable be distributed in a single dividend,

(c) such other modifications may be made in the provisions of this Act as may be prescribed by rules made under this Act with the view of saving expense and simplifying procedure.

Provided that nothing in this section shall permit the modification of the provisions of this Act relating to the examination or discharge of the debtor.

16. (1) The receiver may, by leave of the Court, do all or any of the following things, namely: [Cf. 46 & 47; Powers exercisable by Court, do all or any of the following things, s. 52 receiver by leave of Court, the following things, s. 57.]

(a) carry on the business of the insolvent so far as may be necessary for the beneficial winding up of the same;

(b) institute, defend or continue any suit or other legal proceeding relating to the property of the insolvent;

(c) employ a pleader or other agent to take any proceedings or do any business which may be sanctioned by the Court;

(d) accept as the consideration for the sale of any property of the insolvent a sum of money payable at a future time subject to such stipulations as to security and otherwise as the Court thinks fit;

(e) mortgage or pledge any part of the property of the insolvent for the purpose of raising money for the payment of his debts;

(f) refer any dispute to arbitration, compromise all debts, claims and liabilities, whether present or future, certain or contingent, liquidated or unliquidated, subsisting or supposed to subsist between the insolvent and any person who may have incurred any liability to the insolvent, on the receipt of such sums, payable at such times, and generally on such terms, as may be agreed upon;

(g) make such compromise or other arrangement as may be thought expedient with creditors, or persons claiming to be creditors, in respect of any debts provable under this Act;

(h) make such compromise or other arrangement as may be thought expedient with respect to any claim arising out of, or incidental to, the property of the insolvent, made or capable of being made on the receiver by any person or by the receiver on any person;

(7) divide in its existing form amongst the creditors, according to its estimated value, any property which, from its peculiar nature or other special circumstances, cannot readily or advantageously be sold.

(2) The leave given for the purposes of this section shall not be a general leave to do all or any of the above-mentioned things, but shall only be leave to do the particular thing or things for which leave is sought in the specified case or cases.

17. If no receiver be appointed, the Court shall have all the rights of, and may exercise all the powers conferred on, a receiver under this Act.

18. (1) Demands in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract, promise or breach of trust shall not be provable under this Act.

(2) A person having notice of any act of insolvency available against the debtor shall not prove under the order for any debt or liability contracted by the debtor subsequently to the date of his so having notice.

(3) Save as otherwise provided by sub-sections (1) and (2), all debts and liabilities, present or future, certain or contingent, to which the debtor is subject when he is adjudged to be an insolvent or to which he may become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before the date of such adjudication, shall be deemed to be debts provable under this Act.

(4) An estimate shall be made by the Court or by the receiver of the value of any debt or liability provable as aforesaid, which by reason of its being subject to any contingency, or for any other reason, does not bear a certain value.

(5) Any person aggrieved by any estimate made by a receiver under sub-section (4) may appeal to the Court.

(6) Where, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is incapable of being fairly estimated, the Court may make an order to that effect, and thereupon the debt or liability shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be a debt not provable thereunder.

(7) Where, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is capable of being fairly estimated, the Court may direct the value to be assessed and may give all necessary directions for this purpose, and the amount of the value when assessed shall be deemed to be a debt provable under this Act.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, liability includes any compensation for work done, any obligation or possibility of an obligation to pay money or money's worth on the breach of any express or implied covenant, contract, agreement, or undertaking, whether the breach does or does not occur, or is or is not likely to occur or capable of occurring, before the discharge of the debtor ;

and generally it includes any express or implied engagement, agreement or undertaking to pay, or capable of resulting in the payment of, money or money's worth, whether the payment is, as respects amount, fixed or unliquidated ; as respects time, present or future, certain or dependent on any contingency or contingencies ; as to mode of valuation, capable of being ascertained by fixed rules or as matter of opinion.

19. (1) A debt may be proved under this Act by delivering, or sending by post in a registered letter, to the Court, or, where a receiver has been appointed and the Court has authorised him in this behalf, to the receiver, an affidavit verifying the debt.

(2) A creditor shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, bear the cost of proving his debt.

20. (1) Where a secured creditor realises his security, he may prove for the balance due to him, after deducting the net amount realised.

(2) Where a secured creditor surrenders his security to the Court or to the receiver for the general benefit of his creditors, he may prove for his whole debt.

(3) Where a secured creditor does not either realise or surrender his security, he shall, before being entitled to rank for a dividend, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to receive a dividend only in respect of the balance due to him after deducting the value so assessed.

(4) Where a security is so valued, the Court, or, with the leave of the Court, the receiver may at any time redeem it on payment to the creditor of the assessed value ; and where the Court or the receiver is dissatisfied with the value at which a security is assessed, it or he may require that the property comprised in any security so valued shall be offered for sale at such time, and on such terms and conditions, as may be agreed upon between the creditor and the Court or the receiver, or as, in default of such agreement, the Court may direct ; and where the sale is by public auction, the creditor, or the Court or the receiver on behalf of the estate, may bid or purchase :

Provided that the creditor may at any time, by notice in writing, require the Court or the receiver to elect whether it or he will or will not exercise its or his power of redeeming the security or requiring it to be realised ; and, where the Court or the receiver does not, within six months after receiving the notice, signify in writing to the creditor its or his election to exercise the power, it or he shall not be entitled to exercise it ; and the equity of redemption, or any other interest in the property comprised in the security which is vested in the Court or the receiver, shall vest in the creditor, and the amount of his debt shall be reduced by the amount at which the security has been valued.

(5) Where a creditor has so valued his security, he may at any time amend the valuation and proof on showing, to the satisfaction of the Court, or, with the leave of the Court, to the satisfaction of the receiver, that the valuation and proof were made in good faith on a mistaken estimate, or that the security has diminished or increased in value since its previous valuation; but the cost of every such amendment shall be borne by the creditor and upon such terms as the Court shall order, unless the receiver allows the amendment without application to the Court.

(6) Where a valuation has been amended in accordance with sub-section (5), the creditor shall forthwith repay any surplus dividend received by him in excess of that to which he would have been entitled on the amended valuation; or, as the case may be, shall be entitled to be paid, out of any money for the time being available for dividend, any dividend or share of a dividend which he may have failed to receive by reason of the inaccuracy of the original valuation, before that money is made applicable to the payment of any future dividend; but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before the date of the amendment.

(7) Where a creditor, after having valued his security, subsequently realises it, or where it is realised under sub-section (4), the net amount realised shall be substituted for the amount of any valuation previously made by the creditor and shall be treated in all respects as an amended valuation made by the creditor.

(8) Where a secured creditor does not comply with the provisions of this section, he shall be excluded from all share in any dividend.

(9) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (4), a creditor shall in no case receive more than sixteen annas in the rupee, and interest as hereinafter provided by this Act.

(10) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to relieve a receiver of the necessity for obtaining the leave of the Court in accordance with the provisions of section 16.

21. (1) On any debt or sum certain where-Interest. on interest is not reserved or agreed for,
and which is overdue when the debtor is adjudged an insolvent, and which is provable under this Act, the creditor may prove for interest at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum,—

(a) if the debt or sum is payable by virtue of a written instrument at a certain time, from the time when such debt or sum was payable to the date of such adjudication; or,

(b) if the debt or sum is payable otherwise, from the time when a demand in writing has been made giving the debtor notice that interest will be claimed from the date of the demand until the time of payment to the date of such adjudication.

& (2) Where a debt which has been proved under this Act, includes interest or any pecuniary consideration in lieu of interest, the interest or consideration shall, for the purposes of dividend, be calculated at a rate not exceeding six per centum per annum, without prejudice to the right of a creditor to receive out of the debtor's estate any higher rate of interest to which he may be entitled after all the debts proved have been paid in full.

22. A creditor may prove for a debt not pay- [Ct. 46 & able when the debtor 47 Vict., c. 52, committed an act of Sch. II, r. 21.]

payable presently, and may receive dividends equally with the other creditors, deducting therefrom only a rebate of interest at the rate of six per centum per annum computed from the declaration of a dividend to the time when the debt would have become payable, according to the terms on which it was contracted.

23. (1) Where the receiver thinks that [Ct. 161d, Disallowance and re- a proof has been impro- 27. 23 to 25.]
duction of claim to divi- perly admitted, the Court dend. may, on the application of the receiver and after notice to the creditor, after such inquiry (if any) as the Court thinks necessary, expunge the proof or reduce its amount.

(2) The Court may also, after such inquiry as aforesaid, expunge or reduce a proof upon the application of a creditor where no receiver has been appointed, or where the receiver declines to interfere in the matter, or, in the case of a composition or scheme, upon the application of the debtor.

24. (1) In the distribution of the property [Ct. 51 & of the insolvent there 52 Vict., c.
Distribution. shall be paid in priority 62, s. 1.]
to all other debts—

(a) all debts due to His Majesty or to any local authority;

(b) all salary or wages, not exceeding twenty rupees, of any clerk or servant in respect of services rendered to the insolvent during four months before the date of the presentation of a petition; and

(c) all wages, not exceeding ten rupees, whether payable for time or for piece-work, of any labourer or workman in respect of services rendered to the insolvent during two months before the date aforesaid.

(2) The debts specified in sub-section (1) shall rank equally between themselves, and shall be paid in full, unless the property of the insolvent is insufficient to meet them, in which case they shall abate in equal proportions between themselves.

(3) Subject to the retention of such sums as may be necessary for the costs of administration or otherwise, the debts specified in subsection (1) shall be discharged forthwith in so far as the property of the insolvent is sufficient to meet them.

applicable in the first instance in payment of his separate debts. Where there is a surplus of the separate property of the partners, it shall be dealt with as part of the partnership property; and, where there is a surplus of the partnership property, it shall be dealt with as part of the respective separate property in proportion to the rights and interests of each partner in the partnership property.

(5) Subject to the provisions of this Act, all debts proved under this Act shall be paid rateably according to the amounts of such debts respectively and without any preference.

(6) Where there is any surplus after payment of the foregoing debts, it shall be applied in payment of interest from the date on which the debtor is adjudged an insolvent at the rate of five per centum per annum on all debts proved under this Act.

25. (1) In any local area in which a declaration has been made under section 320 of the Code of Civil Procedure and is in force, no sale of immoveable property paying revenue to the Government or held or let for agricultural purposes shall be made by the Court or, where a receiver has been appointed, by the receiver; but, after realising the other property of the insolvent, the Court shall ascertain—

- (a) the amount required to satisfy the debts proved under this Act after deducting the moneys already received,
- (b) the immoveable property of the insolvent remaining unsold, and
- (c) the incumbrances (if any) existing thereon, and shall forward a statement to the Collector containing the particulars aforesaid; and thereupon the Collector shall proceed to raise the amount so required by the exercise of such of the powers conferred on him by sections 321 to 325 of the Code as he thinks fit, and subject to the provisions of those sections so far as they are applicable, and shall hold at the disposal of the Court all sums that may come to his hands by such exercise.

(2) Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect any provisions of any enactment for the time being in force prohibiting or restricting the execution of decrees or orders against immoveable property; and any such provisions shall be deemed to apply to an order of adjudication made under this Act as if it were such a decree or order.

26. (1) Subject to the provisions of sections 24 and 25, the Court or, where a receiver has been appointed, the receiver shall give effect to any composition or scheme of arrangement agreed upon between the debtor and the creditors representing a majority in value of the claims provable under this Act by those of the creditors who have appeared:

Provided that no injustice or injury appears to be inflicted by such composition or scheme on any of the parties concerned:

Provided also, that there is no reasonable ground for suspecting the composition or scheme to be fraudulent or collusive.

(2) Where any creditor objects to any composition or scheme to which effect is given or to be given under sub-section (1), the Court shall decide as to the reasonableness of the objection.

27. (1) Where execution of a decree has issued against the property of a debtor, no person shall be entitled to the benefit of the execution against the receiver except in respect of assets realized in the course of the execution by sale or otherwise before the date of the order of adjudication and before notice of the presentation of any insolvency petition by or against the debtor or of the commission of any available act of insolvency by the debtor has been given to the Court executing the decree.

(2) Nothing in this section shall affect the rights of a mortgagee or incumbrancer of property against which the decree is executed.

(3) A person who in good faith purchases the property of a debtor under a sale in execution shall in all cases acquire a good title to it against the receiver.

28. Where execution of a decree has issued against any property of a debtor which is saleable in execution and before the sale thereof notice is given to the Court executing the decree that an order of adjudication has been made against the debtor, the Court shall, on application, direct the property to be delivered to the receiver, but the costs of the execution shall be a charge on the property so delivered, and the receiver may sell the property or an adequate part thereof for the purpose of satisfying the charge.

29. (1) Any settlement of property not being a settlement made before marriage or made in favour of a purchaser or incumbrancer in good faith and for valuable consideration or a settlement made on or for the wife or children of the settlor of property which has accrued to the settlor after marriage in right of his wife shall, if the settlor is adjudicated insolvent within two years after the date of the settlement, be void against the receiver and may be annulled by the Court.

(2) For the purposes of this section "settlement" shall include any conveyance or transfer of property.

30. (1) Every conveyance or transfer of property or charge thereon made, every demand made, every obligation incurred and every judicial proceeding taken or suffered by any person unable to pay his debts as they become due from his own money in favour of any creditor, or any person in trust for any creditor, with a view of giving that creditor a preference over the other creditors, shall, if the person making, taking, paying or suffering the same is adjudged insolvent on a petition presented within three months after the date of making, taking, paying or suffering the same, be deemed fraudulent and void as against the receiver and may be annulled by the Court.

(2) This section shall not affect the rights of any person making title in good faith and for valuable consideration through or under the creditor of the insolvent.

31. Subject to the foregoing provisions of this Act with respect to the effect of insolvency on an execution and with respect to the avoidance of certain settlements and preferences, nothing in this Act shall invalidate in the case of an insolvency—

- (a) any payment of the insolvent to any of his creditors;
- (b) any payment or delivery to the insolvent;
- (c) any conveyance, transfer or assignment by the insolvent for valuable consideration; or
- (d) any contract, dealing or transaction by or with the insolvent for valuable consideration:

Provided that both the following conditions are complied with, namely:

- (i) the payment, delivery, transfer, conveyance, assignment, contract, dealing or transaction, as the case may be, takes place before the date of the order of adjudication; and
- (ii) the person (other than the insolvent) to, by or with whom the payment, delivery, transfer, conveyance, assignment, contract, dealing or transaction was made, executed or entered into, has not at the time of the payment, delivery, transfer, conveyance, assignment, contract, dealing or transaction, notice of any available act of insolvency committed by the insolvent before that time.

32. (1) In the calculation of dividends, the Court or, where a receiver has been appointed, the receiver shall make provision for—

- (a) debts provable under this Act and appearing from the insolvent's statements or otherwise, to be due to persons resident in places so distant that in the ordinary course of communication they have not had sufficient time to tender their proofs or to establish them, if disputed;
- (b) debts provable under this Act, the subject of claims not yet determined;
- (c) disputed proofs or claims; and
- (d) the expenses necessary for the administration of the estate or otherwise.

(2) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (1), all money in hand shall be distributed by the Court as dividends.

(3) Any creditor who has not proved his debt before the declaration of any dividend or dividends, shall be entitled to be paid, out of any money for the time being in the hands of the Court, or, where a receiver has been appointed, of the receiver, any dividend or dividends which he may have failed to receive before that money is applied to the payment of any future dividend or dividends; but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before his debt was proved by reason that he has not participated therein.

(4) No action for a dividend shall lie against the receiver; but, where the receiver refuses to pay any dividend, the Court may, if it thinks fit, order him to pay it, and also to pay out of his own money interest thereon for the time that it is withheld, and the costs of the application.

33. (1) The Court or, by leave of the Court, the receiver may appoint the insolvent himself to superintend the management of the property of the insolvent or of any part thereof, or to carry on the trade (if any) of the insolvent for the benefit of the creditors, and in any other respect to aid in administering the property in such manner and on such terms as the Court or, by leave of the Court, the receiver may direct.

(2) The Court or, by leave of the Court, the receiver may, from time to time, make such allowance as it or he may think just to the insolvent out of his property for the support of himself and his family, or in consideration of his services if he is engaged in winding up his estate; but any such allowance may, at any time, be reduced by the Court.

34. The insolvent shall be entitled to any surplus remaining after payment in full of his creditors, with interest as provided by this Act, and of the costs, charge and expenses of the proceedings taken thereunder.

35. (1) A debtor may, at any time after the order of adjudication, apply to the Court for an order of discharge: and the Court shall fix a day, notice whereof shall be given in the manner provided by section 8, sub-sections (3) and (4), for hearing such application, and any objections which may be made thereto.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this section, the Court may, after hearing the objections of any creditor or, where a receiver has been appointed, of the receiver,—

- (a) grant or refuse an absolute order of discharge; or
- (b) suspend the operation of the order for a specified time; or
- (c) grant an order of discharge subject to any conditions with respect to any earnings or income which may afterwards become due to the insolvent, or with respect to his after-acquired property.

(3) The Court shall refuse an order of discharge where the insolvent has committed an offence in relation to his insolvency, unless, for reasons to be recorded, it is satisfied that such refusal is not required in the interests of justice.

(4) On proof of any of the facts mentioned in sub-section (5), the Court shall—

- (a) refuse the discharge; or
- (b) suspend the discharge for a period of not less than two years; or
- (c) suspend the discharge until a dividend of not less than eight annas in the rupee has been paid to the creditors; or,

(d) where a receiver has been appointed, require the insolvent, as a condition of his discharge, to consent to an order for payment to such receiver of any balance or part of any balance of debts provable under this Act but not satisfied at the date of discharge, such balance or part of any balance to be paid out of the future earnings or after-acquired property of the insolvent in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Court may direct; and every such order shall be capable of execution as if it were a decree;

Provided that, if at any time after the expiration of two years from the date of an order made under this section, the insolvent satisfies the Court that there is no reasonable probability of his being in a position to comply with the terms of the order, the Court may modify the terms of the order, or of any substituted order, in such manner and upon such conditions as it thinks fit:

Provided, also, that no application for the execution of an order made in favour of a receiver under clause (d) shall be made except by leave of the Court, and that such leave shall not be given unless on proof that the insolvent has, since his discharge, acquired property or income available towards the payment of his debts.

(5) The facts referred to in sub-section (4) are the following, namely:

(a) that the insolvent's assets are not of a value equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities, unless he satisfies the Court that the fact that the assets are not of a value equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities has arisen from circumstances for which he cannot justly be held responsible;

(b) that the insolvent has omitted to keep such books of account as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him and as sufficiently disclose his business transactions and financial position within the three years immediately preceding his insolvency;

(c) that the insolvent has continued to trade after knowing himself to be insolvent;

(d) that the insolvent has contracted any debt provable under this Act without having at the time of contracting it any reasonable or probable ground of expectation (the burden of proving which shall lie on him) that he would be able to pay it;

(e) that the insolvent has failed to account satisfactorily for any loss of assets or for any deficiency of assets to meet his liabilities;

(f) that the insolvent has brought on, or contributed to, his insolvency by rash and hazardous speculations, or by unjustifiable extravagance in living, or by gambling, or by culpable neglect of his business affairs;

(g) that the insolvent has put any of his creditors to unnecessary expense by a frivolous or vexatious defence to any suit or other proceeding properly instituted against him;

(h) that the insolvent has, within three months preceding the date of the order under section 8, sub-section (1), incurred unjustifiable expense by instituting a frivolous or vexatious suit or other proceeding;

(i) that the insolvent has, within the period referred to in clause (h), when unable to pay his debts as they became due, given an undue preference to any of his creditors;

(j) that the insolvent has, within the period referred to in clause (h), incurred liabilities with a view to making his assets equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities;

(k) that the insolvent has on any previous occasion been declared an insolvent, or made a composition or arrangement with his creditors;

(l) that the insolvent has concealed or removed his property or any part thereof, or has been guilty of any other fraud or fraudulent breach of trust.

(6) For the purposes of this section, the report of the receiver shall be deemed to be evidence; and the Court may presume the correctness of any statement contained therein.

(7) The powers of suspending, and of attaching conditions to, an insolvent's discharge may be exercised concurrently.

(8) A discharged insolvent shall, notwithstanding his discharge, give such assistance as the Court or, where a receiver has been appointed, as the receiver may require in the realisation and distribution of such of his property as is vested in the Court or the receiver; and, if he fails to give such assistance, the Court may, in addition to any punishment to which he may be liable, revoke his discharge, but without prejudice in the validity of any sale, disposition or payment duly made or anything duly done after the discharge but before the revocation.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, an insolvent's assets shall be deemed to be of a value equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities when the Court is satisfied that his property has realised, or is likely to realise, or with due care in realisation might have realised, an amount equal to eight annas in the rupee on his unsecured liabilities.

36. (1) An order of discharge shall not [Ct. .

(4) An order of discharge shall not release any person who, at the date of the presentation of the petition, was a partner or co-trustee with the insolvent, or was jointly bound or had made any joint contract with him or any person who was surety for him.

(3) Notice of every order annulling an adjudication shall be given in the manner provided by section 8, sub-sections (3) and (4).

(c) has committed any other act of bad faith regarding the matter of the application,

43. Where, under section 8, sub-section (2), Costs of detention in or section 30, the Court directs a debtor to be detained in the civil prison, the costs of such detention shall be borne by the person on whose application the same was directed, and in such case the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure shall apply as if the debtor and such person as aforesaid were a judgment-debtor and a decree-holder, respectively. XV of 187;

44. (1) The High Court may, with the previous sanction, in the case of the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal, of the Governor General in Council, and, in the case of any other High Court, of the Local Government, make rules for carrying into effect the provisions of this Act. XIV of 18

(2) In particular and without prejudice to the generality of the foregoing power, such rules may provide for the audit of the accounts of receivers appointed under this Act, for paying

Every Court having jurisdiction under this Act in British India and the officers of those Courts respectively shall severally act in aid of and be auxiliary to each other in all matters of insolvency, and an order of the Court seeking aid with a request to another of the said Courts shall be deemed sufficient to enable the latter Court to exercise, in regard to the matters directed by the order, such jurisdiction as either the Court which made the request, or the Court to which the request is made, could exercise in regard to similar matters within their respective jurisdictions.

46. (1) The enactments mentioned in the Schedule are hereby repealed to the extent specified in the fourth column thereof.

(2) Where in any enactment or instrument in force at the date of the commencement of this Act reference is made to Chapter XX (OF IN-SOLVENT JUDGMENT-DEBTORS) of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1877, or of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1882, or to any section of XIV of 1882, either of those Chapters, such reference shall, so far as may be practicable, be construed as applying to this Act or to the corresponding section thereof.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE general law of insolvency in British India, outside the three Presidency-towns, Rangoon and the Punjab, is contained in Chapter XX of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV of 1882); but it has long been admitted that the provisions to be there found afford the most inadequate relief both to debtors and to creditors. Their scope is limited to creditors who have obtained decrees for the payment of money and to judgment-debtors who have been arrested or imprisoned, or whose property has been attached in execution of such decrees. No restriction is placed upon the rights of an individual creditor until the debtor's property has actually vested in the receiver appointed under section 354; and, in the interim, suits may proceed and decrees may be executed, with the result that, while the petition is pending, the whole of the property of the debtor may be sold for the benefit of a single decree-holder, and to the exclusion of the rest of his creditors who may have refrained from embarrassing the estate with litigation because their claims have been duly scheduled. On the other hand, the relief to the insolvent is most inadequate, since it is strictly confined to discharge from the scheduled debts, all liability for which is terminated, by a rough and ready procedure, through the satisfaction of one-third or the efflux of twelve years. For the Punjab there is a special, but equally incomplete, law contained in eleven sections of the Punjab Laws Act (IV of 1872). In fact, the law of insolvency outside the Presidency-towns and Rangoon remains still, as the late Lord Hobhouse described it in 1875, the germ, and nothing more than the germ, of an insolvency law. There can be no doubt that the time has arrived when an extension of the law is urgently demanded.

In 1886 a Bankruptcy Bill was introduced and referred to a Select Committee, but after a lengthy consideration it was rejected by the Committee on the ground that it was too complicated for the requirements of the country at that time.

A further attempt to amend the law in the mufassal was made in connection with the revision of the Code of Civil Procedure which was undertaken in 1901. The Chapter on insolvency was redrafted and was made to extend to insolvent debtors generally without reference to the existence of decrees against them; and clauses were added to give more complete powers to the Courts and receivers on the lines, though in a much modified form, of the English law. The Chapter followed the Punjab Act in that it applied only to Courts on which the Local Government conferred jurisdiction by notification and only in the areas specified in the notification.

These proposals appeared to the Government of India to be sound and practical. The new Chapter met with general acceptance by the various authorities to whom the Bill was submitted for criticism, and received the approval of the Select Committee. But the Bill was not proceeded with after the Report of the Select Committee had been presented: it has been held over for further consideration with a view to meeting some of the principal objections urged against it on other points. It appears, however, to the Government of India that the insolvency provisions may with advantage be separated from the Code of Civil Procedure and passed as a separate enactment without further delay. These provisions in their proposed form are no longer confined to the cases of judgment-debtors and no longer therefore fall in their entirety within the ambit of such a Code. There are conveniences in having the subject dealt with in a distinct Act, and the resulting reduction in bulk of the Code is of itself not without advantage.

The present Bill differs on a few points only from Chapter XX of the Code Bill as passed by the Select Committee. Speaking generally, it is a reproduction of the main features of the English law of bankruptcy but in a greatly simplified form. It contains 46 clauses in all as against the 175 sections and 53 rules which are comprised in the English Act of 1883 and the 134 clauses and 55 rules of the Bill of 1885.

2. It is hoped that a separate Bill applicable to the Presidency-towns and Rangoon may be introduced at no distant date to amend or to repeal and re-enact with amendments the Act of 1848 by which insolvency in those towns is at present regulated.

3. The details of the present Bill are explained in the annexed Notes on Clauses.

Notes on Clauses

Clause 1.—The Bill is to all practical intents a Bankruptcy Bill. But it has been thought better, for the present at any rate, to preserve the title of "Insolvency" with which legal practitioners in this country are familiar. The term "Provincial" has been adopted by the Legislature in the analogous case of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887.

It is proposed not only to make the law extend territorially, like the Code of Civil Procedure, to the whole of British India except the Scheduled Districts, but also to give it the widest extra-territorial application possible in the case of an Act of the Indian legislature.

Clause 3.—The principle that the Local Government should have authority to confer jurisdiction on any Court has, to some extent, been recognised even in section 360 of the Code and it constitutes an essential portion of the insolvency provisions of the Punjab Laws Act, 1872. As many of the orders to be made are likely to involve legal questions of no little difficulty, it is proposed—see clause 42—to allow an appeal from a subordinate Court to the District Judge, whose decisions, however, must, except in respect of certain specified matters, be invested with finality unless all the relief that is anticipated is to be lost in expensive and protracted appeals to the High Court. The revisional remedy provided by section 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure and the power of supervision exercised under section 15 of the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, will, it is hoped, be sufficient to meet all cases of real hardship where no appeal is allowed.

Clause 4.—There is at present no definition of acts of insolvency entitling a creditor to apply for an adjudication against his debtor. The result is that a creditor or a number of creditors may wantonly or maliciously apply for such an adjudication, and the Court must apparently proceed upon the somewhat narrow grounds specified in section 351 of the Code. For such conduct it would seem that the debtor cannot obtain reparation, except by means of a separate suit. It seems desirable, therefore, to adapt and simplify the list of "acts of bankruptcy" contained in the English Statute of 1883—with an addition to cover the case of a judgment-debtor remaining in prison for 21 days—to render a creditor's application dependent upon the commission of such an act, and to invest the Court—see clause 12 (2)—with summary jurisdiction to award compensation where such an application is dismissed as frivolous and vexatious.

Clause 6.—It has already been stated that the Code, as it stands, applies only to a judgment-debtor who has been arrested or imprisoned, or whose property has been attached in execution of decrees for the payment of money and who voluntarily seeks the protection of the Court, unless the application proceeds from a decree-holder. So far as it is proposed to extend the law to the relief of other classes of debtors, the minimum limit of liability has been fixed at five hundred rupees, as in section 23 of the Punjab Laws Act, 1872, an exception being made in the case of agriculturists, in connection with whom it is proposed to leave the limit to the discretion of Local Governments. On the other hand, it is proposed considerably to curtail the existing latitude given to creditor-applicants by limiting their rights to cases in which acts of insolvency have been committed.

Clause 7.—Most of the requirements here suggested are purely ancillary to the proposals in regard to the persons entitled to apply. It is not intended to relax the stringency of the rule that an application must specify where the property is to be found; but the reference in sub-clause (3) to return and amendment is intended to prevent dismissals on purely technical grounds.

Clause 8 provides for notice of the petition to the parties concerned.

Clause 9.—At present the duties of the debtor up to the conclusion of the insolvency proceedings are not clearly defined. By virtue of section 359 of the Code he may be imprisoned for certain acts of fraud and bad faith proved at the hearing under that section; but this would not warrant coercive measures for mere failure to render such active assistance as section 24 of the English Statute requires. The clause here proposed is intended to meet the defect.

Clause 10.—It has been pointed out that sections 22 to 33 of the Punjab Laws Act, 1872, give no power to arrest by warrant where there is probable reason for believing the insolvent to be about to evade service of summons or to remove or conceal his goods or papers; and it is doubtful how far this omission is supplied by the Code. In these circumstances, it is thought expedient to adapt the coercive provisions of section 25 of the English Statute, somewhat on the lines of section 477 of the Code with regard to arrest before judgment. Here, it is thought, the imprisonment provided for need hardly be confined to detention in a civil jail.

Clause 11.—It is thought that ordinary cases of insolvency may be compared with summons cases and even summary trials under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, so as to relieve the Courts of as much unnecessary clerical labour as possible.

Clause 12.—Here again it is proposed that the powers of the Court should be assimilated to those conferred by sections 203 and 253 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. On the other hand, it is essential that, if readier facilities are to be given to creditors to have their debtors declared, to be insolvent, an equally prompt remedy should be given against wanton and malicious applications. This principle has already been recognised in section 491 of the Code of Civil Procedure with regard to arrest or attachment before judgment.

Clause 13.—It is proposed to dispense with any preliminary order and have one order only, and that an adjudication order. In the English Act a receiving order is first made and adjudication follows later. But there seems no good reason for adopting this double system and there are advantages of simplicity in having only one order. In the scheme proposed by the Select Committee adjudication was preceded by a "conditional" order made ex parte. But it is thought that this procedure would be liable to abuse and that sufficient control over the property of the debtor between the dates of the presentation of the petition and the adjudication order can be obtained in other ways. The order is made to relate back to the date of the petition in accordance with the law in force in the Presidency towns.

Clause 15.—A clause has been inserted to give power to the Court to deal with small bankruptcies by way of summary procedure to be determined by rules.

Clause 16.—The general powers exercisable by a receiver in virtue of his appointment under section 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure are not sufficiently precise for the purposes of insolvency. In the cases here enumerated it seems expedient that the receiver should not merely rely upon such general powers, but act by the direction, and under the control, of the Court.

Clause 18.—The Code is defective in containing no proper description of the nature of debts provable in insolvency, in not precluding a creditor from proving a liability contracted after he had notice of an act of insolvency, and in allowing a debt payable immediately to rank equally with one payable on a future date or on the happening of a contingency. It is proposed to remedy these defects on the lines of section 37 of the English Statute of 1883.

Clause 19.—The English practice of proving by transmission of an affidavit is obviously desirable, and its introduction here is safeguarded by the provisions of clause 23, which will enable the Court to expunge or reduce proofs improperly admitted in whole or in part. It will be observed that, in view of the circumstances of this country, it is proposed that receivers should not, without express delegation from the Court, be entrusted with the duty of taking proof of debts, which is an ordinary part of their functions under the English procedure.

Clause 20.—The existing law is most incomplete as regards the claims of secured creditors. At present, neither a declaration of insolvency nor a sale by a receiver gets rid of an unscheduled mortgage. If, however, the mortgage is scheduled, it is entitled, under section 356, clause (d), of the Code, to priority over all claims other than Crown-debts and the costs of a decree-holder. It is proposed to adapt the English procedure as to the surrender and valuation of secured liabilities.

Clause 21.—The Code contains no specific directions regarding interest, and some appear to be necessary if a ready relief against acts of insolvency is to be given.

Clause 22.—It may be doubted whether a claim payable at a future time is a "debt" for the purposes of rateable distribution. Rule 21 of the second schedule to the Statute of 1883 has accordingly been adapted so as to include such claims.

Clause 23.—It is here proposed to invest the Courts with the powers of expunging or reducing proofs, which is exercised in England.

Clause 24.—The list of preferential payments enumerated in section 356 of the Code, while including Crown-debts, gives no priority to the wages of service or labour rendered to the insolvent. On the other hand, the invariable preference given to mortgages over unsecured liabilities is not expedient. It is proposed, therefore, to adapt the principle accepted in section 40 of the Statute of 1883, as supplemented by section 1 of the Preferential Payments in Bankruptcy Act, 1888.

Clause 25.—This clause prescribes the protection afforded to agriculturists by the proviso to section 356 of the Code or by any special enactment in force.

Clauses 27 and 28 protect the property of the insolvent against execution.

Clauses 29, 30 and 31 deal with the effect of adjudication on antecedent transactions on the lines of the English Act. It is believed that the powers of the Court urgently require strengthening in respect of compositions and fraudulent transfers.

Clause 32.—The Code of Civil Procedure does not regulate the payment of dividends and there is accordingly no direction with regard to provision for debts not provable at once. The principle has already been recognised that a creditor can claim to prove at any time while there are still undistributed assets of the insolvent. It is essential, however, to qualify this by providing for the maintenance of any prior payment of dividends, and also to protect a receiver against suit for dividends unpaid, the Court being at the same time vested with the power to order payment, with costs and interest, of interest improperly withheld.

Clause 33.—The absence of any power to enable an insolvent to manage his business and to grant him an allowance undoubtedly deters debtors from seeking the benefit of the existing law. It is hoped that, by the adoption of section 64 of the English Act of 1883, one of the worst stumbling-blocks in the way of insolvent relief will be removed.

Clauses 34 and 35.—The effect of the present law with respect to discharge is ineffective, uncertain and unfair. It has already been mentioned that the relief afforded by the Code can be claimed only in very narrowly defined circumstances, which are made dependent upon the taking of particular action for the enforcement of decrees for the payment of money. Even so, however, the relief is limited to debts entered in the schedule contemplated by section 352 of the Code; and, if a creditor does not choose to have his debts scheduled, the discharge will not preclude him from executing his decree. Nor will the scheduling of a decree necessarily bar a suit to establish the right to sell any property hypothecated; and it seems that, while section 357 of the Code does not protect an insolvent from arrest in respect of judgment-debts not appearing in the schedule, his property can always be attached and sold. Indeed, there is some measure of doubt on the question how far a creditor may execute a scheduled decree pari passu with the insolvency proceedings. On the other hand, a debtor is absolved from liability in respect of the scheduled debts after payment of one-third or the expiry of twelve years. Furthermore, the discharge must be either given or refused; but there is no power to suspend it or to grant it upon conditions; nor are there any provisions regulating the discretion of the Court in withholding it; and, finally, the Court cannot revoke a discharge, however improperly or fraudulently it may have been obtained. It is, therefore, proposed to adapt the provisions of the English law, which enable the Courts, on specified conditions, to exercise a discrimination in granting or postponing relief; to declare, at the same time, that the relief, when granted, will absolve the debtor from all claims provable in insolvency with the exception of those due to the Crown or tainted with fraud; and to render the discharged insolvent subject to the wholesome restraint of knowing that, if he fails to render proper assistance in satisfying the claims against him, he is liable to forfeit his discharge.

In sub-clause (4) (d) of clause 35 the English procedure has been materially modified.

Clauses 36 and 37.—The absence of any power to remove the stigma of insolvency, either because the declaration was improper or because the liabilities have been satisfied in full, sets a premium upon any honest endeavour on the part of a debtor to rehabilitate his character. It seems desirable, therefore, that the terms of section 35 of the English Statute should be embodied, the same publicity being given to the annulment as to the declaration.

Clause 38.—It seems necessary to make some provision for concurrent proceedings. The clause gives power to either Court to annul the adjudication order made by it, on proof that another Court can more conveniently deal with the matter.

Clause 42.—As usual, the question of appeals presents features of no inconsiderable difficulty. The solution here suggested is, first, to subordinate to the District Court all other Insolvency Courts; secondly, to follow the English Statute of 1883 so far as to give an appeal from all orders of subordinate Courts to the District Court, whose appellate order should, however, be final; thirdly, to limit strictly to particular clauses of orders the right of appeal from orders made by a District Court otherwise than in appeal; and, fourthly, for this purpose to treat as a District Court any subordinate Court to which the District Court may have transferred an appeal (see note to clause 3, supra).

Clause 43.—A clause of this description is necessary because the Code of Civil Procedure requires the deposit of diet-money in the case of detention in the civil prison, but would not, as is contemplated by the Bill, render mere creditors liable for such charges.

Clause 44 confers on High Courts powers to make rules for carrying into effect the provisions of the Act. These powers are subject to the same sanction as is required in the case of rules made under the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, and under Chapter XLIX of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Clause 45 gives power to all Courts having insolvency jurisdiction under the Act to enforce the orders of other Courts having like jurisdiction.

5. After section 42 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely:

"42A.(1) With the sanction of the Governor General in Council, the Directors may at any time enter into negotiations for and purchase and take over the capital, assets and business of any other Bank in British India, of which the capital is divided into shares, and may grant and allot to the shareholders or proprietors in such Bank in full of their respective Provided always that the business so purchased shall after the purchase be carried on by the Bank with, and subject to, the several restrictions contained in this Act."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to relax certain restrictions on the powers under which the Presidency Banks transact their banking business. The law, as originally formulated in the Presidency Banks Act, 1876 (XI of 1876), has been modified by two Acts, namely, the Presidency Banks Act, 1879 (V of 1879), which empowered the Banks to borrow in India, and the Presidency Banks Act, 1899 (XX of 1899), which enabled the Banks to deal in the securities of the Bombay Improvement Trust. Experience has shewn that further extensions of the powers of the Banks are now required, the most important of the suggestions to which it is proposed to give effect being that the Banks should be permitted to deal in the securities of State-aided railways and District Boards; that the Ceylon branch of the Bank of Madras should be permitted to deal in the securities of the Government of Ceylon; that the present narrow limit upon the amount to which the Banks can allow their customers to overdraw should be enlarged; and that the period for which the Banks may grant loans and advances should be extended from three to six months in certain cases.

2. The Notes on Clauses below indicate the amendments of the existing law proposed in the Bill.

Simla, the 27th September, 1906.

E. N. BAKER.

Notes on Clauses.

1. Clause 2 removes the maximum limit on the capital of each Bank, which is imposed by the proviso to section 14 of the existing Act.

2. Clause 3 (i) permits the Ceylon Branch of the Bank of Madras to deal in securities of the Government of Ceylon, the possible objection that transactions in these securities may involve a drain of funds from India being met by the provision that the amount of advances upon and investments in such securities shall not exceed the resources raised by the Bank in Ceylon itself.

3. Clauses 3 (ii) and 3 (iii) empower the Banks to deal in securities issued by State-aided railways, such as branch lines constructed on rebate terms, and in the securities of District Boards.

4. Clause 3 (iv).—Under section 36, clause (a), sub-clause (6), of the Act, the Banks are allowed to advance money on accepted bills of exchange and promissory notes endorsed by the payees, i.e., practically on the security of two names. Clause 3 (iv) extends this power by permitting the Banks to make advances on the joint and several promissory notes of two or more persons unconnected in business.

3A, added VII of 3, s. 31, & 12, c. 21, of 1900. (3) Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to limit or otherwise affect anything done by any Court in the exercise of any power conferred by the Indian Insolvency Act, 1848, or by section 8 of the Lower Burma Courts Act, 1900.

Pleb., s. 53,
s. 37.] 18. (1) Demands in the nature of unliquidated damages arising otherwise than by reason of a contract, promise or breach of trust shall not be provable under this Act.

Debts provable in insolvency.

(2) A person having notice of any act of insolvency available against the debtor shall not prove under the order for any debt or liability contracted by the debtor subsequently to the date of his so having notice.

(3) Save as otherwise provided by sub-sections (1) and (2), all debts and liabilities, present or future, certain or contingent, to which the debtor is subject when he is adjudged to be an insolvent or to which he may become subject before his discharge by reason of any obligation incurred before the date of such adjudication, shall be deemed to be debts provable under this Act.

(4) An estimate shall be made by the Court or by the receiver of the value of any debt or liability provable as aforesaid, which by reason of its being subject to any contingency, or for any other reason, does not bear a certain value.

(5) Any person aggrieved by any estimate made by a receiver under sub-section (4) may appeal to the Court.

(6) Where, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is incapable of being fairly estimated, the Court may make an order to that effect, and thereupon the debt or liability shall, for the purposes of this Act, be deemed to be a debt not provable thereunder.

(7) Where, in the opinion of the Court, the value of the debt or liability is capable of being fairly estimated, the Court may direct the value to be assessed and may give all necessary directions for this purpose, and the amount of the value when assessed shall be deemed to be a debt provable under this Act.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, liability includes any compensation for work done, any obligation or possibility of an obligation to pay money or money's worth on the breach of any express or implied covenant, contract, agreement, or undertaking, whether the breach does or does not occur, or is or is not likely to occur or capable of occurring, before the discharge of the debtor;

and generally it includes any express or implied engagement, agreement or undertaking to pay, or capable of resulting in the payment of, money or money's worth, whether the payment is, as respects amount, fixed or unliquidated; as respects time, present or future, certain or dependent on any contingency or contingencies; as to mode of valuation, capable of being ascertained by fixed rules or as matter of opinion.

19. (1) A debt may be proved under this Act [Ct. ibi] by delivering, or sending, ^{11, rr. 6.]} by post in a registered letter, to the Court, or, where a receiver has been appointed and the Court has authorised him in this behalf, to the receiver, an affidavit verifying the debt.

(2) A creditor shall, unless the Court otherwise directs, bear the cost of proving his debt.

20. (1) Where a secured creditor realises [Ct. ibi] his security, he may ^{9 to 17.]} prove for the balance due to him, after deducting the net amount realised.

(2) Where a secured creditor surrenders his security to the Court or to the receiver for the general benefit of his creditors, he may prove for his whole debt.

(3) Where a secured creditor does not either realise or surrender his security, he shall, before being entitled to rank for a dividend, state in his proof the particulars of his security, the date when it was given, and the value at which he assesses it, and shall be entitled to receive a dividend only in respect of the balance due to him after deducting the value so assessed.

(4) Where a security is so valued, the Court, or, with the leave of the Court, the receiver may at any time redeem it on payment to the creditor of the assessed value; and where the Court or the receiver is dissatisfied with the value at which a security is assessed, it or he may require that the property comprised in any security so valued shall be offered for sale at such time, and on such terms and conditions, as may be agreed upon between the creditor and the Court or the receiver, or as, in default of such agreement, the Court may direct; and where the sale is by public auction, the creditor, or the Court or the receiver on behalf of the estate, may bid or purchase:

Provided that the creditor may at any time, by notice in writing, require the Court or the receiver to elect whether it or he will or will not exercise its or his power of redeeming the security or requiring it to be realised; and, where the Court or the receiver does not, within six months after receiving the notice, signify in writing to the creditor its or his election to exercise the power, it or he shall not be entitled to exercise it; and the equity of redemption, or any other interest in the property comprised in the security which is vested in the Court or the receiver, shall vest in the creditor, and the amount of his debt shall be reduced by the amount at which the security has been valued.

(5) Where a creditor has so valued his security, he may at any time amend the valuation and proof on showing, to the satisfaction of the Court, or, with the leave of the Court, to the satisfaction of the receiver, that the valuation and proof were made in good faith on a mistaken estimate, or that the security has diminished or increased in value since its previous valuation; but the cost of every such amendment shall be borne by the creditor and upon such terms as the Court shall order, unless the receiver allows the amendment without application to the Court.

(6) Where a valuation has been amended in accordance with sub-section (5), the creditor shall forthwith repay any surplus dividend received by him in excess of that to which he would have been entitled on the amended valuation, or, as the case may be, shall be entitled to be paid, out of any money for the time being available for dividend, any dividend or share of a dividend which he may have failed to receive by reason of the inaccuracy of the original valuation, before that money is made applicable to the payment of any future dividend; but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before the date of the amendment.

(7) Where a creditor, after having valued his security, subsequently realises it, or where it is realised under sub-section (4), the net amount realised shall be substituted for the amount of any valuation previously made by the creditor and shall be treated in all respects as an amended valuation made by the creditor.

(8) Where a secured creditor does not comply with the provisions of this section, he shall be excluded from all share in any dividend.

(9) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (4), a creditor shall in no case receive more than sixteen annas in the rupee, and interest as hereinafter provided by this Act.

(10) Nothing in this section shall be deemed to relieve a receiver of the necessity for obtaining the leave of the Court in accordance with the provisions of section 16.

served or agreed for,

(5) Subject to the provisions of this Act, all debts proved under this Act shall be paid rateably according to the amounts of such debts respectively and without any preference.

(2) Nothing in this Act shall be deemed to affect any provisions of any enactment for the time being in force prohibiting or restricting the execution of decrees or orders against immoveable property; and any such provisions shall be deemed to apply to an order of adjudication made under this Act as if it were such a decree or order.

26. (1) Subject to the provisions of sections 24 and 25, the Court or, where a receiver has been appointed, the receiver shall give effect to any composition or scheme of arrangement agreed upon between the debtor and the creditors representing a majority in value of the claims provable under this Act by those of the creditors who have appeared:

(2) This section shall not affect the rights of any person making title in good faith and for valuable consideration through or under the creditor of the insolvent.

31. Subject to the foregoing provisions of this Act with respect to the effect of insolvency on an execution and with respect to the avoidance of certain settlements and preferences, nothing in this Act shall invalidate in the case of an insolvency—

- (b) any payment or delivery to the insolvent ;
- (c) any conveyance, transfer or assignment by the insolvent for valuable consideration ; or
- (d) any contract, dealing or transaction by or with the insolvent for valuable consideration :

Provided that both the following conditions are complied with, namely :

- (i) the payment, delivery, transfer, conveyance, assignment, contract, dealing or transaction, as the case may be, takes place before the date of the order of adjudication ; and
- (ii) the person (other than the insolvent) to, by or with whom the payment, delivery, transfer, conveyance, assignment, contract, dealing or transaction was made, executed or entered into, has not at the time of the payment, delivery, transfer, conveyance, assignment, contract, dealing or transaction, notice of any available act of insolvency committed by the insolvent before that time.

32. (1) In the calculation of dividends, the Court or, where a receiver has been appointed, the receiver shall make provision for—

(3) Any creditor who has not proved his debt before the declaration of any dividend or dividends, shall be entitled to be paid, out of any money for the time being in the hands of the Court, or, where a receiver has been appointed, of the receiver, any dividend or dividends which he may have failed to receive before that money is applied to the payment of any future dividend or dividends ; but he shall not be entitled to disturb the distribution of any dividend declared before his debt was proved by reason that he has not participated therein.

(4) No action for a dividend shall lie against the receiver ; but, where the receiver refuses to pay any dividend, the Court may, if it thinks fit, order him to pay it, and also to pay out of his own money interest thereon for the time that it is withheld, and the costs of the application.

33. (1) The Court or, by leave of the Court, the receiver may appoint the insolvent himself to Management by and allowance to insolvent. the insolvent himself to Superintend the management of the property of the insolvent or of any part thereof, or to carry on the trade (if any) of the insolvent for the benefit of the creditors, and in any other respect to aid in administering the property in such manner and on such terms as the Court or, by leave of the Court, the receiver may direct.

(2) The Court or, by leave of the Court, the receiver may, from time to time, make such allowance as it or he may think just to the insolvent out of his property for the support of himself and his family, or in consideration of his services if he is engaged in winding up his estate ; but any such allowance may, at any time, be reduced by the Court.

34. The insolvent shall be entitled to any surplus remaining after payment in full of his creditors, with interest as provided by this Act, and of the costs, charge and expenses of the proceedings taken thereunder.

35. (1) A debtor may, at any time after the order of adjudication, apply to the Court for an order of discharge ; and the Court shall fix a day, notice whereof shall be given in the manner provided by section 8, sub-sections (3) and (4), for hearing such application, and any objections which may be made thereto.

(2) Subject to the provisions of this section, the Court may, after hearing the objections of any creditor or, where a receiver has been appointed, of the receiver,—

- (a) grant or refuse an absolute order of discharge ; or
- (b) suspend the operation of the order for a specified time ; or
- (c) grant an order of discharge subject to any conditions with respect to any earnings or income which may afterwards become due to the insolvent, or with respect to his after-acquired property.

(3) The Court shall refuse an order of discharge where the insolvent has committed an offence in relation to his insolvency, unless, for reasons to be recorded, it is satisfied that such refusal is not required in the interests of justice.

(4) On proof of any of the facts mentioned in sub-section (5), the Court shall—

- (a) refuse the discharge ; or
- (b) suspend the discharge for a period of not less than two years ; or
- (c) suspend the discharge until a dividend of not less than eight annas in the rupee has been paid to the creditors ; or,

(d) where a receiver has been appointed, require the insolvent, as a condition of his discharge, to consent to an order for payment to such receiver of any balance or part of any balance of debts provable under this Act but not satisfied at the date of discharge, such balance or part of any balance to be paid out of the future earnings or after-acquired property of the insolvent in such manner and subject to such conditions as the Court may direct; and every such order shall be capable of execution as if it were a decree:

Provided that, if at any time after the expiration of two years from the date of an order made under this section, the insolvent satisfies the Court that there is no reasonable probability of his being in a position to comply with the terms of the order, the Court may modify the terms of the order, or of any substituted order, in such manner and upon such conditions as it thinks fit:

Provided, also, that no application for the execution of an order made in favour of a receiver under clause (d) shall be made except by leave of the Court, and that such leave shall not be given unless on proof that the insolvent has, since his discharge, acquired property or income available towards the payment of his debts.

(5) The facts referred to in sub-section (4) are the following, namely:

- (a) that the insolvent's assets are not of a value equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities, unless he satisfies the Court that the fact that the assets are not of a value equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities has arisen from circumstances for which he cannot justly be held responsible;
- (b) that the insolvent has omitted to keep such books of account as are usual and proper in the business carried on by him and as sufficiently disclose his business transactions and financial position within the three years immediately preceding his insolvency;
- (c) that the insolvent has continued to trade after knowing himself to be insolvent;
- (d) that the insolvent has contracted any debt provable under this Act without having at the time of contracting it any reasonable or probable ground of expectation (the burden of proving which shall lie on him) that he would be able to pay it;
- (e) that the insolvent has failed to account satisfactorily for any loss of assets or for any deficiency of assets to meet his liabilities;
- (f) that the insolvent has brought on, or contributed to, his insolvency by rash and hazardous speculations, or by unjustifiable extravagance in living, or by gambling, or by culpable neglect of his business affairs;
- (g) that the insolvent has put any of his creditors to unnecessary expense by a frivolous or vexatious defence to any suit or other proceeding properly instituted against him;
- (h) that the insolvent has, within three months preceding the date of the order under section 8, sub-section (1), incurred unjustifiable expense by instituting a frivolous or vexatious suit or other proceeding;
- (i) that the insolvent has, within the period referred to in clause (h), when unable to pay his debts as they became due, given an undue preference to any of his creditors;
- (j) that the insolvent has, within the period referred to in clause (h), incurred liabilities with a view to making his assets equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities;
- (k) that the insolvent has on any previous occasion been declared an insolvent, or made a composition or arrangement with his creditors;
- (l) that the insolvent has concealed or removed his property or any part thereof, or has been guilty of any other fraud or fraudulent breach of trust.

(6) For the purposes of this section, the report of the receiver shall be deemed to be evidence; and the Court may presume the correctness of any statement contained therein.

(7) The powers of suspending, and of attaching conditions to, an insolvent's discharge may be exercised concurrently.

(8) A discharged insolvent shall, notwithstanding his discharge, give such assistance as the Court or, where a receiver has been appointed, as the receiver may require in the realisation and distribution of such of his property as is vested in the Court or the receiver; and, if he fails to give such assistance, the Court may, in addition to any punishment to which he may be liable, revoke his discharge, but without prejudice in the validity of any sale, disposition or payment duly made or anything duly done after the discharge but before the revocation.

Explanation.—For the purposes of this section, an insolvent's assets shall be deemed to be of a value equal to eight annas in the rupee on the amount of his unsecured liabilities when the Court is satisfied that his property has realised, or is likely to realise, or with due care in realisation might have realised, an amount equal to eight annas in the rupee on his unsecured liabilities.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE general law of insolvency in British India, outside the three Presidency-towns, Rangoon and the Punjab, is contained in Chapter XX of the Code of Civil Procedure (Act XIV of 1882); but it has long been admitted that the provisions to be there found afford the most inadequate relief both to debtors and to creditors. Their scope is limited to creditors who have obtained decrees for the payment of money and to judgment-debtors who have been arrested or imprisoned, or whose property has been attached in execution of such decrees. No restriction is placed upon the rights of an individual creditor until the debtor's property has actually vested in the receiver appointed under section 354; and, in the interim, suits may proceed and decrees may be executed, with the result that, while the petition is pending, the whole of the property of the debtor may be sold for the benefit of a single decree-holder, and to the exclusion of the rest of his creditors who may have refrained from embarrassing the estate with litigation because their claims have been duly scheduled. On the other hand, the relief to the insolvent is most inadequate, since it is strictly confined to discharge from the scheduled debts, all liability for which is terminated, by a rough and ready procedure, through the satisfaction of one-third or the efflux of twelve years. For the Punjab there is a special, but equally incomplete, law contained in eleven sections of the Punjab Laws Act (IV of 1872). In fact, the law of insolvency outside the Presidency-towns and Rangoon remains still, as the late Lord Hobhouse described it in 1875, the germ, and nothing more than the germ, of an insolvency law. There can be no doubt that the time has arrived when an extension of the law is urgently demanded.

In 1886 a Bankruptcy Bill was introduced and referred to a Select Committee, but after a lengthy consideration it was rejected by the Committee on the ground that it was too complicated for the requirements of the country at that time.

A further attempt to amend the law in the mufassal was made in connection with the revision of the Code of Civil Procedure which was undertaken in 1901. The Chapter on insolvency was redrafted and was made to extend to insolvent debtors generally without reference to the existence of decrees against them; and clauses were added to give more complete powers to the Courts and receivers on the lines, though in a much modified form, of the English law. The Chapter followed the Punjab Act in that it applied only to Courts on which the Local Government conferred jurisdiction by notification and only in the areas specified in the notification.

These proposals appeared to the Government of India to be sound and practical. The new Chapter met with general acceptance by the various authorities to whom the Bill was submitted for criticism, and received the approval of the Select Committee. But the Bill was not proceeded with after the Report of the Select Committee had been presented: it has been held over for further consideration with a view to meeting some of the principal objections urged against it on other points. It appears, however, to the Government of India that the insolvency provisions may with advantage be separated from the Code of Civil Procedure and passed as a separate enactment without further delay. These provisions in their proposed form are no longer confined to the cases of judgment-debtors and no longer therefore fall in their entirety within the ambit of such a Code. There are conveniences in having the subject dealt with in a distinct Act, and the resulting reduction in bulk of the Code is of itself not without advantage.

The present Bill differs on a few points only from Chapter XX of the Code Bill as passed by the Select Committee. Speaking generally, it is a reproduction of the main features of the English law of bankruptcy but in a greatly simplified form. It contains 46 clauses in all as against the 175 sections and 53 rules which are comprised in the English Act of 1883 and the 134 clauses and 55 rules of the Bill of 1885.

2. It is hoped that a separate Bill applicable to the Presidency-towns and Rangoon may be introduced at no distant date to amend or to repeal and re-enact with amendments the Act of 1848 by which insolvency in those towns is at present regulated.

3. The details of the present Bill are explained in the annexed Notes on Clauses.

The 27th September, 1906.

Notes on Clauses

Clause 1.—The Bill is to all practical intents a Bankruptcy Bill. But it has been thought better, for the present at any rate, to preserve the title of "Insolvency" with which legal practitioners in this country are familiar. The term "Provincial" has been adopted by the Legislature in the analogous case of the Provincial Small Cause Courts Act, 1887.

It is proposed not only to make the law extend territorially, like the Code of Civil Procedure, to the whole of British India except the Scheduled Districts, but also to give it the widest extra-territorial application possible in the case of an Act of the Indian legislature.

Clause 3.—The principle that the Local Government should have authority to confer jurisdiction on any Court has, to some extent, been recognised even in section 360 of the Code and it constitutes an essential portion of the insolvency provisions of the Punjab Laws Act, 1872. As many of the orders to be made are likely to involve legal questions of no little difficulty, it is proposed—see clause 42—to allow an appeal from a subordinate Court to the District Judge, whose decisions, however, must, except in respect of certain specified matters, be invested with finality unless all the relief that is anticipated is to be lost in expensive and protracted appeals to the High Court. The revisional remedy provided by section 622 of the Code of Civil Procedure and the power of supervision exercised under section 15 of the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, will, it is hoped, be sufficient to meet all cases of real hardship where no appeal is allowed.

Clause 4.—There is at present no definition of acts of insolvency entitling a creditor to apply for an adjudication against his debtor. The result is that a creditor or a number of creditors may wantonly or maliciously apply for such an adjudication, and the Court must apparently proceed upon the somewhat narrow grounds specified in section 351 of the Code. For such conduct it would seem that the debtor cannot obtain reparation, except by means of a separate suit. It seems desirable, therefore, to adapt and simplify the list of "acts of bankruptcy" contained in the English Statute of 1883—with an addition to cover the case of a judgment debtor remaining in prison for 21 days—to render a creditor's application dependent upon the commission of such an act, and to invest the Court—see clause 12 (2)—with summary jurisdiction to award compensation where such an application is dismissed as frivolous and vexatious.

Clause 6.—It has already been stated that the Code, as it stands, applies only to a judgment-debtor who has been arrested or imprisoned, or whose property has been attached in execution of decrees for the payment of money and who voluntarily seeks the protection of the Court, unless the application proceeds from a decree-holder. So far as it is proposed to extend the law to the relief of other classes of debtors, the minimum limit of liability has been fixed at five hundred rupees, as in section 23 of the Punjab Laws Act, 1872, an exception being made in the case of agriculturists, in connection with whom it is proposed to leave the limit to the discretion of Local Governments. On the other hand, it is proposed considerably to curtail the existing latitude given to creditor-applicants by limiting their rights to cases in which acts of insolvency have been committed.

Clause 7.—Most of the requirements here suggested are purely ancillary to the proposals in regard to the persons entitled to apply. It is not intended to relax the stringency of the rule that an application must specify where the property is to be found; but the reference in sub-clause (3) to return and amendment is intended to prevent dismissals on purely technical grounds.

Clause 8 provides for notice of the petition to the parties concerned.

Clause 9.—At present the duties of the debtor up to the conclusion of the insolvency proceedings are not clearly defined. By virtue of section 359 of the Code he may be imprisoned for certain acts of fraud and bad faith proved at the hearing under that section; but this would not warrant coercive measures for mere failure to render such active assistance as section 74 of the English Statute requires. The clause here proposed is intended to meet the defect.

Clause 10.—It has been pointed out that sections 22 to 33 of the Punjab Laws Act, 1872, give no power to arrest by warrant where there is probable reason for believing the insolvent to be about to evade service of summons or to remove or conceal his goods or papers; and it is doubtful how far this omission is supplied by the Code. In these circumstances, it is thought expedient to adapt the coercive provisions of section 25 of the English Statute, somewhat on the lines of section 477 of the Code with regard to arrest before judgment. Here, it is thought, the imprisonment provided for need hardly be confined to detention in a civil jail.

Clause 11.—It is thought that ordinary cases of insolvency may be compared with summons cases and even summary trials under the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898, so as to relieve the Courts of as much unnecessary clerical labour as possible.

Clause 12.—Here again it is proposed that the powers of the Court should be assimilated to those conferred by sections 203 and 253 of the Code of Criminal Procedure, 1898. On the other hand, it is essential that, if readier facilities are to be given to creditors to have their debtors declared to be insolvent, an equally prompt remedy should be given against wanton and malicious applications. This principle has already been recognised in section 491 of the Code of Civil Procedure with regard to arrest or attachment before judgment.

Clause 13.—It is proposed to dispense with any preliminary order and have one order only, and that an adjudication order. In the English Act a receiving order is first made and adjudication follows later. But there seems no good reason for adopting this double system and there are advantages of simplicity in having only one order. In the scheme proposed by the Select Committee adjudication was preceded by a "conditional" order made ex parte. But it is thought that this procedure would be liable to abuse and that sufficient control over the property of the debtor between the dates of the presentation of the petition and the adjudication order can be obtained in other ways. The order is made to relate back to the date of the petition in accordance with the law in force in the Presidency-towns.

Clause 15.—A clause has been inserted to give power to the Court to deal with small bankruptcies by way of summary procedure to be determined by rules.

Clause 16.—The general powers exercisable by a receiver in virtue of his appointment under section 503 of the Code of Civil Procedure are not sufficiently precise for the purposes of insolvency. In the cases here enumerated it seems expedient that the receiver should not merely rely upon such general powers, but act by the direction, and under the control, of the Court.

Clause 18.—The Code is defective in containing no proper description of the nature of debts provable in insolvency, in not precluding a creditor from proving a liability contracted after he had notice of an act of insolvency, and in allowing a debt payable immediately to rank equally with one payable on a future date or on the happening of a contingency. It is proposed to remedy these defects on the lines of section 37 of the English Statute of 1883.

Clause 19.—The English practice of proving by transmission of an affidavit is obviously desirable, and its introduction here is safeguarded by the provisions of clause 23, which will enable the Court to expunge or reduce proofs improperly admitted in whole or in part. It will be observed that, in view of the circumstances of this country, it is proposed that receivers should not, without express delegation from the Court, be entrusted with the duty of taking proof of debts, which is an ordinary part of their functions under the English procedure.

Clause 20.—The existing law is most incomplete as regards the claims of secured creditors. At present, neither a declaration of insolvency nor a sale by a receiver gets rid of an unscheduled mortgage. If, however, the mortgage is scheduled, it is entitled, under section 356, clause (d), of the Code, to priority over all claims other than Crown-debts and the costs of a decree-holder. It is proposed to adapt the English procedure as to the surrender and valuation of secured liabilities.

Clause 21.—The Code contains no specific directions regarding interest, and some appear to be necessary if a ready relief against acts of insolvency is to be given.

Clause 22.—It may be doubted whether a claim payable at a future time is a "debt" for the purposes of rateable distribution. Rule 21 of the second schedule to the Statute of 1883 has accordingly been adapted so as to include such claims.

Clause 23.—It is here proposed to invest the Courts with the powers of expunging or reducing proofs, which is exercised in England.

Clause 24.—The list of preferential payments enumerated in section 356 of the Code, while including Crown-debts, gives no priority to the wages of service or labour rendered to the insolvent. On the other hand, the invariable preference given to mortgages over unsecured liabilities is not expedient. It is proposed, therefore, to adapt the principle accepted in section 40 of the Statute of 1883, as supplemented by section 1 of the Preferential Payments in Bankruptcy Act, 1888.

Clause 25.—This clause prescribes the protection afforded to agriculturists by the proviso to section 356 of the Code or by any special enactment in force.

Clauses 27 and 28 protect the property of the insolvent against execution.

Clauses 29, 30 and 31 deal with the effect of adjudication on antecedent transactions on the lines of the English Act. It is believed that the powers of the Court urgently require strengthening in respect of compositions and fraudulent transfers.

Clause 32.—The Code of Civil Procedure does not regulate the payment of dividends and there is accordingly no direction with regard to provision for debts not provable at once. The principle has already been recognised that a creditor can claim to prove at any time while there are still undistributed assets of the insolvent. It is essential, however, to qualify this by providing for the maintenance of any prior payment of dividends, and also to protect a receiver against suit for dividends unpaid, the Court being at the same time vested with the power to order payment, with costs and interest, of interest improperly withheld.

Clause 33.—The absence of any power to enable an insolvent to manage his business and to grant him an allowance undoubtedly deters debtors from seeking the benefit of the existing law. It is hoped that, by the adoption of section 24 of the English Act of 1883, one of the worst stumbling-blocks in the way of insolvent relief will be removed.

Clauses 34 and 35.—The effect of the present law with respect to discharge is ineffective, uncertain and unfair. It has already been mentioned that the relief afforded by the Code can be claimed only in very narrowly defined circumstances, which are made dependent upon the taking of particular action for the enforcement of decrees for the payment of money. Even so, however, the relief is limited to debts entered in the schedule contemplated by section 352 of the Code; and, if a creditor does not choose to have his debts scheduled, the discharge will not preclude him from executing his decree. Nor will the scheduling of a decree necessarily bar a suit to establish the right to sell any property hypothecated; and it seems that, while section 357 of the Code does not protect an insolvent from arrest in respect of judgment-debts not appearing in the schedule, his property can always be attached and sold. Indeed, there is some measure of doubt on the question how far a creditor may execute a scheduled decree puri passu with the insolvency proceedings. On the other hand, a debtor is absolved from liability in respect of the scheduled debts after payment of one-third or the expiry of twelve years. Furthermore, the discharge must be either given or refused; but there is no power to suspend it or to grant it upon conditions; nor are there any provisions regulating the discretion of the Court in withholding it; and, finally, the Court cannot revoke a discharge, however improperly or fraudulently it may have been obtained. It is, therefore, proposed to adapt the provisions of the English law, which enable the Courts, on specified conditions, to exercise a discrimination in granting or postponing relief; to declare, at the same time, that the relief, when granted, will absolve the debtor from all claims provable in insolvency with the exception of those due to the Crown or tainted with fraud; and to render the discharged insolvent subject to the wholesome restraint of knowing that, if he fails to render proper assistance in satisfying the claims against him, he is liable to forfeit his discharge.

In sub-clause (4) (d) of clause 35 the English procedure has been materially modified.

Clauses 36 and 37.—The absence of any power to remove the stigma of insolvency, either because the declaration was improper or because the liabilities have been satisfied in full, sets a premium upon any honest endeavour on the part of a debtor to rehabilitate his character. It seems desirable, therefore, that the terms of section 35 of the English Statute should be embodied, the same publicity being given to the annulment as to the declaration.

Clause 38.—It seems necessary to make some provision for concurrent proceedings. The clause gives power to either Court to annul the adjudication order made by it, on proof that another Court can more conveniently deal with the matter.

Clause 42.—As usual, the question of appeals presents features of no inconsiderable difficulty. The solution here suggested is, first, to subordinate to the District Court all other Insolvency Courts; secondly, to follow the English Statute of 1883 so far as to give an appeal from all orders of subordinate Courts to the District Court, whose appellate order should, however, be final; thirdly, to limit strictly to particular clauses of orders the right of appeal from orders made by a District Court otherwise than in appeal; and, fourthly, for this purpose to treat as a District Court any subordinate Court to which the District Court may have transferred an appeal (see note to clause 3, supra).

Clause 43.—A clause of this description is necessary because the Code of Civil Procedure requires the deposit of diet-money in the case of detention in the civil prison, but would not, as is contemplated by the Bill, render mere creditors liable for such charges.

Clause 44 confers on High Courts powers to make rules for carrying into effect the provisions of the Act. These powers are subject to the same sanction as is required in the case of rules made under the Indian High Courts Act, 1861, and under Chapter XLIX of the Code of Civil Procedure.

Clause 45 gives power to all Courts having insolvency jurisdiction under the Act to enforce the orders of other Courts having like jurisdiction.

Act IV

5. After section 42 of the said Act the following section shall be inserted, namely:

"42A.(1) With the sanction of the Governor General in Council, the Directors may at any time enter into negotiations for and purchase and take over the capital, assets and business of any other Bank in British India, of which the capital is divided into shares, and may grant and allot to the shareholders or proprietors in such Bank in full of their respective Provided always that the business so purchased shall after the purchase be carried on by the Bank with, and subject to, the several restrictions contained in this Act."

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to relax certain restrictions on the powers under which the Presidency Banks transact their banking business. The law, as originally formulated in the Presidency Banks Act, 1876 (XI of 1876), has been modified by two Acts, namely, the Presidency Banks Act, 1879 (V of 1879), which empowered the Banks to borrow in India, and the Presidency Banks Act, 1899 (XX of 1899), which enabled the Banks to deal in the securities of the Bombay Improvement Trust. Experience has shewn that further extensions of the powers of the Banks are now required, the most important of the suggestions to which it is proposed to give effect being that the Banks should be permitted to deal in the securities of State-aided railways and District Boards; that the Ceylon branch of the Bank of Madras should be permitted to deal in the securities of the Government of Ceylon; that the present narrow limit upon the amount to which the Banks can allow their customers to overdraw should be enlarged; and that the period for which the Banks may grant loans and advances should be extended from three to six months in certain cases.

2. The Notes on Clauses below indicate the amendments of the existing law proposed in the Bill.

Simla, the 27th September, 1906.

E. N. BAKER.

Notes on Clauses.

1. Clause 2 removes the maximum limit on the capital of each Bank, which is imposed by the proviso to section 14 of the existing Act.

2. Clause 3 (i) permits the Ceylon Branch of the Bank of Madras to deal in securities of the Government of Ceylon, the possible objection that transactions in these securities may involve a drain of funds from India being met by the provision that the amount of advances upon and investments in such securities shall not exceed the resources raised by the Bank in Ceylon itself.

3. Clauses 3 (ii) and 3 (iii) empower the Banks to deal in securities issued by State-aided railways, such as branch lines constructed on rebate terms, and in the securities of District Boards.

4. Clause 3 (iv).—Under section 36, clause (a), sub-clause (6), of the Act, the Banks are allowed to advance money on accepted bills of exchange and promissory notes endorsed by the payees, i.e., practically on the security of two names. Clause 3 (iv) extends this power by permitting the Banks to make advances on the joint and several promissory notes of two or more persons unconnected in business.

5. Clause 3 (v) permits the Banks to advance and lend money to Courts of Wards upon the security of estates under their management, subject to suitable restrictions.

6. Clause 3 (vi) adds a proviso consequent on clause 3 (i).

7. Clause 4 (i) extends the period for which the Banks may make loans and advances on other than personal security from three to six months.

8. Clause 4 (ii) enlarges the maximum limit on overdrafts from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 10,000.

9. Clause 5 restores to the Banks the power which was enjoyed by the Bank of Bengal under section 37 of Act IV of 1862, of taking over the capital, assets and business of any other Bank in British India, subject to the sanction of the Governor General in Council in each case.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground. The rainfall reported on any day is for 24 hours preceding 8 A.M. of that day.

No. 9 M.P.I.—The following Resolution by the Government of India in the Department of Commerce and Industry is republished for information.

M. J. SCOBIE,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 7550—7575—88, dated Simla, the 25th September 1906.

RESOLUTION—By the Govt. of India, Department of Commerce and Industry.

For some time past the organisation and work of the Telegraph Department in all its branches have been occupying the close attention of the Government of India. From the time when construction first began in 1850-51 the history of the Department covers a period of a little more than half a century, during which Telegraph Officers have rendered admirable services to the State, and have shown themselves second to none in public spirit and esprit de corps. In the Mutiny of 1857 their work was of incalculable value, and in more recent times they have again and again proved their devotion to duty and their power of overcoming the gravest physical difficulties during the Afghan War, in Burma, in frontier expeditions and in Tibet. In the less trying circumstances of the every-day work of the Department their achievements have not been less excellent. In fifty-five years the number of miles of open line has risen from nothing to 64,730, the number of miles of wire from nothing to 243,840, and the number of paid messages now exceeds ten millions in the year. Successive reductions of the charges for all classes of telegrams have placed telegraph facilities within the reach of all, and the Government of India believe that the efficiency of the service is thoroughly appreciated by the public. It is a record of which the Department may well be proud, and it may be confidently anticipated that the future will not be unworthy of the past.

2. But, if this is to be accomplished, it is essential that the Department should not be handicapped by obsolete methods or faulty organisation. The continuous growth of the Department yearly increases the strain on every branch of the service, magnifies the scale of operations, and tests the adequacy of the established methods of work and administration. The expansion of the work, which has always been rapid, has in recent years become enormous. Traffic has gone up by leaps and bounds, and with commercial and industrial development and the spread of education the rate of progress must be expected to increase in the future. The organisation which was suitable in the infancy of the Department, and has proved itself equal to the care of its vigorous youth, cannot be expected without modification to meet fully the requirements of its maturity. Mere multiplication of establishment without an effort to understand what the conditions are, and to provide for them appropriately is no remedy, and must in the end be absolutely fatal both to economy and efficiency. New conditions call for new methods, fresh problems demand appropriate solutions, and traffic on an unprecedented scale must be disposed of by other methods than have hitherto sufficed. It is for this reason that the Government of India deem it necessary to review the work of the Telegraph Department in all its branches and to examine the manner of recruitment, the mode of work and the distribution of responsibility amongst the various authorities. From the need of a periodical examination of its organisation and duties no service is exempt, and in the case of the Telegraph Department the increase of work renders it imperative that the task should be no longer postponed, if it is to do justice to the reasonable expectation of the public and to its own past history.

3. One particular respect may be mentioned in which the need for reform is specially urgent. So long as the Department was comparatively small, it could be administered conveniently and efficiently from one centre under the immediate personal control of a single head; but the time when this could be done is already past. In the year 1904, when an increase of establishment in the Director's office was applied for, the Government of India were impressed by the immense volume of the work with which the Direction was burdened, and the number and variety of the questions (some of them of the most trivial character) with which the Director-General was expected to deal. An experienced officer of the Accounts Department, Lieutenant-Colonel Waller, was deputed to inspect the head office and to formulate proposals for the relief of the head of the Department from all questions of a routine character, and all matters of minor importance, the disposal of which might safely be entrusted to subordinate authority. Lieutenant-Colonel Waller in his report entirely confirmed the impression which the Government of India had already formed that the Direction was over-burdened and in urgent need of relief, and he also drew attention to the defective organisation of the Department, by which no less than twenty-eight separate offices were immediately subordinate to the Director-General. He therefore advocated the grouping of the Telegraph divisions in several great circles of control, and the creation of a grade of officers intermediate between the Director-General and the Divisional Superintendents, to whom much larger powers could be delegated than could safely be entrusted to Superintendents. These recommendations were approved by the Government of India, and a small Departmental Committee was constituted to prepare a detailed scheme of decentralisation. The proposals of the Committee were considered to be generally suitable, but, before final orders could be passed, it became necessary to postpone a decision, until the prior question of the amalgamation of the Post Office and Telegraph Departments had been settled.

4. The decision arrived at with regard to amalgamation was made public by the Hon'ble Mr. Hewett in his speech in the Budget Debate on the 28th March 1906, and to the conclusions then expressed the Government of India adhere. Amalgamation could only be justified if it could be shown that it would result in a financial saving without loss of efficiency; or that it would secure increased efficiency with a similar standard of expenditure. The organisation of the two Departments at the present time is entirely different, and without a radical change in the Telegraph Department amalgamation could not possibly be attempted. Reorganisation must therefore in any case precede amalgamation, and may in view of the special conditions prevailing in India render it unnecessary, provided that the work of the two Departments be properly co-ordinated. In the work of co-ordination progress has already been made, and will be continued under the control of the Department of the Government of India to which both services are subordinate; and the principle that post and telegraph offices should be combined, wherever possible, should be steadily enforced. Not fusion, therefore, but co-ordination is the policy which the Government of India have adopted as suitable for the present time and as conducive under existing conditions to efficiency and economy.

5. The scheme of decentralisation submitted by the Departmental Committee provided for the constitution of six circles, each in charge of a single officer, for the delegation to these officers of large powers and for the reorganisation of the staff of the Direction and its office establishment. Some system of this kind the Government of India regard as indispensably necessary, not only in order to leave the Director-General free to devote more time to the more serious problems of administration, though the importance of this can hardly be overrated, but also to afford an opportunity to the officers of the Department to acquire a sound training in administrative work, which under the present system they have small chance of obtaining. The scheme which has been prepared has been drawn up on thoroughly sound lines, and will, the Government of India think, be found to be generally suitable, but it is not possible to proceed at once to its introduction. In certain minor respects it requires further examination in the light of what has occurred since the Committee sat. It is thought, for example, that, if possible, Telegraph and Postal Circles should be coterminous, not merely because amalgamation must remain a possibility of the future, but also because, if the system of combined offices is to be extended, it is essential to harmonious working that the jurisdictions of the various Divisions of the two Departments should not overlap.

6. But there is another and more cogent reason for postponing the introduction of the scheme. Facts which have recently come before the Government of India, and especially those elicited in the enquiries made regarding the question of amalgamation, point to the conclusion that decentralisation by itself will not suffice to place the Department on a sound basis, and that more comprehensive measures are called for. There is reason to believe that, on the one hand, highly paid officers, who have received an elaborate technical training, are sometimes employed in work of a routine character, which could equally well be performed by officers without special training, and on lower pay, while, on the other hand, the system is not fitted to turn out men with the requisite experience and training in matters where special knowledge is essential. The work done by a Telegraph Officer during the earlier stages of his career (e.g., when he is in charge of a sub-division) is exactly the same as that performed by Sub-Assistant Superintendents whose qualifications are far inferior. It would appear therefore that for sub-divisional work proper the special technical training which officers of the superior staff receive is not required. On the other hand, although Assistant Superintendents have every chance of making themselves experts in construction work, they seldom have an opportunity to acquire by practical experience a full knowledge of the vitally important matter of traffic working, nor have they been always encouraged to devote themselves to the scientific study required to qualify them for dealing with modern developments of telegraphy. It ought therefore to be considered whether the present distribution of duties amongst the higher officers of the Department might not be improved with advantageous result both to economy and efficiency. It should be decided how many officers are required for strictly scientific work, how many for construction and maintenance, and how many for traffic. To the total number thus arrived at must be added the proper proportion of junior officers, who may be considered as still under instruction, and it has to be determined how they can be most usefully employed both in the interests of the Department and with a view to their own training. The decentralisation scheme necessarily involves some readjustment of the higher appointments, and the time is opportune for a complete settlement of the whole question.

7. The organisation and duties of the Upper Subordinate Establishment are inseparably connected with those of the Superior Staff, and any radical change in the one involves some corresponding modification in the other. Sub-Assistant Superintendents are at present recruited by promotion from the ranks of the Signalling Staff; and they are employed partly in traffic work in the larger offices, partly as sub-divisional officers, and partly on construction, while a few are attached to the offices of Divisional Superintendents and Sub-divisional officers. Their duties are thus somewhat various and call for qualifications of diverse kinds, but it is not clear that they receive any systematic training to fit them for their work. The Government of India believe that considerable improvements might be effected in their recruitment and training, and that the question should be fully considered. Any scheme of reform must necessarily include a consideration of the duties which this class of officer may properly be called on to perform.

8. In an earlier paragraph reference has been made to the important bearing which a proper control over traffic working has upon the efficient and economical administration of the Department. The object for which the whole system ultimately exists is the prompt transmission of messages at as low a cost as possible, but the problems of traffic working are essentially of an administrative character, and as already pointed out, Telegraph Officers have not at present sufficient facilities for becoming experts in this particular. Experience in other countries has shown that, when the increase of messages reaches a certain stage, it is absolutely necessary in the interests of economy to employ special officers, working directly under the head-quarters office, to make detailed examinations and to devise improvements in this branch of work. The Government of India are disposed to consider favourably the employment of special officers of this kind in India, and in order that full advantage may be taken of the experience gained elsewhere, it has been suggested that, as a beginning, an expert Traffic Officer should be obtained from England for a limited period to inspect the system in this country and to advise Government as to its improvement. The Government of India are inclined to believe that the introduction of new ideas by this means would prove advantageous to the Department, but it will suffice at present merely to note the suggestion as one which should be further considered.

9. Intimately connected with Traffic Administration is the question of the organisation of the Signalling Establishment. This question was considered by the departmental committee which sat in 1904, and definite proposals were submitted to Government; but the difficulties connected with the subject are very great, and no final decision has yet been arrived at. Meanwhile the rapid growth of work has made further postponement a direct invitation to serious failure. In 1902-03 the increase in the total operations over the previous year was 5 per cent, in 1903-04, 7·6 per cent., in 1904-05, 24·17 per cent. (this enormous rise being no doubt due to the reduction in the rates) and in 1905-06, 14·97 per cent. Nor is there any reason to think that the movement has spent its force. Large additions have from time to time been made to the Signalling Establishment, but it is obvious that, unless the Department is to be worked at a loss, the process cannot be continued indefinitely. The growth of work must be partly met by a rise in efficiency, and an improvement in the outturn of the individual signaller. That the present average outturn in spite of some improvement which has taken place recently, is far below what it might be, and is absurdly low when compared with the results obtained in other countries does, not admit of doubt. The Government of India understand that in Belgium telegraphists serving on a line constantly worked can produce on the Morse apparatus thirty or thirty-five telegrams an hour, and that smart operators may do even forty-five and fifty. In England the standard average of twenty-four telegrams per operator per hour is insisted on, and if that is not reached explanations are called for. On some circuits of course the rate goes below twenty-four, but on a constantly fed main wire a standard of forty or fifty messages an hour is frequently attained. In India the average outturn in combined and departmental offices together do not amount to six messages per hour, while from figures submitted by the Director-General it appears that in fourteen of the principal Departmental offices the average outturn per diem amounted in 1905 to fifty-six messages per man or seven per hour. It is possible that widely different conditions may make the English standard impossible of attainment in India, but that an improvement can and ought to be made is clear.

10. In order to improve the outturn of work a system has been tentatively introduced in some of the larger offices, by which all signallers, who exceed a certain minimum number of messages in a day, receive additional remuneration in proportion to the excess number of messages disposed of. From this system of "pie money" or from some similar system, the Government of India look for important results. When a signaller's earnings are directly dependent on the amount of work he does, it is reasonable to expect that he will exert himself and endeavour to do his best. On the other hand, when the idle and industrious are paid alike, no man has any motive to do more than his neighbour, and an inevitable tendency exists for all to sink to the same dead level of production. The "pie money" system has already produced a decided improvement where it has been brought into force, but there are a number of details which cannot be settled without further examination, e.g., the standard number of messages which a signaller may fairly be expected to attain before extra emolument is earned, and the precise form of the system which will be best suited to the needs of the Department. It will be necessary to consider how far signallers should be remunerated by fixed salaries and how far by earnings proportionate to the amount of work done. A scheme by which all signallers would receive a fixed subsistence allowance, and additional remuneration for each message despatched, would have distinct advantages, for the earnings of every man beyond the fixed minimum would be automatically regulated by the amount of work done, and signallers would have every incentive to exert themselves to the utmost. An additional advantage would be that the present cumbrous and inconvenient classification of signallers as Superior, Good, Average and Indifferent would be got rid of and the necessity for periodical testing examinations removed. The Government of India are unable to say at present how far it would be safe to go in this direction, but the matter merits full investigation.

11. There are other questions connected with the organisation of the Signalling Establishment besides that of the mode of remuneration. It has been found increasingly difficult to obtain recruits in sufficient numbers, or of the standard of physique and education which is desirable, and it appears clear that an effort must be made to widen the field of recruitment. Two measures have been suggested with this object, of which one aims at the reduction of the number of general service men in the Department (i.e., those liable to service in any part of India), and the establishment at the Presidency towns, and possibly at some other large centres, of purely local non-pensionable services, while the other contemplates the employment of female telegraphists. Both these suggestions are worthy of serious consideration, and it may, the Government of India think, be possible to give effect to them.

Finally, the rate of expansion which has prevailed recently in the Department has forced on the notice of Government the necessity of devising some scheme for the automatic increase of establishment in proportion to the actual increase of traffic, provision being made for the increase of controlling establishment in defined proportion to the increase in lower grades. Government are not always in a good position to decide whether an increase is required or not, and so far as possible the system should be made self-regulating, if this can be done with due regard to the interest of economy.

12. In connection with the relations of the Telegraph Department to the Post Office allusion has already been made to the question of combined offices. This is a matter which the Government of India regard as of the greatest importance to economical administration. They consider that the principle of combining Post and Telegraph offices wherever possible should be steadily enforced; new departmental offices should be opened only when the necessity cannot be avoided, while in the case of existing offices, it should be considered to what extent combination can be effected. It will be necessary however to examine the matter carefully, and to lay down the principles which should regulate the policy of Government in dealing with individual cases.

In another respect the relations of the two Departments might be closer, viz., the accounts system. In most European countries, though the extent to which the Departments are amalgamated varies, it has been found possible and desirable to effect a complete combination of the accounts administration. It is not possible to say at present whether this would be practicable in India, and whether the advantages to be derived from the amalgamation, if feasible, are sufficient to make the change advisable. But the Government of India consider that the matter should be fully investigated.

13. The questions which have been raised in the foregoing paragraphs are of very considerable importance, and demand full examination. The Government of India have therefore decided to appoint a Committee to consider them and certain other minor matters which have not been specifically referred to, and to advise Government as to the course which should be followed. The Committee will consist of the following gentlemen :—

President :

SIR LEWIS TUPPER, K.C.I.R., C.S.I., I.C.S.

Members :

MR. L. A. S. PORTER, C.S.I., I.C.S.

„ E. A. LEACH, Indian Telegraph Department,
Deputy Director-General of Telegraphs.

„ W. MAXWELL, I.C.S., Postmaster-General, Punjab.

„ R. O. LEES, Indian Telegraph Department.

„ P. T. R. KELLNER, Public Works Department, Accounts.

Secretary :

MR. G. RAINY, I.C.S.

14. The points which the Committee will investigate are the following :—

- (1) Whether the scheme of decentralisation drawn up by the Departmental Committee of 1904 may be adopted as it stands, or whether any, and if so what, modifications are necessary.
- (2) What alterations should be made in the staff and office establishment of the Direction, if the decentralisation scheme is adopted.
- (3) Whether the existing organisation of the Superior Staff of the Department and the distribution of the work is satisfactory, and if not, what alterations should be made : in particular whether a clearer distinction should be made between (a) administration traffic and inspection on the one hand, and (b) construction and engineering on the other.
- (4) Whether the existing system of recruitment, training and duties of the Upper Subordinate establishment is satisfactory, and if not, what changes should be made.
- (5) Whether an expert Traffic Officer should be brought out from England to examine the traffic working of the Department and to make suggestions for its improvement.

NOTE.—If the Committee find they are in a position to recommend the immediate appointment of an expert they should submit detailed proposals to Government at as early a date as possible in anticipation of their report.

- (6) What measures should be taken to promote closer and more intimate relations between the Post Office and the Telegraph Department in the matter of combined offices, and what principles should govern (a) the opening of new departmental offices, and (b) the combining of offices already separate.
- (7) Whether the accounts and audit system of the Telegraph Department should be amalgamated with that of the Post Office.
- (8) Whether any, and if so what, changes are required in the existing organisation of the Check Office in view of the expansion of message traffic, and in particular
 - (a) Whether any part of the work can be transferred to any Accounts Department, and
 - (b) Whether any part of the work can be decentralised and transferred to the circle officers whom it is proposed to create.
- (9) What changes should be made to improve the existing organization of the signalling establishment and in particular—
 - (a) Whether strictly local and non-pensionable services should be formed in the Presidency towns and other large centres.
 - (b) Whether female signallers should be employed in the Department, and if so, to what extent and under what restrictions.

- (c) What alterations should be made in the present mode of classification and remuneration of signallers, and to what extent their earnings should be regulated by their actual outturn of work by the general introduction of 'pie-money' or some similar system.
- (10) Whether a scheme can be devised for the automatic increase of the signalling establishment in proportion to the actual increase in traffic, the strength of the controlling establishment being increased in fixed proportion to the increase in the lower grades.
- (11) Whether any, and if so what, changes are called for in the existing stores system of the Telegraph Department.
- (12) Whether it is advisable to decentralize the work of the Department to a larger extent in great cities.

The Committee are not limited by the terms of the reference to the specific questions indicated, but are free to take up any matter connected with the main object of their appointment, which is to submit proposals for the improved organisation of the Indian Telegraph Department in all its branches. Any defects in working or suggestions for improvements which may come to their notice should be carefully considered, and so far as necessary, appropriate proposals should be made.

15. The Committee, or as many of their number as are able to take up their duties by that date, will assemble at Simla on the 28th September. From the first of November onwards the head-quarters of the Committee will be at Calcutta, but from two to three months will be spent on tour. The members will visit important mercantile cities and other places at their discretion, where their enquiries and inspections are likely to be useful. The Government of India trust that Local Governments will afford them all the assistance which they may require, and comply with any requests for information and advice which may be addressed to them by the Committee through their Secretary. In addition to Telegraph officials the Committee will be at liberty to take the evidence of members of mercantile firms by which the telegraph is largely used, who may be willing to give evidence as also of officers in Government offices who have any considerable experience of the despatch and receipt of telegrams. The Committee should submit its report in six months or earlier if practicable.

ORDERED that a copy of this Resolution be forwarded to all Local Governments and Administrations, to the Home, Finance and Public Works Departments, to the Director-General of the Post Office in India, to the Director-General of Telegraphs and to the President and members of the Committee.

ORDERED also that it be published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India for general information.

RULES FOR THE CONFIRMATION AND PROMOTION OF OFFICERS OF THE EXECUTIVE BRANCH OF THE PROVINCIAL CIVIL SERVICE AND OF THE SUBORDINATE CIVIL SERVICE.

No. 3297A.—D.

RESOLUTION.

APPOINTMENT DEPARTMENT.

Darjeeling, the 29th September 1906.

HEAD—

Government of Bengal, Appointment Department, Resolution No. 369, dated the 31st January 1868, laying down certain rules under which officers of the uncovenanted services are required to pass the Departmental Examinations.

Government of Bengal, Appointment Department, Resolution No. 3111A., dated the 4th July 1892, prescribing the conditions under which Sub-Deputy Collectors are required to pass the Departmental Examinations.

Government of Bengal, Appointment Department, Notification No. 3322A., dated the 28th May 1895, publishing the Rules for the conduct of the Departmental Examinations.

Government of Bengal, Appointment Department, Resolution No. 5649A., dated the 26th December 1904, and the Rules issued thereunder for regulating the appointment of members of the Provincial Executive Service and of the Subordinate Civil Service.

Government of Bengal, Appointment Department, Notification No. 2517A.—D., dated the 20th July 1905, revising Rule 4 in Appendix V of the Departmental Examination Rules.

It has come to the notice of the Lieutenant-Governor that the rules under which officers of the Executive Branch of the Provincial Civil Service and of the Subordinate Civil Service are confirmed in the lowest grade and promoted to higher grades with respect to the time of their passing the Departmental Examinations are not generally understood. The orders issued from time to time as referred to in the preamble, though clear in regard to the matter of confirmation in the abovementioned services, do not lay down any definite rules as regards the penalty which the Government may find it necessary to inflict in order to prevent unwarrantable delays or repeated failures in passing the Departmental Examinations. His Honour considers it therefore advisable to issue distinct orders on the points noticed above.

2. The following rules are accordingly laid down for the guidance of the officers of the Executive Branch of the Provincial Civil Service and of the Subordinate Civil Service:—

(1) An officer will not be confirmed in the lowest grade, or in any other grade to which he may have been appointed, or be promoted substantively pro tempore from the lowest grade or that to which he was on first appointment admitted, to the next grade in the cadre of his service, until he has passed the Departmental Examinations by the Lower Standard.

(2) All officers who may be eligible for confirmation or promotion under the preceding rule will, unless considered unfit for promotion or confirmation for other reasons, be confirmed or promoted in order of seniority if vacancies are available. All officers who are confirmed or promoted will be placed above any of their seniors who may not be found qualified for confirmation or promotion; but an officer will not otherwise be entitled to supersede his seniors by reason merely of his having passed the Departmental Examinations before them.

Illustration.—Five officers, A, B, C, D and E, are appointed substantively pro tempore to the fifth grade of the cadre of the Subordinate Civil Service in January, February, March, April and May 1906, respectively. C passes the Lower Standard in May 1906, while the others do not. When promotions are made in September 1906, C, being otherwise fit, is confirmed and placed above A and B. In November 1906, D passes the Lower Standard, and in May 1907 A, B and E pass the same standard. Promotions are next made in September 1907. All the four officers, A, B, D and E, if otherwise fit, will then be confirmed in order of seniority, i.e., in this order, and D will not be entitled to pass over A and B on account of his having passed earlier.

(3) Officers of the Subordinate Civil Service who have been promoted to the Executive Branch of the Provincial Civil Service after having passed the Departmental Examinations will ordinarily not be held eligible for confirmation under Rule (1) till officers appointed to the latter service at the same time or before them have had a reasonable opportunity of passing the Lower Standard. They will ordinarily have to wait one year. This is the general rule, but each case will be considered on its merits to prevent hardship in individual cases.

Illustration.—A and B are appointed Probationary Deputy Collectors in October 1906 in this order. B is an officer who has been promoted from the Subordinate Civil Service and has passed his Departmental Examinations; A was appointed direct. In May 1907 they are both appointed sub pro tem. Deputy Collectors of the eighth grade. In the Departmental Examinations of May 1907, A fails. Promotions and confirmations are made in September. A not having passed, cannot be confirmed in the eighth grade, nor will B, as A has not had a reasonable opportunity of passing his examinations. In November 1907 A fails again. Promotions and confirmations are next made in January 1908. A will not be confirmed but B will, if fit and there are vacancies, be confirmed and supersede A.

(4) An officer will not be confirmed in the next grade to that to which he was on first appointment admitted, until he has passed completely by both standards of the Departmental Examinations.

(5) All officers who may be eligible for confirmation under the preceding rule will, unless considered unfit for confirmation for other reasons, be confirmed in order of seniority if vacancies are available. All officers who are confirmed will be placed above any of their seniors who may not be found qualified for confirmation; but an officer will not otherwise be entitled to supersede his seniors merely by reason of his having passed the Departmental Examinations before them.

Illustration.—Five officers, A, B, C, D and E, are promoted substantively pro tempore to the seventh grade of the cadre of the Provincial Civil Service in January, February, March, April and May 1906, respectively. C passes the Higher Standard in May 1906, while the others do not. When promotions are made in September 1906, C, being otherwise fit, is confirmed in the seventh grade and placed above A and B. In November 1906, D passes the Higher Standard, and in May 1907, A, B and E pass the same standard. Promotions are next made in September 1907. All the four officers, A, B, D and E, if otherwise fit, will then be confirmed in order of seniority, ie, in this order, and D will not be entitled to pass over A and B on account of his having passed earlier.

(6) If, after passing completely by both standards, an officer becomes liable, by reason of his transfer, to pass in a vernacular language in which he has not already passed, his promotion will be regulated in accordance with the provisions of Rule 4 (ii) in Appendix V of the Departmental Examination Rules.

N.B.—It must be distinctly understood that orders in this Resolution have reference only to the result of examinations. Special promotion may be given by Government to officers who deserve it for specially meritorious services.

ORDER.—Ordered that copies of this Resolution be forwarded to the Secretaries to the Board of Revenue, Land and Miscellaneous Revenue Departments; to all Commissioners of Divisions; to all Deputy Magistrates and Deputy Collectors, and to all Sub-Deputy Collectors, for information.

Ordered also that a copy be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

R. W. CARLYLE,
Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE BHADOI CROPS OF BENGAL, 1906.

The following note is published for general information.

R. W. CARLYLE,

Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The 16th October 1906.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE Bhadoi CROPS OF BENGAL, 1906.

[On an average of five years ending 1904-05 the area under autumn rice in the territory to which this forecast relates has represented some 6·4 per cent. of the total area under this crop in British India.]

Explunatory.—This forecast relates to the 33 districts including Sambalpur which now constitute this Province since the creation of the new Province of Eastern Bengal and Assam.

The most important bhadoi crop is autumn rice. A good deal of maize, marua and jowar is grown in Bihar and Chota Nagpur, but these crops are practically unknown in the Presidency, Burdwan, and Orissa Divisions. Of the non-food crops the most important is jute, to which, however, a separate forecast is devoted. Cotton and bhadoi til are also excluded from this forecast for a similar reason.

Character of the season.—The whole of April and the early portion of May were very dry. This retarded sowings in the Presidency and Burdwan Divisions, where the sowing season is early. The rainfall later on was insufficient in almost every district in the Burdwan and Orissa Divisions. On the other hand, Bihar has been visited by disastrous floods. Nadia, Murshidabad, Jessore, and Hooghly have also suffered more or less severely from floods. Khulna and the 24 Parganas have suffered to some extent from insect pests. Chota Nagpur is the only Division where the prospects are satisfactory. On the whole, the season has been very unfavourable.

Area sown.—The revised normal area under the crops dealt with in this forecast stands at 9,731,200 acres. The actual area sown this year is 8,887,600 acres against 9,054,800 acres shown last year.

Outturn.—The outturn of the bhadoi crops according to the District Officer's estimates comes only to 70 per cent. of a normal crop for the entire Province against 72 per cent. last year. Only three districts, viz., Gaya, Hazaribagh, and Ranchi show a normal outturn (100). Five districts return an outturn from 90 to 99 per cent. of a normal crop; five other districts return from 80 to 89 per cent.; eight from 70 to 79, and four from 60 to 69; while in the remaining eight the outturn is below 60 per cent., viz., Nadia 59, Saran 59, Purnea 51, Murshidabad 59, Champaran 49, Darbhanga 29, Monghyr 26, and Muzaffarpur 23 per cent.

I think that in many cases the District Officer's estimates are too low, and that on the whole 75 per cent. of a normal outturn may safely be expected.

Director of Agriculture, Bengal.

*The total area of the district has been reduced from 1,191 square miles to 1,189-4 square miles owing to the transfer of 3 villages to Burdwan side Government Notification No. 3341 - R., dated 4th May 1906. A larger area of autumn rice was sown this year as compared with the previous year, but as the crops are being damaged by floods on the dhadoi lands, a better outturn is not expected.

The weather has been generally favourable and the condition of the crops fair. The date of sowing was rather early.

Want of timely rain in April and in the first part of May and damage by insects account for the decrease in the estimated areas and low outturns of all the crops except "other bhadoi non-food crops" which shows a slight increase in the estimated percentage of outturn.

		Bajra	500	...	400	...	64	June.	The decrease in the area sown is due to the cultivation of a very large portion of the bhadol paddy lands with jute which is found to be much more profitable than paddy. Sofra and wandua have been reported for the first time this year.

		Autumn rice	371,900	363,500	336,900	87	70	14th May 1906.	The sowing of autumn rice was late this year owing to want of rain. The general condition of the crop was very favourable and the outturn would have been satisfactory but for the damage caused lately by the sudden floods. Jute has encroached upon the lands previously occupied by autumn rice.

Weather and general condition of the crops fair, except in Sakthira where damage to some extent has been done by insects. Want of sufficient rain in time has affected the outturn of the crops. The revised normal area as reported in this office No. 744, dated 18th June 1906, has been shown in column 5; hence the difference from last year's figures. The normal area under autumn rice has been further revised to 45,900. The sowing was a little late this year. The rainfall was somewhat irregular, sometimes continuous and excessive and sometimes there was cessation for many days. This has affected the yield. Dhara crops were damaged by floods.

FINAL FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP IN BEGAL,

The following note is published for general information.

R. W. CARLYLE,

Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The 16th October 1906.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

FINAL FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP OF BENGAL, 1906.

[On an average of the five years ending 1904-05, the area under jute crop in the territory to which this forecast relates has represented some 15·4 per cent. of the total area under jute crop in British India.]

Explanatory.—As mentioned in the Preliminary Forecast out of the 27 districts with which the jute forecasts dealt with in previous years, 13 have been transferred to the new Province of Eastern Bengal and Assam. At present, therefore, only 14 jute-growing districts are left in the Province. Under the orders of the Government of India, the preliminary forecast only gave the estimated acreage sown, it being too early then (July) to give an estimate of the outturn; but this final forecast gives not only the acreage but also an estimate of the outturn in bales.

2. Acreage.—The following figures show the acreage sown as reported by the District Officers in their final forecasts in the four preceding years in respect of the 14 districts to which this forecast relates and the acreage reported for the current year. The acreage reported last year and that reported in the preliminary forecast of this year have been revised in certain districts:—

Year.					Acreage sown.
1902	278,100
1903	268,000
1904	705,900
1905	569,300
1906	780,400

3. Trade conditions.—The total consumption of jute from 1901 is given in the table below. It shows the total of export, mill consumption and country consumption for the entire crop grown in this Province as well as that grown in the districts now transferred to Eastern Bengal and Assam, for five years from 1901:—

Season.					Lakhs of bales.
1901	74·38
1902	65·77
1903	72·41
1904	74·00
1905	81·32

4. Weather conditions.—As reported in the preliminary forecast, April was a very dry month; fortunately, however, the drought occurred before sowings had generally been made.

After the drought of April the rainfall was generally good during May, June, and July though more or less short of the normal. This shortage, however, facilitated the operations of weeding and thinning. In August there was very good rain; in fact in some districts, the fall was exceptionally heavy. Considerable damage has been done by floods especially in the important districts of Purnea, Murshidabad, Nadia, and Jessore. In Cuttack and Balasore, on the other hand, the fall was only about half the normal.

The rainfall in the six most important jute districts from March to September from 1902 onwards is given in the table below:—

	1902.	1903.	1904.	1905.	1906.
	Includes the whole of September.				Up to 15th September.

Among the important districts, Nadia and the 24-Parganas reported some damage by insects.

5. District Returns.—(i) Area. In the preliminary forecast the area returned by the Collectors was 745,600 acres against 780,400 in the present forecast. The increase of 34,800 acres is due to revision of the area in the following districts:—

Districts.	Preliminary forecast.	Final forecast.	Difference.
Burdwan ...	15,000	16,500	+ 1,500
24-Parganas ...	89,900	93,000	+ 3,100
Nadia ...	66,700	90,000	+ 23,300
Murshidabad ...	98,500	104,800	+ 6,300
Darjeeling ...	2,400	3,000	+ 600

On the whole, I accept the area returned by the District Officers, and consider that 780,400 acres may be taken as the area under the crop in this Province in 1906, as against 569,300 acres in 1905. This latter figure differs from the

(ii) Outturn.—The district outturns work out to 80·3 per cent. of a normal crop. The outturns, however, of several districts appear to me to be under-estimated. For instance, in the case of Burdwan, as the Collector reports, the prospects to be good throughout, the percentage of outturn may be estimated at 100 instead of 95. In the 24-Parganas, again, as the general condition and prospect are reported to be good, 95 per cent. has been taken, as the damage from insects is not expected to exceed 5 per cent. In the case of Jessore, there seems good reason to increase the estimated percentage of outturn from 75 to 80; and enquiry leads to the conclusion that the Cuttack estimated percentage of outturn may be raised to 90. The Collector of Purnea also notes that his estimate of outturn may possibly be pessimistic. On the whole, I think the estimated percentage of outturn for the fourteen districts of this Province may safely be put at 82 on the average.

60. Estimate.—Calculating an outturn of three bales as a normal outturn per acre, an outturn of 82 per cent. on an area of 780,400 acres should represent 1,911,700 bales in round figures.

Not included in the above—are the figures for Eastern Bengal and Assam, Cooch Bihar, Nipal, and Upper India. The Cooch Bihar State has not up to date communicated figures for the current season in spite of telegraphic reminders.

7. Consolidated forecast for the two Provinces of Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam—

Year.	Estimated acreage under jute.	Estimated outturn in bales.
1905 ...	3,128,300 (a)	8,088,093 (a)
1906 ...	3,336,400 (b)	8,736,220 (b)

(a) Revised figures.

(b) These figures do not include the figures for Cooch Bihar, Nipal, Madras and Upper India. Last year's figures were as follows:—

	Bales.
Cooch Bihar	52,800
Nipal	64,302
From Upper India via East Indian Railway ...	26,289
From station outside Bengal via Bengal Nagpur Railway	4,257

A considerable increase may be expected in these figures for the current year.

A small area of jute has been cultivated in North Bihar this year. A few thousand bales only may be expected from this source.

(a) Weather was on the whole favourable to the jute crop. In Baraset the sowings were late for want of rains in the early part of the year. (b) The general condition and prospects of the crop are good. (c) The increase in the estimated area sown as compared with that of last year is due to more land having been put under jute in consequence of the large profit derived from it last year. Damage by insects is reported from Basirhat and Baraset subdivisions, hence the output of this year is a somewhat below the normal.

SUMMARY OF THE RAINFALL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL FOR THE MONTH OF SEPTEMBER 1906.

The most striking feature in the rainfall of September 1906 was the partial break in the rains throughout the Province from the 15th to the 24th. The rainfall was deficient in all the districts with the exception of Nadia and Jessore (in South-West Bengal), Gaya (in Bihar), Balasore (in Orissa) and Singhbhum (in Chota Nagpur), where it was in slight excess. The rainfall of the month was thus, more or less, of a local character. Expressed in percentage figures, the districts of Nadia and Jessore received 123 and 121 per cent. respectively, Balasore 116 per cent. and Singhbhum 125 per cent. From the abstract percentage table, it will be seen that South-West Bengal received 83 per cent., Bihar 49 per cent., Orissa 78 per cent. and Chota Nagpur 83 per cent. The total rainfall from January to the end of September 1906 was 92 per cent. of the normal in South-West Bengal, 97 per cent. in Bihar, 82 per cent. in Orissa, and 95 per cent. in Chota Nagpur. Full details of the rainfall registered at each rainfall station in each district of Bengal are given in the accompanying table, day by day, for the month.

The following table compares the rainfall in the four Divisions during the month of September with the normal fall, the actual being given as a percentage of the normal. The table also shows the actual falls for each of the previous months of the year, expressed in the same way, and the last column of the table shows the total rainfall of the past nine months of the year :—

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from eye observations.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed at the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground. The rainfall reported on any day is for 24 hours preceding 8 A.M. of that day.

Δ, dew; o, overcast; t, thunder; p, passing temporary showers.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

The objects of this Bill are—

- (1) while, on the one hand, giving landlords greater facilities for the collection of their rents yet, on the other, to discourage their evading the provisions of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, with regard to the enhancement of rent by entering into unfair, inequitable and collusive compromises with their tenants;
- (2) to give greater authority to the record-of-rights, when such record has been duly prepared and published;
- (3) to give power to Government to distinguish between good and bad landlords, and to take steps in the case of the latter for the reduction of rents, when they appear to have been so unduly enhanced as to be oppressive to the cultivators of the soil, and
- (4) to revise the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885, to the extent of removing such defects in it as the working of the Act during the past twenty years has brought to light, and such ambiguities and anomalies as have given rise to conflict of opinion and judicial decision.

An explanation of the provisions of the Bill is given in the subjoined Notes on Clauses.

NOTES ON CLAUSES.

Clause 2.—Section 40, though repealed, is reproduced in an amended form as section 71A.

Experience has shown that the necessity to serve a notice to quit on a non-occupancy raiyat holding under a lease is often overlooked by the landlord, and that, even when served, the landlord has no means of proving service. It is therefore proposed to dispense with the notice by repeal of section 45, at the same time transferring the provision as to limitation for a suit for ejectment of a non-occupancy raiyat to Schedule III of the Act.

Clause 3.—In the ruling of the High Court, reported in I. L. R., 27 Cal., 202, it has been held that occupancy rights may accrue in those areas which have been included within the Town of Calcutta, subsequent to the passing of the Bengal Tenancy Act, 1885. It is undesirable that the Act should have any application to the Town of Calcutta, as it is now constituted, or as it may hereafter be constituted under any future extension or modification of its boundaries. The proposed Explanation to section 1 (3) of the Act will remove any doubts on the subject. The amendment projected in clause 7 of the Bill will prevent rights of occupancy already acquired, or acquired prior to a future extension of the Act, being affected.

Clause 4.—The object of this clause is so to widen the definition of rent as to make it clear that rent includes interest on arrears and cesses. Tenures and holdings can, under the existing law, only be sold free of incumbrances for arrears of rent, and, under the present definition and the High Court's ruling in Kailash Chandra Dey versus Tarak Nath Mandal (I. L. R., 25 Cal., 571), interest is not rent. It is apprehended that this ruling may give rise to difficulties in practice. A landlord's claim in a rent-suit almost invariably includes cesses and interest on arrears. It is to the interest of landlords and tenants alike that the law regarding the recovery of arrears of rent should be as simple as possible, and that rent, interest and cesses, lawfully due, should be recoverable by a single proceeding.

Clauses 5 and 6.—The working of sections 12 to 17 of the present Act, relating to the transfer of permanent tenures, is not satisfactory. They induce tenants to register transfers of tenures which are not really permanent, in the hope that the acceptance of the fee by the landlord will operate as an admission of the permanence and transferability of the tenure. The landlords, on the other hand, are reluctant to accept the fees, and the result is that a very large amount of unclaimed fees has accumulated in different districts in the province. This state of things is not only a source of embarrassment to Government, but also creates doubts and difficulties in regard to the position of the transferees of tenures. It is hoped that the amendments now proposed will overcome the reluctance of landlords to accept the fees in the case of tenures which are really permanent, and that tenants will be deterred thereby from registering transfers of tenures which are not of this character.

The same considerations apply to the transfer of, and succession to, holdings at fixed rents or rates of rent, and under section 18 (a) of the Act, these are governed by the same conditions. Clauses 5 and 6 have been so framed as to make the proposed amendments applicable to the case of holdings at fixed rents or rates of rent.

There is no provision in the Act for the disposal of unclaimed fees. As these have accumulated, and in order to expedite claims to fees due, thus freeing the district establishments from much extra work, it is proposed that the Government should have power to deal with them in such manner as it thinks fit.

Clause 7.—The necessity for the amendment of section 19 is explained in the note to clause 3, supra.

Clause 8.—The object of this amendment of section 22 is to counteract the ruling of the High Court in Zuwadul Huq's case (I. L. R., 24 Cal., 143) and the Full Bench ruling in Ram Mohan Pal versus Sheikh Kaohu (I. L. R., 32 Cal., 386). These decisions lay down a rule opposed to the policy of the authors of Act VIII of 1885, which was to discourage the acquisition of occupancy holdings by landlords.

Clause 9.—This clause is consequential upon clauses 2 and 15.

Clause 10.—It seems fair that an occupancy raiyat should be allowed to apply for reduction of rent on the ground that his rent is above the prevailing rates. The proposed addition to section 38 will enable him to do so. It is inadvisable, however, that raiyats should be allowed to institute suits on such a ground, in cases where their rents have been fixed or settled by a Revenue-officer under Chapter X of the Act, or by a lawful contract or a decree of Court. The proviso has been framed for this purpose.

Clause 11.—The law, as it stands at present, contains no provision for the proof of excess area, otherwise than by evidence of its specific existence in each case, and the decisions of the Courts have not always been in accordance with the intentions of the framers of the Amendment Act of 1898, who, by adding sub-section (5) to section 52, by implication suggested that excess area may be assessed to rent, even if the landlord is unable to indicate any particular land as held in excess. The proposed modification of section 52 will allow the custom of settlement on measurement to be taken as a presumption that the area of a tenure or holding mentioned in the landlord's papers has been ascertained by actual measurement, and thus make it easier for the landlords to prove the existence of excess area.

Clause 12.—The provisions of the Tenancy Act regarding the issue of proper rent receipts by landlords are very generally disregarded in certain parts of the Province. It is considered necessary to take more active measures to enforce them. At present the provisions of section 58 can only be set in motion on the complaint of the tenant and are practically inoperative. It is proposed, therefore, to give the Collector power to take action on reports received from Revenue or Judicial officers, who will be required to bring to the Collector's notice any breaches of the law which come to their knowledge. The power to require payment of compensation to the landlord will, it is hoped, to a large extent debar the bringing of false and vexatious complaints. In cases where the complaint is substantiated, the Collector should be empowered to award compensation to the tenant on the same scale as is provided in section 58 (1) and (2), and where compensation is so awarded by the Collector, the tenant should not be allowed to sue the landlord in the Civil Court for any penalty. It is inadvisable that tenants should be able to obtain damages in two different Courts; the amendments proposed will be sufficient to safeguard their rights and to secure obedience to the law.

Clause 13.—One of the main objects of the Bill is to give landlords greater facilities for collecting their rents. It is to a great extent owing to multi fide denials of the landlord's title that ordinary rent-suits have in so many cases become complicated and protracted title suits. The proposed new section 68A will, it is hoped, be very effectual in preventing tenants from attempting to evade payment by the setting up of false titles, while at the same time protecting those who may have acted bona fide.

Clause 14.—The proposed addition to section 69 will prevent the powers of distraint at present enjoyed by landlords being rendered ineffectual. It is a common device of the tenants, as soon as the landlord applies to the Civil Court for distraint of their crops, to apply to the Collector for orders of appraisement under section 69. The Collector then prohibits the removal of the crops; so the landlords cannot prosecute their applications to distraint. The new sub-section is intended to defeat such devices.

Clause 15.—This clause transfers the provisions regarding the commutation of produce rents to a more appropriate place in the Act, and reproduces the present section 40 with certain modifications. Under section 40, only occupancy raiyats are allowed to apply for commutation. It seems reasonable that the same privilege should be conferred on all classes of raiyats. Under section 40 (2) the application may be made "to an officer making a settlement of rents under Chapter X." This phrase has given rise to difficulties in practice, as where a settlement of land revenue is not being or is not about to be made, settlement of rents does not take place until after final publication. It is therefore proposed to modify the sub-section with the object of allowing applications for commutation to be filed before any officer making a survey and record-of-rights under Chapter X.

Clause 16.—The ruling reported in I. L. R. 25 Calc., 531, has given rise to doubts as to the circumstances, in which consent to the division of a tenure or holding, or distribution of the rent payable in respect thereof, may be inferred from the conduct of the landlord. The amendment will make it clear that the landlord is only bound by an express consent in writing given by himself or a duly authorised agent. The ordinary practice, however, is for the landlord to signify his consent to the division of a tenure or holding and distribution of the rent payable, by making the necessary alteration in his rent-roll, and it is accordingly provided that where such an alteration has been made, it may be presumed that the landlord has given his express consent to the division.

Clause 17.—The words "a large proportion of the landlords or of the tenants" in section 101 (2) (a) are vague and have given rise to differences of interpretation. It is desirable that the proportion of landlords or tenants, who may apply for a survey and record-of-rights, should be more clearly defined; one-fourth has been adopted as a reasonable proportion. It is always open to the Government to grant or refuse such an application if it should think fit, and the Government has also the full discretion in regard to the apportionment of the costs of the operations under section 114. In the case of co-sharer landlords, either a fourth of the total number, or a co-sharer or co-sharers representing a fourth of the total interests, should be permitted to apply. There is sometimes difficulty in getting co-sharers to join in such applications, and it is thought equitable that a considerable minority, such as one-fourth should be permitted to submit an application for the consideration of the Government.

The addition to section 101 (2) (c) made by the clause will enable a survey and record-of-rights to be made in the case of an estate placed under a Manager appointed by the District Judge under section 95. The proper management of such estates will often be greatly facilitated by survey and the preparation of a record-of-rights. It seems reasonable that they should be placed on the same footing as estates taken over by the Court of Wards.

It has been held that Explanation 1 to section 101 (2) (d), read with section 104 (a), renders it necessary to settle fair and equitable rents for tenants of every class, whenever a survey and record-of-rights is made in respect of a Government estate or tenure. This course is ordinarily adopted, but it is sometimes found inconvenient. The addition to the explanation therefore provides that it shall not be necessary to settle the rents of tenants of every class in a Government estate or tenure, when it does not appear to the Government to be expedient to do so.

Clause 18.—It has been the practice in most surveys and records-of-rights made within recent years to include among the particulars entered in the record-of-rights, a record of the rights and obligations of landlords and tenants with regard to the use of water for agricultural purposes. Conflicting opinions have been given by the legal advisers of the Government, as to whether such a record can be made under the present section 102. Such records have been found useful in areas in which irrigation is a matter of importance; this clause, therefore, is intended to authorize the making of such records in future, and also to place beyond doubt the validity of those which have already been made.

Clause 19.—The object of this clause is to give the Local Government power to make a record of the rights and obligations of landlord and tenant in regard to the use of water for agricultural purposes, independently of a general record-of-rights under section 101, when such a course appears necessary for the purpose of settling or averting disputes.

Clause 20.—This clause modifies the present section 103B, with the object of defining more clearly the weight to be attached to the entries in a finally published record-of-rights and to facilitate the proof of final publication. At present, difficulties are sometimes raised in the Appellate Courts owing to the certificate of final publication not having been produced in the Original Court, because the due publication of the record was not disputed there. There may also be difficulty in furnishing the necessary certificate, if it is called for, after the settlement operations have been concluded and the Revenue Officer has left the district. It is therefore proposed that the record-of-rights shall be presumed to have been finally published, unless this is expressly denied, and that a certificate signed by the Revenue Officer or by the Collector of the district, stating that the record-of-rights has been finally published, shall be conclusive evidence of such publication. It is also proposed to make the provisions of the section applicable to all suits and proceedings in which the record-of-rights may be produced.

Sub-section (2) of the proposed new section 103B, will obviate the necessity of producing a certificate regarding the final publication in every case in which there is a dispute.

Clause 21.—The amendment cures a defect in the wording of the heading of the Part, which does not deal with the decision of disputes.

Clause 22.—In settling rents under section 105 the existing rent, which, under section 105(4), is presumed to be fair and equitable, should be taken as the starting point; but frequently, owing to disputes between landlord and tenant, it is impossible to ascertain the existing rent. It is therefore desirable that a Settlement Officer acting under section 105 should have authority to fix rents in accordance with a table of rates, such as may be used in proceedings under section 104A, in cases where such a course is practicable and expedient.

Clause 23.—This clause is intended to rectify what was apparently an oversight in the Amendment Act of 1898. Under section 107 (2), the Revenue Officer is required to make in the record-of-rights a note of all rents settled under section 105 and of all decisions of disputes under section 106, and this note is declared to be a part of the record. There is no corresponding provision as to the entry of orders passed regarding such rents or disputes, on revision under section 108, or on appeal under section 109A. It is clearly advisable that a note of such revisional or appellate orders should be made in the record, in order to make the record complete. The clause provides for this being done. As appeals are frequently not decided till after the Settlement Officer has left the district, the proposed section abstains from prescribing by what officer the note of the revisional or appellate decision shall be made. The Government or the Board of Revenue will have power to prescribe this by rules made under the Act or by executive order.

Clause 24.—The object of this clause is to empower Revenue Officers making a record-of-rights under Chapter X to refrain from giving effect to illegal and inequitable compromises, and to make it obligatory on them to disregard compromises regarding the enhancement of rents by contract between landlord and tenant, if they contravene the provisions of section 29 of the Act. A large number of illegal and inequitable compromises regarding rent, status and other matters have been filed in the course of the settlement operations now being carried on throughout the Province, and Government has declared that it cannot consent to Revenue Officers being compelled to give effect to them in framing the record-of-rights. The necessity for adopting some such provision has been forced upon the Government by the action of certain zamindars.

Clause 25.—This clause is intended to give effect to one of the main objects of the Bill, viz., to enable Government to take steps to reduce rents, in cases where these have been illegally enhanced, so as to be oppressive to the cultivators of the soil. It is possible that the Government has power to take such action under section 112, as it stands at present, but that section was incorporated in the Tenancy Act under a guarantee that it would be used only in cases of agrarian disturbance. Experience has shown, however, that certain landlords have been able to force illegal and oppressive rents on their tenantry, without creating any immediate agrarian disturbance. In such cases the Government proposes in future, to take action to reduce the excessive rents before any actual disturbance arises.

Clause 26.—This clause is consequential upon the amendment proposed in sub-section (1) of section 38.

Clause 27.—When a survey and record-of-rights are undertaken on the application of landlords and tenants, the costs are usually met in the first instance from deposits made by the applicants, and not from Government funds. In such cases, it is often equitable to recover a share of the expenses from the other landlords and tenants concerned, who also benefit by the preparation of the record-of-rights. The proposed omission will make clear the legality of this course.

In the course of survey and settlement operations, permanent boundary marks are erected at all points where the boundaries of three villages meet. Arrangements are made for the repair and restoration of these marks from time to time as may be necessary, after the completion of the original survey proceedings. Such marks, if properly maintained, are of great utility in preventing boundary disputes from arising, and are, in fact, a valuable adjunct to the record-of-rights. It is therefore proposed to take power to recover in advance the estimated cost of the maintenance, repair and restoration of these boundary marks for a period of fifteen years together with the cost of the preparation of the record-of-rights. The cost of maintaining the boundary marks for fifteen years will be an insignificant addition to the cost of the preparation of the record-of-rights, and it will be more convenient both to the Government and to the landlords and tenants to collect both sums simultaneously, than to have a separate proceeding for the recovery of the cost of maintenance of boundary marks. The period of fifteen years has been fixed, because this is the time for which the rents of tenures and occupancy holdings settled under Chapter X have effect under section 113.

After the preparation of a record-of-rights, it is usual to distribute copies of it, together with copies of the village maps to the landlords and tenants. No proceedings under Chapter X can be considered complete without this. In order to remove all doubt, it is proposed to provide that the cost of the preparation of these copies shall be deemed to be part of the expenses incurred in carrying out the provisions of the Chapter.

Clauses 28 and 29.—These clauses are intended to bar the accrual of occupancy and non-occupancy rights in lands acquired under the Land Acquisition Act, 1894, and the Cantonments Act, 1889, so long as they are the property of the Government or the local body or Railway Company for which they were acquired. It often happens that such lands are temporarily not required by the Government or the local body or Railway Company, but under the present law, if they are temporarily sublet to agricultural tenants, occupancy and non-occupancy rights accrue, and these have to be reacquired on payment of compensation, when the lands are again required for public purposes. This consideration often deters the Government, local bodies and Railway Companies from temporarily subletting such lands, where this course might be followed with advantage. In either case, whether the lands are temporarily sublet (the occupancy and non-occupancy rights being subsequently reacquired, when the land is again required for public purposes), or whether the lands are allowed to remain unlet from fear of this contingency, an unnecessary waste of public money occurs, and it is justifiable on this account to apply these special provisions to such lands.

Clause 30.—The proposed section 147A is intended to give to Civil Courts the same power to disregard illegal and inequitable compromises regarding rent and other matters in suits between landlord and tenant as such, as it is proposed to confer by clause 24 upon Revenue officers engaged in the preparation of the record-of-rights. Section 375 of the Code of Civil Procedure governs compromises filed in suits under the present law, and there is reason to believe that decrees have been passed giving effect to compromises containing illegal and inequitable provisions, and in particular that the provisions of section 29 regarding the limits of enhancement of rent by contract between landlord and tenant have frequently been nullified in this way. The addition to the law, which is now proposed, will enable the Civil Courts to refrain from giving effect to any compromise which is illegal, unfair or inequitable, and will make it obligatory on the Courts to refuse to give effect to any compromise which contravenes the provisions of section 29.

The proposed section 147B is intended to define more clearly the force to be attached to entries in the record-of-rights in proceedings and suits between landlord and tenant as such. Under the present Act, (section 103B), such entries are presumed to be correct until the contrary is proved. But cases have occurred which indicate that it is doubtful whether the Courts pay sufficient attention to this presumption. It is proposed therefore to provide that the Courts shall have regard to the entries in the record-of-rights, unless such entries have been proved by evidence to be incorrect, and that when a Court passes a decree at variance with such entries, it shall record its reasons for so doing.

Clause 31.—A large proportion of suits for arrears of rent are decided ex parte owing to the absence of the defendant raiyat. It is believed that in such cases it is the practice of the Civil Courts to pass a decree in accordance with the landlord's claim, without any reference to the entry in the record-of-rights of the rent payable. It is generally recognised that it is desirable that the Court should have regard to the entry of rent in the record-of-rights in all suits for arrears of rent. Various expedients have been suggested for giving effect to this. It is intended to require the landlord to include in the plaint a statement of the rental of the tenancy according to the record-of-rights, and to give the Court power, when it thinks necessary, to procure from the Collector's office a verified or certified copy of, or extract from, the record-of-rights relating to the tenancy, without payment of any fee. This will save landlords the trouble and expense of procuring certified copies for themselves.

Much inconvenience is caused to landlords, owing to their original rent-rolls, collection and measurement papers and account books having to be simultaneously filed in Court in different suits for the recovery of arrears of rent. The new clause (ff) provides that, when the originals have been once produced in Court in any suit, the landlord may be permitted to file certified copies or extracts in subsequent suits.

Clause 32.—The ruling reported in I. L. R., 32 Cal., 907, lays down that there may be a second appeal in an execution proceeding in a suit for the recovery of rent, even when there is no such right of appeal in the original suit. It is undesirable that execution proceedings should be protracted in this way, and the object of the clause is to limit the right of appeal in an execution proceeding to that provided for the original suit.

Clause 33.—The provision of a summary procedure for the recovery of rents has for many years been urged upon the Government by landholders. The delay and expense caused by the present system are admitted, but hitherto no scheme, which has been put forward, has commended itself. The fact that records-of-rights have now been prepared for large areas in the province justifies a reconsideration of the matter. Where a record-of-rights has been prepared and is periodically revised or maintained, the annual demand due from each individual raiyat is accurately known. The only question at issue in a rent suit will be the amount due from the raiyat for the period for which rent is claimed in the suit. If the landlord's accounts and collection papers are properly maintained, and if proper rent-receipts in foil and counterfoil are habitually kept and given as required by law, this will, in the great majority of cases, be an easy matter to determine. It is therefore proposed that in areas in which a record-of-rights has been prepared and published and is periodically revised, the Local Government should take power to allow the recovery of arrears of rent by the application of the procedure prescribed by the Public Demands Recovery Act, 1895, in the case of those landlords to whom, in the opinion of the Government, this privilege may safely be conceded. It is further proposed that the issue of certificates should be entrusted to a Revenue Officer, who shall have power to inspect the landlord's rent-rolls, accounts and collection papers, and to compare the receipts given to the raiyats with the counterparts kept by the zamindar, and to test their agreement with entries in the accounts. The conditions under which the summary procedure may be applied will thus resemble those under which it is extended to Government estates and estates under the Court of Wards, for the demand of each individual raiyat will be accurately known and the landlord's accounts and collection papers will be subject to inspection by a Government officer. If it is possible, with safety, to reduce the expense of rent suits, the results will be beneficial to landlords and tenants alike, and it is expedient, therefore, that a trial should be given to the scheme provided for in the clause subject to the safeguards laid down in sub-section (2) of the projected new section 158 A.

Clause 34.—Under the present law, considerable difficulty in realizing rents is often experienced by co-sharer landlords, who make rent collections jointly. A decree for arrears of rent, obtained by a co-sharer for the amount due to him alone, is a mere money decree (8 C. W. N., 472) and the tenure or holding, in respect of which the arrears are due, does not pass to the purchaser in a sale for the execution of such a decree (I. L. R., 29 Cal., 219) unless he can get himself recognised by the other co-sharers. Decrees for arrears of rent obtained by single co-sharers, are therefore often of little value, and the system is further objectionable, in that it exposes the tenant to the trouble of several successive suits brought by different co-sharer landlords. Considering that the majority of estates in the province are held by co-sharer landlords, it seems necessary to provide a remedy for the present state of things. As it is often impossible to get all the landlords to join in a suit for arrears of rent, a single co-sharer should be empowered to sue for the rent due to all the co-sharers, and that the tenure or holding should pass in execution of a decree obtained in such a suit, provided that the other co-sharers have been made parties.

Clause 35.—As the law now stands, the decree-holder is, under section 169 of the Bengal Tenancy Act, entitled to the rent up to the date of the sale, while, under section 316 of the Civil Procedure Code, the title does not vest in the purchaser until the date of the confirmation of the sale. The proposed amendment will bring the sections into conformity.

The proviso is necessary for the carrying out of the object of the preceding clause. Each co-sharer will get his share of the proceeds of the sale in proportion to his interest and the amount of rent due to him.

Clause 36.—It has been held by the High Court that the provisions of section 310A of the Code of Civil Procedure apply to sales in execution of rent decrees. This enables persons other than the judgment-debtor to apply to have such sales set aside. It is undesirable that proceedings between landlord and tenant, relating to the recovery of rent, should be protracted by the intervention of third parties, and it is accordingly proposed that section 310A of the Code of Civil Procedure shall not apply to a tenure or holding attached in execution of a decree of arrears of rent.

Clause 37.—Under section 174, as at present framed, there is nothing to prevent a tenant from applying to have a sale set aside, by paying the decretal amount, and subsequently claiming, under section 311 of the Code of Civil Procedure, that the sale was invalid. It is clearly inequitable that the tenant should be allowed to have recourse to a double procedure in applying to have a sale set aside, and the proposed addition to section 174 will prevent this.

Clause 38.—The proposed amendment in clause (g) of section 178 is merely consequential upon clauses 2 and 15 of the Bill. It seems reasonable that proviso (iii) to section 178 should be extended to horticultural land, temporarily let out for the cultivation of ordinary crops. If a tenant is given a temporary lease of such lands, he should not be allowed to retain them after the expiry of the lease, on the plea that occupancy rights have accrued.

Clause 39.—The object of this clause is to counteract the effect of several rulings of the High Court, two of which are cited above in the note on clause 34, as to the nature of suits brought by co-sharer landlords for arrears of rent and as to the effect of decrees obtained in such suits. Their result is that—

- (1) suits in which co-sharer landlords sue for rent are ~~not~~ rent suits, but money suits;
- (2) the provisions of section 148 do not apply to them;
- (3) evidence in such suits cannot be recorded summarily;
- (4) a second appeal lies in them, while an appeal is barred in the case of a decree obtained by a sole landlord;
- (5) co-sharer landlords cannot sue for four years' rent as sole landlords can, under article 2 (b), Schedule III of the Act, and
- (6) decrees obtained in suits by co-sharer landlords can be executed within twelve years, instead of within three, as in the case of ordinary rent decrees.

Such results are anomalous and inconvenient, and the clause, the introduction of which has been recommended by the High Court, will have the effect of removing them.

Clause 40.—The object of this clause is to rectify an omission in the present Act, by giving the Government power to prescribe forms for use under the Act. It will also enable the Government to frame rules for dealing with forfeited fees.

Clause 41.—The object of this clause is to extend the provisions of section 191 to estates, which though originally permanently settled, have fallen into the hands of Government by escheat or otherwise, and have been let out on a temporary settlement. It has been held that such estates are excluded from the provisions of the section, as at present worded.

Clause 42.—This clause is intended to enable the Revenue Officer, in cases where a settlement of land revenue is being made, to fix a fair and equitable rent of his own motion for all lands, in respect of which the settlement of land revenue is being made. It sometimes happens that temporary settlement-holders, in the course of a settlement, fraudulently create fictitious rent-free holdings or holdings at low rates of rent, with the object of reducing the value of the estate and getting the revenue lowered. The revenue demand is fixed on a fair valuation of the lands of the estate, but unless fair and equitable rents are fixed, the settlement-holder may be unable to meet the demand, and the Government revenue may be endangered. It is considered necessary, therefore, that the Revenue Officer should have power to settle fair and equitable rents of his own motion, in cases where the settlement-holder has collusively lowered the rental demand, with the object of preventing a new settlement being made on a fair revenue.

Clause 43.—This clause gives effect to the provisions of clause 2, so far as they amend section 45, and removes the anomaly now existing (see I. L. R., 17 Cal., 980) as regards limitation between suits brought by an occupancy and a non-occupancy raiyat to recover possession of land from which they have been dispossessed by, or with the connivance of, their landlords. At present the former has two, and the latter twelve years within which to bring such a suit. It is proposed that the limit of two years should apply to both.

There is no reason why the period of limitation for the recovery of possession of land by an under-raiyat should not be the same as that provided in article 3 in the case of a raiyat, vis., two years from the date of dispossession. At present the period of limitation in the case of an under-raiyat is twelve years. The amendment proposed will place both raiyats and under-raiyats on the same footing.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE WINTER RICE CROP OF BENGAL, 1906.

The following note is published for general information.

R. W. CARLYLE,

Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The 23rd October 1906.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE WINTER RICE CROP OF BENGAL, 1906.

On an average of five years, ending 1904-05, the area under Winter Rice, in the territory to which this forecast relates, has represented some 28·1 per cent. of the total area under this crop in British India.

Explanatory.—This forecast relates to the 33 districts, which now constitute this Province, including Sambalpur and excluding the 14 districts which have been transferred to the newly constituted Province of Eastern Bengal and Assam.

Character of the season.—The character of the monsoon rains has been described at length in the preliminary forecast of the bhadoi crops, which has been recently published by this Department. The ante-monsoon showers were generally defective throughout the Province. April was a dry month. The early portion of May was also dry, and sowings were therefore late in many districts, especially in the districts of the Burdwan and Presidency Divisions. Then, again, the rainfall in June was below the normal almost everywhere. In July and August, the rainfall was general, but it was not equally distributed in all parts of the Province. Floods did a great deal of damage to the crop in North Bihar. The cutturn was injuriously affected by floods also in Nadia, Murshidabad, Jessore and Khulna. In September, the rainfall was fairly general. The recent rain has done some good, but more rain is needed in the Bihar districts, and also in some districts of the Burdwan Division. In the 24-Parganas, some damage was done by insect pests. The season has on the whole been unfavourable.

2. Area sown.—Since the issue of the final forecast, 1905, the Collectors of Midnapore, the 24-Parganas, Khulna, Bhagalpur, Purnea, Darjeeling, Angul, Puri and Sambalpur have revised the normal areas in their districts. The total normal area under winter rice for the 33 districts of this Province now stands at 21,301,700 acres. The actual area under the crop this year amounts to 20,038,700 acres, as against 20,660,900 acres sown last year. The decrease is chiefly noticeable in the districts of Monghyr, Bhagalpur and Purnea. On the other hand, there has been an increase in the area sown in the Burdwan and Chota Nagpur Divisions.

3. Outturn.—Out of the 33 districts, two districts only, viz., Sambalpur and Ranchi, estimate an outturn above the normal. In the Sonthal Parganas and Singhbhum, a normal crop has been returned. Four districts, viz. Birbhum, Hooghly, Bhagalpur and Hazaribagh, return from 90 to 95 per cent. of a normal crop; nine districts return from 80 to 89 per cent; seven from 70 to 79 per cent; and five from 60 to 69 per cent. In Murshidabad and Muzaffarpur, the crops are estimated at 56 and 58 per cent. respectively, while in Darbhanga the estimate is as low as 38 per cent. only. Champaran returns a 59 per cent. crop; but, as this appears to be an under-estimate, I have raised it to 70 per cent. In a few other cases, the estimated percentage of outturn has been raised, where no sufficient reason has been assigned for the low figure shown. The outturn of the whole Province works out to 82 per cent. of a normal crop, against 88 per cent. last year. Considering the unseasonable character of the rainfall and the damage done by floods, this estimate may be accepted at present.

C. A. OLDHAM,

Director of Agriculture, Bengal.

The Subdivisional Officer of Raniganj reports that the estimated area under winter rice is more than what it was in the previous year. The figures as given are reported by the Police. Further enquiry is being made to ascertain if the figures are correct.

The date of sowing was normal.

A normal outturn is not expected as the rains set in late.

The date of sowing was normal in the Sadar subdivision and in Ghatal and Contai. For want of late rain the area has been less than normal and for the same reason the crop is not promising. The outturn in low lands is likely to be good.

The general condition of the crop is not good owing to want of rain at the time of sowing and transplantation. Though the area sown this year exceeds the normal area, still there is a decrease in the area as compared with last year. It is attributed to the fact that certain areas were left uncultivated this year for want of sufficient rain. If there is not sufficient rain hereafter, the estimated output will be further reduced. The sowing this year was late.

The weather has been fair. The general condition of the crop is fair. The date of sowing was normal.

Want of rain at the time of transplantation and puddling is the cause of the low output in Column 9. The date of sowing was normal.

The weather was not favourable, owing to insufficient and untimely rainfall, the condition of the crop is not very good. The sowing was late. The increase in area is due to the reclamation of waste-lands.

The area given in Column 7 of the final forecast, 1906, was only an estimate. The actual area has now been given in column 6. The decrease in area in the Sambalpur subdivision is due to want of seed for sowing in Khatia zamindari, and is also due, to some extent, to the want of early cessation of rain in Khatia Circle. The date of sowing this year was normal. The present prospects of the crop, on the whole, seem to be good.

REPORT ON THE COTTON CROP OF BENGAL,
OCTOBER, 1906.

The following note is published for general information.

R. W. CARLYLE,

Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The 23rd October 1906.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

REPORT ON THE COTTON CROP OF BENGAL, OCTOBER 1906.

[On an average of the five years, ending 1901-1905, the area under cotton crops in the territory to which this forecast relates has represented some 0·6 per cent. of the total area under Cotton Crops in India.]

Explanatory.—The sowing of the early variety of cotton commences before the break of the monsoon and the harvesting is done early in the cold weather. The late variety is sown partly before, and partly after the rainy season and is harvested in the following hot weather.

The early variety is cultivated chiefly in the Sonthal Parganas, Angul, and in the Chota Nagpur Division. Saran, Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Cuttack, and Singhbhum are the most important of the late cotton-growing districts.

The present forecast deals with the progress of sowings since the publication of the August report, and with the condition of the standing crop.

2. Character of the Season.—As noted in the August forecast, the date of sowing was generally normal, and the subsequent weather was favourable to the growth of the crop. In the early cotton districts, weather and rainfall conditions have continued favourable and the general prospects of the crop are so far good. The little damage done to the early crop in Sambalpur has already been noticed in the August report.

As regards late cotton, the weather has been less favourable. From Saran, where the area under late cotton comprises one-third of the total area of this crop in the Province, it is reported that continuous heavy rainfall followed by floods has damaged the crop to a considerable extent. Similar damage has been done in the important late cotton-growing districts of Muzaffarpur and Darbhanga. In Cuttack and Singhbhum, prospects are satisfactory.

3. Area sown.—The area sown with early cotton as given in the present forecast amounts to 37,400 acres, against 37,362 acres shown in the August forecast. The slight difference calls for no remarks. There is, however, an increase this year of nearly 2,000 acres over last year's area, which is chiefly due to a revision of estimates in Sambalpur.

Sowings of the late crop have progressed since the issue of the last forecast in Midnapore, Patna, Shahabad, Muzaffarpur, and Singhbhum. At the time of the despatch of the district reports to this office, they had not commenced in Bankura, Puri, and in parts of Cuttack. The area sown with late crop as now estimated amounts to 30,174 acres, as against 23,774 acres shown in the August report and 31,677 acres as shown in last year's October report.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE INDIGO CROP OF BENGAL, 1906.

The following note is published for general information.

R. W. CARLYLE,
Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

The 21st October 1906.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE INDIGO CROP OF BENGAL, 1906.

[On an average of five years, ending 1904-05, the area under Indigo in the territory to which this forecast relates has represented some 40·03 per cent. of the total area under Indigo in British India.]

Introductory.—The final forecast of the indigo crop of 1905 dealt with seventeen districts belonging to this Province and two districts (Rangpur and Malda) belonging to the new Province of Eastern Bengal and Assam. No indigo was grown in Rangpur last year, and none has been grown this year. * This district has, therefore, been left out of the present forecast altogether. For a similar reason, Midnapore and Bankura belonging to this Province have also been omitted. The present forecast, therefore, deals with fifteen districts appertaining to this Province, and with Malda appertaining to the new Province. There has, however, been no cultivation of indigo in Murshidabad, Cuttack or Malda in the present year.

Character of the season.—The sowings were retarded a little by want of rain early in the season; and the crop suffered seriously later on from excessive rain and high floods in North Bihar.

Area sown.—Owing to the competition of the synthetic dye, the area under indigo has contracted so rapidly that the expression “normal area under the crop” has little meaning. The cultivation is being gradually abandoned in Lower Bengal. The area even in North Bihar (Saran, Champaran, Darbhanga and Monghyr) has decreased. The total area sown this year is 138,300 acres against 170,700 acres of last year and 223,100 acres of 1904.

Outturn.—Of the important districts, Saran reports 62 per cent. of a normal outturn per acre, Darbhanga reports 57 per cent. and Muzaffarpur 33 per cent., while Champaran reports only 27 per cent.

The estimated outturn per acre for Lower Bengal, including the minor Bihar districts, is 67 per cent. of a normal crop, and that for North Bihar, including Monghyr, only 42 per cent. The average for the Province comes to 46 per cent. against 47 per cent. of last year (1905).

According to the returns received from the District Officers, the yield of North Bihar, including Monghyr, would amount to about 12,732 factory maunds, and the yield from the remaining districts to some 3,921 factory maunds, or a total of 16,653 factory maunds, against an estimate of 21,248 factory maunds last year. According to trade returns, the outturn last year was about 23,000 factory maunds.

Messrs. Moran & Co. estimate 4,000 factory maunds from Lower Bengal and 20,000 factory maunds from 1st cuttings in Bihar. The prospects for khuntis, however, are reported to be so bad as to warrant an estimate of no more than 2,000 factory maunds. The estimated total for Lower Bengal and Bihar, according to Messrs. Moran and Co., thus comes to 26,000 factory maunds.

From further enquiry made since the receipt of the district returns, there seems good reason for regarding the returns for Bihar districts as unduly pessimistic. It is probable that 18,000 maunds will be produced from 1st cuttings in Bihar, and nearly 2,000 from khuntis, or 20,000 maunds in all. Adding say, 4,000 maunds for other districts, the total outturn may be estimated at about 24,000 factory maunds.

SUMMARY OF THE METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS TAKEN IN BENGAL, AND IN EASTERN BENGAL AND ASSAM, FOR THE MONTH OF SEPTEMBER 1906.

DURING the last week of August a depression formed off the Orissa coast and moved westward into South Rajputana. At the beginning of the present month it ceased to influence the weather in Bengal, and rainfall stopped in North-East India except in Assam, where light to moderate rain was recorded. On the second of the month the trough of low pressure, separating the two wind systems, extended into the Bay, and as a consequence a depression commenced to form off the Orissa coast on the third of the month. Its influence on the rainfall of Bengal was felt immediately, and precipitation became fairly general in Deltaic Bengal. It crossed the coast in the neighbourhood of Puri on the fifth, and gave moderate rain to Orissa and Chota Nagpur. A second depression formed under similar conditions a few days later, crossing the coast to the west of Saugor Island on the eleventh. It was then very shallow, but intensified somewhat in its passage over land. It moved rapidly in a west-north-westerly direction into the north of the Central Provinces, and gave general rain in Deltaic Bengal, Chota Nagpur and Orissa. During the next week precipitation was fairly general, but below the normal. Over the Bay pressure was very uniform and remained so until the nineteenth of the month when a shallow low pressure area appeared off the Madras coast and gradients commenced to become steeper. This low pressure area remained for a few days without developing, and appeared to merge itself in the low pressure trough extending at that time from the Himalayas into the Bay. The depression, however, on September 23rd became more definite, and on the 25th crossed the coast near Gopalpur in the shape of a small storm. Rainfall, which had been rather scanty in the Province during the early stages of the depression, recommenced on the 24th, precipitation being fairly general in Chota Nagpur and Orissa and local in Bengal and Bihar. On the 26th a low pressure area appeared in Burmah, which moved westward and extended over Deltaic Bengal on September 27th. It apparently intensified on the same day in the north-east angle of the Bay into a small disturbance, and crossed the coast near Barisal. Under the influence of this depression very heavy rain fell in Eastern Bengal, and precipitation extended into North Bengal and South-West Bengal. The depression moved in north-westerly direction, and continued to give general and widespread rain till the end of the month.

Summary of Temperature.—The average mean of the month was above the normal mean of the month in all the meteorological divisions. As usual in the rains, variations in temperature were closely associated with rainfall, and the excess of the average mean for the month over the normal mean was lowest in Eastern Bengal, where rainfall was in excess, and highest in North Bengal, where the deficiency was greater than that of the other divisions.

The highest temperature 99·1 recorded during the month was reported from Silchar while Gaya reported the lowest temperature 71·9.

The following table gives the summary of the temperature of each of the seven Meteorological Divisions of the Provinces of Bengal and of Eastern Bengal and Assam for the month of September 1906:—

METEOROLOGICAL DIVISION.	TEMPERATURE.

Summary of Rainfall.—The rainfall work of the Province has been placed in the hands of the Director of Agriculture, Bengal, and the usual data regarding the actual and normal rainfall during the month will be published by that Department. A short table, however, is attached to this report, giving the rainfall recorded during the month at the head-quarters of the various districts of the Province.

Rainfall was in considerable excess in Eastern Bengal, the departure from the normal being more than 100 per cent. of the normal rainfall in Mymensingh and Comilla. There was defect in all the other meteorological divisions, but, except in a few stations, principally in North Bengal, the deficiency was slight.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from the traces of the Barograph and from eye observations.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground.

GENERAL DEPARTMENT.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 2361.—The 25th October 1906.—The following Resolution issued by the Government of India in the Department of Commerce and Industry is republished for general information.

T. W. RICHARDSON,

Offg. Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 8073—8087-18, dated Simla, the 12th October 1906.

RESOLUTION—By the Govt. of India Dept. of Commerce and Industry.

THE Government of India have received from His Majesty's Secretary of State for India a copy of an Act passed by the Parliament of the Commonwealth of Australia to amend the Immigration Restriction Act of 1901, extracts from which were published in the Supplement to the Gazette of India, dated 10th May 1902, with Resolution No. 13—38-2, dated the 9th May 1902. The more important provisions of this law, which is entitled "The Immigration Restriction Amendment Act, 1905," are noted below for general information.

2. The portion of section 3 of the Principal Act which relates to the dictation test is as follows:—

"The immigration into the Commonwealth of the persons described in any of the following paragraphs of this section (hereinafter called "prohibited immigrants") is prohibited, namely:—

(a) Any person who when asked to do so by an officer fails to write out at dictation and sign in the presence of the officer a passage of fifty words in length in an European language directed by the officer."

This section has now been amended by section 4 of the new Act, the material provisions of which are as follows:—

“4. Section 3 of the Principal Act is amended—

(a) by omitting the whole of paragraph (a), and inserting in lieu thereof the following paragraph:—

“(a) Any person who fails to pass the dictation test: that is to say, who, when an officer dictates to him not less than 50 words in any prescribed language, fails to write them out in that language, in the presence of the officer.

No regulation prescribing any language or languages shall have any force until it has been laid before both Houses of the Parliament for thirty days and, before or after the expiration of such thirty days, both Houses of the Parliament by resolution, of which notice has been given, have agreed to such regulation.”

3. A section has been enacted which makes intermediate provision for the application of section 3, as amended, as follows:—

“5. Until a regulation prescribing any language or languages under section 3 of the Principal Act as amended by this Act shall come into force any language authorized by section 3 of the Principal Act before the commencement of this Act shall be deemed to be a prescribed language within the meaning of that section as so amended.”

4. The following new section has been inserted:—

“4-B. (1) Any person who has resided in Australia for a period or periods in the aggregate of not less than five years, and who is about to depart from the Commonwealth, may in manner prescribed apply to an officer authorized in that behalf for a certificate in the prescribed form excepting him, if he returns to the Commonwealth within the period limited in the certificate, from the provisions of paragraph (a) of section 3 of this Act.

“(2) The officer may in his discretion give the certificate¹ on payment of the prescribed fee, or, without assigning any reason, withhold it.

“(3) Where the Minister is satisfied that a certificate given under this section has been obtained by any untrue statement of fact or intention, the Minister may revoke the certificate, which shall thereupon be taken to be of no effect and shall on demand be delivered up to the Minister.

“(4) A person to whom a certificate under this section has been issued (which certificate has not been revoked) shall not, on his return to the Commonwealth within the time limited by the certificate, if he produces and delivers the certificate to an officer, be required to pass the dictation test.”

5. Section 5 of the Principal Act has been amended, and now reads thus—

“(1) Any immigrant who evades an officer or who enters the Commonwealth at any place where no officer is stationed may if at any time thereafter he is found within the Commonwealth be required to pass the dictation test, and shall if he fails to do so be deemed to be a prohibited immigrant offending against this Act.

“(2) Any immigrant may at any time within one year after he has entered the Commonwealth be required to pass the dictation test, and shall if he fails to do so be deemed to be a prohibited immigrant offending against this Act.

The following sub-section has also been added:—

“(3) In any prosecution under the last preceding sub-section, the averment of the prosecutor contained in the information that the defendant has entered the Commonwealth within one year before his failing to pass the dictation test shall be deemed to be proved in the absence of proof to the contrary.”

6. Section 6 of the Principal Act has been amended, and now stands as follows:—

“Any prohibited immigrant within the meaning of paragraph (a) only of section 3 may if thought fit by an officer be allowed to enter the Commonwealth or to remain within the Commonwealth upon the following conditions:—

(a) He shall on entering the Commonwealth or on failing to pass the dictation test deposit with an officer the sum of one hundred pounds.

(b) He shall within thirty days after depositing such sum obtain from the Minister a certificate of exemption in the form of the schedule or depart from the Commonwealth, and thereupon the deposit shall be returned; but otherwise the deposit or any part thereof may be forfeited and he shall be deemed to be a prohibited immigrant offending against this Act.

7. It will be observed that the most important change effected by the amending Act is the substitution of “any prescribed language” for “an European language” in the case of the dictation test. The languages will be prescribed by the Regulations which will be framed under the Act. The Governor-General in Council requests all Local Governments to take such measures as seem to them best calculated to make the provisions of the Act generally known to Natives of India, more especially in places from which emigration to the Australian Colonies is believed to be most common. Intending emigrants should be warned at the ports of embarkation of the difficulties they may encounter in proceeding to these Colonies.

NOTIFICATION.

CUSTOMS.

THE HON'BLE MR. W. C. MACPHERSON, C.S.

Dated Calcutta, the 29th October 1906.

In supersession of the rules published under Notification, dated the 25th September 1894, in Part I, pages 1103 and 1109 of the Calcutta Gazette, dated the 31st October 1894, as amended by the Resolution by the Government of India in the Finance and Commerce Department, No. 399S.R., dated the 19th January 1904, published at pages 157 and 158 of the Supplement to the Gazette of India, dated the 6th February 1904, the following rules framed by the Board of Revenue, L. P., under section 75 of the Sea Customs Act, 1878 (VIII of 1878) for the landing and shipping of passengers' baggage and the passing of the same through the Customs House are published for general information. The fee to be charged under rule 17 has been sanctioned by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

BAGGAGE RULES.

EXAMINATION ON BOARD-SHIP OR AT THE LANDING PLACE.

1. Ordinarily in Calcutta an Inspector with a staff of Baggage Officers will board passenger steamers at Garden Reach, and proceed to examine all cabin baggage and such hold baggage as can be conveniently produced, before the vessel reaches her moorings. But when there is not likely to be time to complete such examination before the vessel is ready to discharge her passengers, as in the case of large passenger vessels proceeding direct to the docks or jetties, or in the case of vessels discharging passengers by launch at Garden Reach, in such cases the examination shall be conducted at the place at which the baggage is landed, and will not be commenced on board-ship.
2. Upon boarding a vessel, the Baggage Officers shall distribute declaration forms in Customs Form No. 478, and give all necessary information to passengers for filling them up.
3. The Inspector shall also obtain from the Chief Officer a list of the passengers and of the unaccompanied baggage carried by the vessel. The Baggage Officers on board are not permitted to pass the latter. In the event of there being no unaccompanied baggage, a certificate to that effect must be obtained from the Chief Officer.
4. In examining, Baggage Officers shall be guided by the following directions :—
 - (a) When no suspicion of an attempt to smuggle dutiable goods, or introduce merchandise or firearms, etc., is entertained, the officers may dispense with the examination of hand-bags, rugs and parcels and satisfy themselves by the examination of a selected portion of the other baggage to the extent of one or more representative packages according to the number brought by each passenger or set of passengers.
 - (b) The right to open any or every package remains, however, and can be exercised at the discretion of the officers.
 - (c) The officers are to put to each passenger the following question :—
 “Have you anything in your possession liable to duty, such as firearms, ammunition, alcoholic liquor, perfumed spirits, or any other article which is for sale?” They shall at the same time draw attention to the rules printed on the reverse of the declaration form.
 - (d) The utmost tact and courtesy are needed in every case. The rights of the revenue must be asserted, but no delay or unnecessary annoyance must be caused on any account to passengers.
5. If no dutiable articles are declared or detected, the Baggage Officer shall issue a pass in Customs Form No. 479. The declaration form entered by the passenger shall also be taken by the Baggage Officer at the time of passing and the entries completed.
6. If any dutiable articles are declared or found on examination, the passenger will be referred to the Baggage Inspector, who will receive duty, and issue a receipt in Customs Form No. 480.
7. Should a claim be made to pass dutiable articles free of duty under the concessions allowed for articles of private personal property re-imported, the Inspector may pass such goods free only if there are authenticated documents, in each case, substantiating the claim. In all other cases the passenger shall be referred to the Collector of Customs, with the option, should he wish to remove the article at once, of paying duty and applying for a refund afterwards.

The receipt in Form 480 shall be issued for all dutiable articles whether duty be levied or not, and shall contain a sufficient description of each article to permit of subsequent identification, as well as, in the case of any on which duty is not levied under the preceding clause, a note explaining the reasons. In the case of firearms, the details on the back of the form shall be filled up. Firearms of every description must be carefully examined.

8. Baggage Inspectors are authorized to pass free of duty firearms and ammunition in reasonable quantities belonging to passengers from Customs ports, or forming part of the equipment of an officer entitled to wear diplomatic, military or police uniform, etc., provided that the following particulars should in such cases be noted on the back of the receipt form, namely, the name, rank, position and address of the passenger, under his signature, in addition to the particulars of the arms required under the preceding rule, and particulars of the ammunition, if any.

Baggage Inspectors are also authorized to pass a gun, pistol, sword or knife, the property of a native officer or soldier arriving from a coast port when covered by a license from the Commanding Officer of the regiment to which he belongs.

9. Baggage Inspectors may not, however, pass the following, which shall be sent to the Custom House, and reported for orders:—

- (1) Arms imported by a native officer or soldier arriving from Hongkong.
- (2) Martini-Henry rifles and rifles of .303 bore and ammunition for these weapons imported by any passenger, or any other rifles of a military pattern or ammunition the importation of which is prohibited.

Exceptions.—When an officer of the British or Indian Army or of the Imperial Service Troops arrives in Calcutta by sea on duty and carries a rifle or carbine ostensibly as part of his military equipment, such weapon, even if of a prohibited bore, may be passed by the Baggage Officer on board, provided it is of a service or military pattern and bears the stamp and mark that indicate that it is the property of the State, or in the case of Imperial Service Troops, of the Native State concerned.

10. Passengers' baggage need not be detained owing to arms or ammunition or other dutiable articles being found in their boxes, unless they have in any way attempted to conceal them. In such cases the articles shall not be passed, but shall be sent to the Custom House with a special report.

11. Baggage shall be marked with the Baggage Officer's initials as soon as passed, and may then be removed. An officer shall be deputed to see that no packages leave the vessel without being marked. Passengers on vessels proceeding to the jetties or docks should be instructed to send the baggage pass along with the baggage to enable it to pass the jetty or dock gates. Baggage Officers must see that packages are removed as soon as possible after examination.

12. All packages which cannot be conveniently presented or opened for examination on board ship, or at the time of landing, and all unaccompanied baggage, shall be sent to the Custom House.

If the vessel is discharging in the stream, such packages shall be forwarded by the baggage staff in charge of a Baggage Officer or peon, with a green boat note. Unaccompanied baggage shall be shown separately in the boat note.

If the vessel is discharging at the jetties, such packages shall be forwarded by officers of the Port Trust as soon as possible after landing with a challan.

If the vessel is discharging at the docks, such packages may remain at the docks for a day or two before being forwarded by the officers of the Port Trust. In this case passengers shall be informed how long their baggage will remain in the docks before transfer to the Custom House.

Port Adelaide river—Additional new beacons placed—Amended sailing directions.

No. 412 (first publication).—The President, Marine Board, Port Adelaide, has given notice (No. 18 of 1906) that in accordance with previous notices, eight extra Beacons have been placed on the north and east side of the cutting. The Beacons are painted black, and the lanterns green, from which a green light showing towards the cutting is exhibited; a white light is also exhibited from the back of each lantern showing towards the shore.

All the green light Beacons are numbered from the first or seaward Beacon with the letter "G" added, as follows:—No. 0G being outside Beacon; No. 1G, near the reflecting Beacon; No. 2G, opposite the old boat channel. This light indicates the turning point from No. 2 (red) lead towards No. 3. All the others, that is, Nos. 3G to 9G, both inclusive, are placed opposite the corresponding numbers of the white light Beacons on the other side of the cutting.

All the single light Beacons are placed about 15 feet back from the cutting, and painted red to starboard and black to port. The lights are white to starboard and green to port from seaward.

The red light on the pile Beacon south of No. 3 being no longer required has been discontinued.

In consequence of the above alterations the sailing directions have been amended to read as follows:—

Sailing directions.

By Night.—In approaching the Anchorage, vessels of deep draught should not bring the white light on the old structure to bear north of N.E. by E. in order to avoid the four-fathom patch, which bears N.W. half N. from the light on Wonga Shoal; then get No. 1 lead (which consists of two red lights vertical 10 feet apart, and two white lights vertical 11 feet 9 inches apart) in line; keep these in line passing between the occulting light on the red buoy and the outer green light on the north bank, also between the other green lights on the north bank and the white lights on the revetment mound.

Steer on the same line until the two red lights of No. 2 lead are coming on; then steer with them in line until abreast of No. 2G Beacon; then direct the course to pass between No. 8 and No. 3G Beacons; and so on from Beacon to Beacon round the point until No. 9 is reached. From a safe distance off No. 9 the lights of No. 10 lead will be seen; keep them in line until the red light is about a quarter of a point open to the right of the white light of No. 11 lead; then gradually alter the course to bring the lights of No. 11 lead in line; keep them in line (a sharp look-out being kept for the mooring buoys on the starboard hand) until the lights of No. 12 lead are seen coming into line; proceed as before by altering the course before the lights are on with each other. The same applies in the change from No. 12 to No. 13 lead. When the lights on the wharves are seen opening out off Luff Point, alter the course so as to round the point at a safe distance, and then up the centre of the channel, looking out for the mooring buoys on the starboard hand.

In going outwards the directions are just the opposite to those given for coming inwards; but in such case, in changing from one lead to another, the course should be gradually altered when abreast of the low (red) Beacon of each lead, except No. 2 lead. In this case, when abreast of No. 6 Beacon, gradually alter the course to a safe distance off No. 2G until the two red lights of No. 2 lead are in line, then proceed outwards with No. 2 lead in line.

By Day.—The directions by day are the same as by night, merely substituting the Beacons for the Lights.

This affects Admiralty Charts 2389A and B, 1750 and 1752.

During the progress of the work at the Light's Passage Harbour Works, masters of vessels exempt from pilotage may, if they so desire, avail themselves of the services of a pilot to assist them in passing such works, either in or out, at one-half the usual rate.

If the usual exemption flag is not hoisted it will be taken as a signal that a pilot is required. At night if a pilot is required the usual signal for a pilot should be shown.

N.B.—Owing to the nature of the work in progress, this notice may require to be amended from time to time, and therefore should be treated as tentative only.

The mean pressure, temperature, &c., are deduced from eye observations.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beekley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground. The rainfall reported on any day is for 24 hours preceding 8 A.M. of that day.

o, overcast; p, passing temporary showers; Δ, dew.

THE HON'BLE MR. W. C. MACPHERSON, C.S.I.

Dated Calcutta, the 29th October 1906.

IN supersession of the rules published under Notification, dated the 25th September 1894, in Part I, pages 1108 and 1109 of the Calcutta Gazette, dated the 31st October 1894, as amended by the Resolution by the Government of India in the Finance and Commerce Department, No. 3998.R., dated the 19th January 1904, published at pages 157 and 158 of the Supplement to the Gazette of India, dated the 6th February 1904, the following rules framed by the Board of Revenue, L. The fee to be charged under rule 17 has been sanctioned by the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal.

BAGGAGE RULES.

EXAMINATION ON BOARD-SHIP OR AT THE LANDING PLACE.

1. Ordinarily in Calcutta an Inspector with a staff of Baggage Officers will board passenger steamers at Garden Reach, and proceed to examine all cabin baggage and such hold baggage as can be conveniently produced, before the vessel reaches her moorings. But when there is not likely to be time to complete such examination before the vessel is ready to discharge her passengers, as in the case of large passenger vessels proceeding direct to the docks or jetties, or in the case of vessels discharging passengers by launch at Garden Reach, in such cases the examination shall be conducted at the place at which the baggage is landed, and will not be commenced on board-ship.

2. Upon boarding a vessel, the Baggage Officers shall distribute declaration forms in Customs Form No. 478, and give all necessary information to passengers for filling them up.

3. The Inspector shall also obtain from the Chief Officer a list of the passengers and of the unaccompanied baggage carried by the vessel. The Baggage Officers on board are not permitted to pass the latter. In the event of there being no unaccompanied baggage, a certificate to that effect must be obtained from the Chief Officer.

4. In examining, Baggage Officers shall be guided by the following directions :—

(a) When no suspicion of an attempt to smuggle dutiable goods, or introduce merchandise or firearms, etc., is entertained, the officers may dispense with the examination of hand-bags, rugs and parcels and satisfy themselves by the examination of a selected portion of the other baggage to the extent of one or more representative packages according to the number brought by each passenger or set of passengers.

(b) The right to open any or every package remains, however, and can be exercised at the discretion of the officers.

(c) The officers are to put to each passenger the following question :—

“ Have you anything in your possession liable to duty, such as firearms, ammunition, alcoholic liquor, perfumed spirits, or any other article which is for sale?” They shall at the same time draw attention to the rules printed on the reverse of the declaration form.

(d) The utmost tact and courtesy are needed in every case. The rights of the revenue must be asserted, but no delay or unnecessary annoyances must be caused on any account to passengers.

5. If no dutiable articles are declared or detected, the Baggage Officer shall issue a pass in Customs Form No. 479. The declaration form entered by the passenger shall also be taken by the Baggage Officer at the time of passing and the entries completed.

6. If any dutiable articles are declared or found on examination, the passenger will be referred to the Baggage Inspector, who will receive duty, and issue a receipt in Customs Form No. 480.

7. Should a claim be made to pass dutiable articles free of duty under the concessions allowed for articles of private personal property re-imported, the Inspector may pass such goods free only if there are authenticated documents, in each case, substantiating the claim. In all other cases the passenger shall be referred to the Collector of Customs, with the option, should he wish to remove the article at once, of paying duty and applying for a refund afterwards.

The receipt in Form 480 shall be issued for all dutiable articles whether duty be levied or not, and shall contain a sufficient description of each article to permit of subsequent identification, as well as, in the case of any on which duty is not levied under the preceding clause, a note explaining the reasons. In the case of firearms, the details on the back of the form shall be filled up. Firearms of every description must be carefully examined.

8. Baggage Inspectors are authorized to pass free of duty firearms and ammunition in reasonable quantities belonging to passengers from Customs ports, or forming part of the equipment of an officer entitled to wear diplomatic, military or police uniform, etc., provided that the following particulars should in such cases be noted on the back of the receipt form, namely, the name, rank, position and address of the passenger, under his signature, in addition to the particulars of the arms required under the preceding rule, and particulars of the ammunition, if any.

Baggage Inspectors are also authorised to pass a gun, pistol, sword or knife, the property of a native officer or soldier arriving from a coast port when covered by a license from the Commanding Officer of the regiment to which he belongs.

9. Baggage Inspectors may not, however, pass the following, which shall be sent to the Custom House, and reported for orders :—

- (1) Arms imported by a native officer or soldier arriving from Hongkong.
- (2) Martini-Henry rifles and rifles of 303 bore and ammunition for these weapons imported by any passenger, or any other rifles of a military pattern or ammunition the importation of which is prohibited.

Exceptions.—When an officer of the British or Indian Army or of the Imperial Service Troops arrives in Calcutta by sea on duty and carries a rifle or carbine ostensibly as part of his military equipment, such weapon, even if of a prohibited bore, may be passed by the Baggage Officer on board, provided it is of a service or military pattern and bears the stamp and mark that indicate that it is the property of the State, or in the case of Imperial Service Troops, of the Native State concerned.

10. Passengers' baggage need not be detained owing to arms or ammunition or other dutiable articles being found in their boxes, unless they have in any way attempted to conceal them. In such cases the articles shall not be passed, but shall be sent to the Custom House with a special report.

11. Baggage shall be marked with the Baggage Officer's initials as soon as passed, and may then be removed. An officer shall be deputed to see that no packages leave the vessel without being marked. Passengers on vessels proceeding to the jetties or docks should be instructed to send the baggage pass along with the baggage to enable it to pass the jetty or dock gates. Baggage Officers must see that packages are removed as soon as possible after examination.

12. All packages which cannot be conveniently presented or opened for examination on board-ship, or at the time of landing, and all unaccompanied baggage, shall be sent to the Custom House.

If the vessel is discharging in the stream, such packages shall be forwarded by the baggage staff in charge of a Baggage Officer or peon, with a green boat note. Unaccompanied baggage shall be shown separately in the boat-note.

If the vessel is discharging at the jetties, such packages shall be forwarded by officers of the Port Trust as soon as possible after landing with a challan.

If the vessel is discharging at the docks, such packages may remain at the docks for a day or two before being forwarded by the officers of the Port Trust. In this case passengers shall be informed how long their baggage will remain in the docks before transfer to the Custom House.

The list of passengers and of unaccompanied baggage obtained under rule 3, or the certificate in the case of there being no unaccompanied baggage, shall be forwarded by the Baggage Inspector to the Inspector in charge of the Custom House Division when the baggage is forwarded to the Custom House. Unaccompanied baggage may only be passed at the Custom House.

Articles detained for any special reason shall be forwarded by the baggage staff to the Superintendent of the Preventive Service in charge of a Baggage Officer or peon.

13. Baggage Officers must see that no delay occurs in forwarding packages to the Custom House.

14. The Baggage Inspector on board shall forward the duty collected with a statement in Customs Form No. 453 accompanied by his receipt book and the passengers' baggage declarations to the Superintendent of the Preventive Service who shall compare the items in the statement with the foils of the receipts issued, initialling the last foil in token of his examination.

The statement with the cash shall then be sent to the cashier through the accountant, the amount remitted being entered in a register in Customs Form No. 403 in which the cashier shall give his acknowledgment.

15. The Superintendent shall forward the necessary reports to the Collector in the case of articles detained with the least possible delay.

16. Receipts shall be granted in Customs Form No. 576 for all baggage received in the Custom House; the receipts shall be serially numbered, and the number of the corresponding receipt will be noted in the green boat note or Port Trust challan accompanying the packages.

17. A landing charge of 8 annas shall be leviable for every package brought into the Custom House.

EXAMINATION AT THE CUSTOM HOUSE.

18. Baggage brought into the Custom House shall be examined by the Inspector of the Custom House Division and his staff. Fresh declarations in Form No. 478 are not required, but otherwise, except in the case of unaccompanied baggage when manifested, the procedure in examination shall follow the rules already laid down. The Inspector shall assess and realize landing fees and any wharf rent that may be chargeable in addition to duty. Such realization shall be entered in counterfoil receipts in Form No. 349 and brought to account in the manner prescribed in rule 14. Persons applying to clear unaccompanied baggage that is manifested shall be directed to present a bill-of-entry, which will be passed under the ordinary import procedure.

19. A register in Form No. 570 shall be maintained for all baggage upon which wharf rent accrues. Entries shall be commenced as soon as the rent becomes leviable, and be completed when the goods are passed out. A weekly inspection must be made to ensure that entries are regularly made. The boat-note or chalan number to be shown in column 2 of this register will be the serial number given under rule 16.

APPARATUS AND APPLIANCES INCLUDING THEATRICAL PARAPHERNALIA.

20. Article 41 of Schedule IV of the Tariff admits apparatus and appliances and parts thereof free, when imported by a passenger as part of his personal baggage and in actual use by him in the exercise of his profession or calling. Theatrical paraphernalia may be admitted free under this article, provided that the goods fall under the conditions specified therein, and in any orders issued from time to time by the Government of India. The examination of theatrical paraphernalia may be conducted on the importer's premises under suitable precautions.

EXPORT. SHIPMENT OF BAGGAGE.

21. Shipping bills are not required for the shipment of lona fide passengers' baggage.

22. Preventive officers shall at their discretion examine baggage brought for shipment to China, the Straits, Mauritius, and Ceylon, and report for orders any case in which they have good reasons to suppose that baggage for other ports contains dutiable or contraband articles.

23. When passengers embark at Diamond Harbour, it shall be the duty of the Preventive Officer in charge of the station to see that neither opium nor ganja is taken on board in their baggage.

The 30th October 1906. (1114-1)

Corporation of Calcutta.

It is hereby declared that, in exercise of the powers conferred by section 565 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, 1899, the General Committee of the Corporation of Calcutta intend to submit the following draft bye-laws for the consideration of the Corporation.

Any person having any objection to the bye-laws should submit it in writing to the Chairman of the Corporation before the 8th December 1906:—

BYE-LAWS UNDER SECTION 565 (52) OF THE CALCUTTA MUNICIPAL ACT FOR THE REGULATION OF THEATRES.

General Clauses.

1. These bye-laws shall, unless otherwise specified, apply to all theatres and other places of public resort recreation or amusement, whether existing at present or to be hereafter constructed, within the municipal limits of the town of Calcutta.

2. In these bye-laws, the expression "such premises" means and includes a theatre or other place of public resort, recreation or amusement as aforesaid.

3. All parts of such premises shall be properly and sufficiently ventilated in a manner to be approved by the Chairman.

4. A correct plan of the building and seating arrangements shall be framed and hung up in a conspicuous place of such premises, and two copies of the same shall be deposited with the Chairman. Any deviation from such plan without sanction previously obtained from the Chairman shall render the owner or lessee liable to the penalty prescribed in Bye-law 87.

5. The Chairman may cause all such premises to be inspected at least twice yearly.

Entrances and Exits.

6. In all such premises two separate exits shall be provided for every tier or floor which accommodates 300 persons, and additional exits shall be provided for every 150 or part of 150 persons above 300. In calculating the number of persons which can be accommodated in any tier of such premises, the standing space from which a view of the performance can be obtained will be considered as well as the seated areas. For this purpose standing room shall be calculated at 1½ feet square for each person.

7. Each of such exits shall be not less than 5 feet wide between the walls at any point or between the leaves of the doors when open.

8. Every such exit must deliver direct on an open space or thoroughfare.

9. Two separate exits of a minimum width of 5 feet shall be provided from the stage direct to a public street or open space communicating with a public street.

10. One separate exit of a minimum width of 4 feet shall be provided from each block of dressing-rooms direct to a public street or open space communicating with a public street, and shall in no way communicate with the stage.

11. All internal doors shall be so hung as not to obstruct, when open, any gangway, passage, staircase or landing.

12. All exit doors having fastenings shall be fastened by automatic bolts only of a pattern and in a position to be approved by the Chairman.

13. All doors and all gates used for entrances shall be made to open both ways and be so fitted that when opened inwards they can be locked back against the wall in such a manner as to require a key to release them.

14. All doors leading from exit passages, staircases, or corridors to other parts of such premises shall be hung so as to be closed by the stream of persons passing from the auditorium to the street and be fitted with springs.

15. No door-handles or other fittings shall project into exit ways more than one inch when the doors are open.

16. All barriers shall be made to swing or to open outwards with no other fastenings than automatic bolts.

17. No locks, bolts or locking-bars or other obstructions to exits other than as beforementioned shall be fitted on any doors, gates or barriers.

18. All exits and other doors or openings in the theatre used by the public for the purpose of exit shall be indicated by notices clearly painted to the satisfaction of the Chairman.

Corridors and Passages.

19. All corridors and passages must be of a minimum width equal to the total width of all exits with which they communicate. Where possible, inclines shall be used instead of steps.

20. All corridors and passages in such premises shall be kept absolutely free and shall not be used as cloak-rooms or otherwise obstructed in any way.

21. There shall be no recesses or projections in the walls of such corridors and passages within 5 feet of the floor.

Staircases.

22. All staircases in such premises intended for the use of the audience shall be at least 5 feet wide at their narrowest part if they communicate with exits from tiers accommodating not more than 300 persons, and shall be at least 7 feet wide at their narrowest part if they communicate with exits from tiers accommodating more than 300 persons.

23. All staircases shall be provided with treads not less than 11 inches wide and with risers not more than 6 inches high (each lapping at least one inch over the back edge of the step below it), without winders, in flights of not more than 15 or less than 3 steps each.

24. No staircase shall have more than 3 flights of 15 steps each without a turn, the depth of the landing between such flights being at least the same as the width of the staircase.

25. A continuous and uninterrupted hand-rail shall be fixed on both sides of all steps and landings supported by strong metal brackets built into the wall, and such hand-rails and brackets shall not project more than 3 inches.

26. No door shall open immediately upon a flight of steps, but a landing with a minimum distance of 3 feet between the door and the steps shall be provided between such steps and such doorway.

Seating Accommodation.

27. The seating area assigned to each person shall not be less than 2 feet deep and 1 foot 6 inches wide in all parts of the auditorium where no backs or arms are provided to the seat and not less than 2 feet 4 inches deep and 1 foot 8 inches wide where backs or arms are provided. In all cases, however, there shall be a space of at least 1 foot in depth between the front of one seat and the back of the seat immediately in front measured between perpendiculars. Where chairs, and not fixed seats, are used in a theatre they shall be battened together at a distance of not less than 1 foot 8 inches from centre to centre where they have arms and 1 foot 6 inches where they are without arms and in lengths of not less than 4 or more than 12 chairs in a section.

28. Each block of seating shall have a gangway of a minimum width of 3 feet 6 inches all round it provided that where chairs with automatic spring seats are provided in such a manner that when such chairs are unoccupied there is a space of at least two feet between each row of chairs and the row in front, such gangways need not be provided.

Latrines and Urinals.

39. All such premises shall be provided with sufficient and separate latrine accommodation for the use of males and females, and urinal accommodation for the use of males.

Precautions against Fire.

30. No soft wood or other inflammable partitions, screens, or barriers shall be used in any part of such premises, and no cavities shall be left behind any linings. All wood work of the stage shall be rendered non-inflammable or be hard wood. The following shall be deemed to be hard wood for the purposes of these by-laws:—Teak, Sal, Seesum, Sissoo, Padouk, Jharra, Karri, and such other woods as the Chairman may approve.

31. A drop curtain of some fire-resisting material to be approved by the Chairman shall be provided in the proscenium opening and it shall be completely dropped flush with the floor of the stage at least once during each performance.

32. In all such premises where a stage with a proscenium is erected, such stage shall be separated, from the auditorium by a brick proscenium wall not less than 15 inches in thickness, and such wall shall be carried up the full thickness to a height of at least 3 feet above the roof, such height being measured at right angles to the slope of the roof, and shall be carried down below the stage to a solid foundation.

33. Not more than three openings shall be formed in the proscenium wall, exclusive of the proscenium opening.

34. No such opening shall exceed 20 square feet in area. Each of such openings shall be fitted with a wrought-iron door hung so as to close of itself without a spring.

35. All skylights and lantern lights in such premises which may be liable to be broken shall be protected by stout galvanised-iron wire guards securely fastened on the outside.

36. The space underneath the stage shall be entirely enclosed, with the exception of such doors as the Chairman may approve, by a brick wall not less than 10 inches thick and shall be kept entirely clear and empty from all inflammable material or rubbish.

37. Such premises shall be provided with such number of hydrants and of such dimensions as may be required by the Chairman.

38. Each of such hydrants shall be provided with a length of hose of a minimum length of 30 feet with fittings of the Calcutta Fire Brigade pattern and shall be fitted with bibcocks for filling buckets. Three buckets filled with water shall be kept near each hydrant.

39. Where there is no constant supply of water in such premises there shall be provided at some suitable place to be approved by the Chairman two or more cisterns entirely distinct from any cisterns which may be provided for purposes of latrine and urinal flushing to be kept always filled with water.

40. Such cisterns shall be capable of containing in the aggregate at least 260 gallons of water for every hundred persons of the audience to be accommodated in the building.

41. Where such premises are made of wood, cisterns of double this capacity shall be provided.

42. Hand-pumps, hose, buckets and such other small fire-appliances as may be required by the Chairman shall be provided and shall be kept in such a position as the Chairman may direct.

43. Blankets or rugs and buckets filled with water shall always be kept on the stage, in the flies, scene stores or wings, and in the immediate passages approaching the dressing-rooms of such premises, and attention shall be directed to them by placards legibly printed or painted, and set up as the Chairman may direct.

44. A responsible person to be appointed by the Chairman and paid for by the owner of the theater at a rate not exceeding Rs. 5 a performance shall be deputed to remain in the wings of the stage during performances to keep the blankets or rugs and fire-appliances ready for immediate use.

45. Hatchets, hooks and other appliances for taking down hanging scenery in case of fire shall be always kept in readiness for immediate use.

46. The Chairman may order any such premises to be provided with direct telephonic communication with the nearest fire station.

Electric Lighting.

47. Sanction.—Before the installation of electric light or any electrical work or apparatus, and before any alterations or additions to the electric installation are commenced, the sanction of the Chairman must be obtained, and plans and specifications must be submitted.

48. Tests.—Where electric light is permitted, the Chairman shall obtain a certificate in writing half-yearly to his satisfaction that the system is in proper working order.

49. Main Circuits.—All premises lighted by electric light shall have at least three separate and distinct main circuits: (A) for the stage, (B) and (C) for the auditorium, corridors, exits, and all parts of the house open to the public. The circuits B and C shall be so arranged that approximately half the lights in each division of the auditorium and half those in each corridor, exit, etc., shall be on B and the other half on C circuits, and, as far as practicable, the lights on the two circuits shall be placed alternately. In no case may the two circuits be combined in one fitting, nor shall the wires or leads for one circuit be placed in the same box, tube or casing, etc., as those of another circuit.

A. PERMANENT INSTALLATIONS.

50. System of Supply.—Where supply is given on the three-wire system, circuits A and B or A and C may be supplied from the two sides of that system, but the other circuit, C or B, shall be taken from the street side of the main fuses for circuits A and B or A and C. The main leads, etc., for circuit A shall, where possible, be kept entirely on the stage side of the proscenium wall, and those for B and C entirely on the auditorium side of that wall. If it is desired to control a portion of the lights in the auditorium from the stage board (circuit A), this will be permitted if a sufficient number of lights, for safety purposes, be maintained on circuits B and C in each portion of the auditorium, entirely independent of the stage. The number and position of such lights shall be subject to the approval of the Chairman. No other premises and no other part of the same premises than that for which the installation has been sanctioned under Bye-law 47 shall be supplied with electric current from the mains or apparatus installed under such sanction.

51. Conductors.—The whole of the conductors throughout the buildings shall be of tinned copper wire having a conductivity which shall in no case be less than 100 per cent. of Mathiessen's standard for pure copper, as defined by the Committee on Copper Conductors, 1899. No conductor of less sectional area than No. 18 S. W. G. or its equivalent in standard wire or flexible chord is to be used. All conductors of a cross-section greater than No. 18 S. W. G. are to be stranded. The current density shall in no case exceed the maximum permitted for high external temperatures by the Rules of the Institution of Electrical Engineers, and in any special case such less current density as may be required by the Electrical Inspector.

52. Insulation.—All conductors shall be substantially and carefully insulated with the very best pure and vulcanised India-rubber and India-rubber coated tape, properly protected externally by braided flax or cotton treated with a suitable and recognised preservative coating or insulated and protected by such other means as may be approved at the time. The insulation resistance of conductors used must not in any case be less than 600 mile megohms grade for vulcanised rubber insulation, or for other approved insulation such insulation resistance as may be sanctioned by the Chairman. The name of the manufacturer shall be stated. The thickness of the di-electric must not be less than that permitted by the Rules of the Institution of Electrical Engineers.

53. Circuits.—In all circumstances complete metallic circuits shall be employed. Gas and water pipes shall never form part of any circuit. The main circuits A, B and C shall be sub-divided as may be necessary. The number of lamps shall be so sub-divided that no sub-circuit shall carry more than 5 amperes in the case of the auditorium, corridors, etc., or 20 amperes in the case of the stage; and each sub-circuit shall start from a distributing board. The same sub-circuit shall not be used for arc lamps and incandescent lamps. Lights outside buildings shall be on sub-circuits entirely independent of inside lights. These outside sub-circuits may carry any currents not exceeding 20 amperes. Circuits for power purposes shall be kept distinct and separate from lighting circuits.

54. Lighting of distributing boards.—There must be a bracket, carrying an 8-c.p. lamp fixed over each main and branch distributing board, and connected through an independent switch and single pole fuse to the bus bars of that board.

55. Conductors.—All conductors shall be efficiently protected from mechanical injury. Where conductors pass through walls, floors or ceilings, they shall be protected by iron pipes with an insulated lining or by glazed stoneware or porcelain tubes, and precautions shall be taken to prevent the possibility of fire or water passing along the course of the conductors. Split tubing must not be used. In special cases, or where necessary for protection from the depredations of rats, mice or other vermin, armoured cables may be used. These need receive no further mechanical protection, but the armouring shall be efficiently and continuously earthed. Lead-covered cables shall not be used unless protected by external armour of iron or steel or enclosed in substantial iron pipes or tubes. Metal fastenings for fixing conductors shall be avoided as far as possible. When they are unavoidable, some additional covering shall be used to protect the conductor, unless armoured, from mechanical injury at the points of support.

56. Casing and capping.—If casing be used, it shall be spaced from the walls on insulators; it shall be of teak or other approved hard wood, and each conductor shall be laid in a separate groove, unless previous permission be obtained to vary this condition. In no circumstances shall wires of opposite poles be laid in the same groove, nor wires of the same polarity belonging to different circuits A, B and C. The cover shall be secured with screws at the outer edges. Casings shall, as far as possible, be placed in sight, and the conductors shall always be accessible. Casing shall not be used where it is liable to injury from weather or leakage of water, nor shall it be recessed into plaster.

57. Pipes.—No soft or fusible metal tubing shall be used to contain conductors, nor shall any tubing which is not water-tight be embedded in walls or plaster or floors. Where iron pipe or tube is used as a mechanical protection, it shall have an insulating lining, and proper joint boxes shall be used.

58. External Conductors.—All external conductors shall be specially insulated and laid in lined iron pipes properly jointed and bushed, and of ample size. Proper joint boxes shall be used wherever joints occur in the conductors. In no case shall conductors belonging to different circuits (A, B and C) be run in the same barrel or be carried through the same boxes. Such iron pipes shall be protected where necessary, and securely fixed and supported when not underground.

59. Flexibles.—Flexible conductors if composed of wires smaller than No. 25 S. W. G. shall be of untinned copper wire; if composed of larger wire, the wire shall be tinned. They shall be insulated with pure and vulcanised India-rubber, and have an insulation resistance of not less than 600 megohms per statute mile when tested as above, and shall be protected on the outside by a stout braiding and rubber tube where necessary, as for instance in the orchestra. Should any of these flexible conductors be damaged, they shall at once be replaced. No circuit of this nature shall carry more than 5 amperes, and each circuit shall be protected by a fuse on each pole. The flexible wire shall be at least equivalent to 62-38 S. W. G.

60. Joints.—No joints whatever are to be made in any cable or wire without the permission of the Chairman. Connectors are to be used where a joint would otherwise be unavoidable, and they are to be of porcelain or other approved material entirely, mounted upon blocks, the junction being made in an approved manner.

61. Stage Lighting.—If the switchboard connections are made at the back of the board, there shall be a space of not less than 3 feet between the wall and the back of the board, or such larger space as may be necessary to ensure the thimbles and connections being at all times easily accessible, or, as an alternative, provision shall be made by hinging the board and placing it on rollers for rendering the back of the board accessible without breaking the connections or dismantling the board. No metal work in connection with the circuits shall be exposed or so fixed or constructed as to be liable to cause a short circuit. The sockets for the stage shall be of hard wood, vulcanite or slate, with metal guards, care being taken to avoid risk of ignition, and they shall be of specially substantial construction.

62. Footlights, Battens, &c.—Lamps on battens, footlights, etc., shall be protected by stiff wire guards, so arranged that no scenery or other inflammable material can come in contact with the lamps. No readily combustible material shall be used in connection with any lamps in such a manner that it might come in contact with the lamps. None but approved hard woods shall be used in connection with the lamps, and all wood shall be protected by incombustible material from the possibility of ignition by an arc between any two parts of the two conductors, or by heated particles from any conductor or part of a conductor which may connect together the two main conductors.

Where a number of lights, as in the footlights, battens, etc., are supplied under control of one switch, and protected by one single or double pole cutout, as the case may be, the conductors shall be maintained throughout of a section which has received the sanction of the Electrical Inspector.

The leads to the battens shall be specially guarded, particularly at the points where they join on to the battens, and a sufficient length shall be allowed to prevent the leads receiving any injury through any movement of the battens, and this part of the leads shall be protected by leather or stout waterproof canvas hose, properly fixed. The battens shall be suspended by at least three wire ropes attached to insulators on the battens. On no account shall the same battens be adapted for both gas and electric light.

63. Arc Lamps.—Arc lamps shall not be used inside such premises without special permission, and when used special precautions shall be taken to guard against danger from falling glass or incandescent particles of carbon. All parts of the lamps, lanterns and fittings which are liable to be handled (except by the persons employed to trim them) shall be insulated from the frame-work. In no case shall arc lamps be suspended by the conductors.

64. Cutouts, switches, &c.—All circuits shall be efficiently protected by fuses placed only at the distribution boards, which are to be in positions easily accessible to the staff, but inaccessible to the public. All fuses shall be of such pattern and be fixed in such a position as to admit of quick replacement. All circuits shall be provided with a fuse on each conductor, and the two fuses shall not come in the same compartment. All cutouts shall be so constructed that fused metal in falling cannot cause a short circuit or an ignition. All cutouts shall be so marked as to show what circuits or lamps they control.

All exposed metal works, such as fittings, switch and fuse covers, etc., shall be efficiently insulated from the circuits. All switches, cutouts, ceiling-roses, wall and floor sockets, and lamp-holders shall have unflammable bases and covers. All switches and cutouts shall have sufficient length of break, and shall be constructed so as to prevent the risk of formation of an arc. All lamp-holders shall be of bayonet-socket or other approved form, and shall be fitted with porcelain bridges or some equivalent separation between poles. All switches shall be of ample size to carry the currents for which they are intended without heating, and shall be so constructed that it will be impossible for them to remain in any position intermediate between the "on" and the "off" position, or to permit of a permanent arc or short circuit.

All fittings shall be suspended in an approved manner and special care taken to avoid risk of the suspension failing from any cause. Combined gas and electric fittings shall not be used. All switch and fuse-boards which are not fitted with front connections shall be so mounted as to give instant and easy access to the connections at the back of the board, and shall be provided with dividing strips between poles, both at back and in front, and proper lock-up cases with glass fronts, the glass (unless plate of adequate thickness) being protected by a wire guard.

65. Resistances.—Resistances for regulating the power of lights or motors or for other purposes shall be mounted on incombustible bases, and shall be so protected and placed at such a distance from any combustible material that no part of the resistance, if broken, can fall on such material, or vice versa. Liquid resistances shall be provided with proper trays and stands.

66. Insulation Resistance.—The insulation resistance of a system of distribution shall be such that the greatest leakage from any conductor to earth, when all branches are switched on, shall not exceed $\frac{1}{10,000}$ th part of the total current intended for the supply of the said lamps and motors, the test being made at the usual working K.M.F. Provided that this bye-law shall not be held to justify a lower insulation resistance than 10,000 ohms.

67. Supervision.—The switching gear shall be in the hands of thoroughly competent manipulators.

68. Motors, &c.—Motors shall, if permitted, be subject to special conditions, but electric fans and similar motors not taking more than 300 watts may be used if separately wired from fuses on a proper distributing board.

69. Plan of Wiring.—A correct plan of the wiring shall be always kept in a prominent position in the office of the manager of such premises.

B. TEMPORARY LIGHTING.

70. When it is desired to instal temporary lighting, notice must be given to the Chairman in writing. Wires and cables shall be adequately and firmly fixed, and shall be similar to the wires already specified in these bye-laws, and in all cases where the wires are within reach of the public they shall be cased. All joints shall be soldered if to be used for more than one week, and if to be used less than a week, the wire shall be soldered if larger than 7-20 N.W.G. or its equivalent. In either case the joints shall be insulated and protected. The circuits shall be subdivided as much as possible, no sub-circuit exceeding 10 amperes. All temporary work shall be immediately removed when no longer required for the purpose for which it was installed. In the case of temporary work on the stage, all connections to the permanent installation shall be removed immediately after each performance in which they are used, unless permission be obtained to the contrary. Such special conditions as may be requisite in each case will be attached with the consent of the Chairman to the use of temporary electrical work.

GENERAL.

71. All work generally shall be in strict accordance with the rules of the Institution of Electrical Engineers where not otherwise specified in these bye-laws.

72. Should any installation be found by the Chairman to be in a dangerous condition, he may prohibit its further use until the faults have been rectified.

73. At least one bucket filled with dry sand must be kept in some accessible position on the stage, and one must also be kept in each of the intake rooms for use in dealing with an electric fire.

74. Where the supply of energy is obtained from a public supply company nothing in these bye-laws shall render inoperative the rules of the supply company affecting consumers connected to their supply lines.

Lime Light.

75. In cases where lime light is used the following conditions shall be observed:—

- (a) All cylinders shall be tested to a pressure of 224 atmospheres to the satisfaction of the Chairman who may order such periodical examinations as he thinks fit.
- (b) Hydrogen and coal gas cylinders shall have left handed threads for attaching connections and shall be painted red.
- (c) All cylinders shall be used with an approved safety regulator.
- (d) All cylinders shall be suitably connected with the lantern by means of iron pipe or by means of rubber tubing protected on the outside by canvas and coiled wire, and so arranged that it cannot be affected by the movement of the operator, or by others in the neighbourhood of the lantern.
- (e) All such lime light apparatus shall be in charge of a competent person to be approved by the Chairman.
- (f) No gas shall be used otherwise than in cylinders under pressure. The use of bags is strictly prohibited.

Gas Light.

76. In cases where gas is used the following conditions shall be observed:—

- (a) Separate and distinct gas services and motors shall be provided to the stage, to the auditorium, and to the staircases, corridors and exits.
- (b) The foot-lights or floats shall be protected by fixed wire-guards.
- (c) The rows and lines of gas-burners in the wings (which must commence at 4 feet at least from the level of the stage) shall be protected by fixed iron wire-guards.
- (d) All battens shall be hung by at least three wire ropes, and shall be protected at the back by a solid metal guard and wire fixed to a stiff iron-frame at such a distance from the gas jets that no part of the scenery or decoration can become heated.
- (e) All moveable lights shall be fitted with flexible tubes and the gas in every case shall be capable of being turned off by the tap on the stage as well as by that on the flexible tube.
- (f) All flexible tubes shall be of sufficient strength to resist pressure from without.
- (g) If there be a sun-burner in such premises it shall be provided with a pilot light which shall be placed so that such sun-burner can be lighted from the stage.

Acetylene Gas.

77. In cases where acetylene gas is used the following conditions shall be observed:—

- (a) The gas must be generated and stored at pressure sufficient only for driving it through the burner. The pressure shall not exceed 20 inches in the generator or 6 inches in the holder or service-pipes.
- (b) The gas shall not be mixed with oxygen or with atmospheric air before it reaches the burner.
- (c) No apparatus shall be used for generating or storing acetylene gas unless it has been tested and approved by an expert to be appointed by the Chairman, and all such apparatus will be subject to periodic examination at the discretion of the Chairman.

- (d) Every such apparatus shall be placed in a building outside that in which the gas is used.
 (e) Such out-buildings shall be separate as far as possible from inhabited buildings, and shall be well ventilated. All usual precautions shall be taken to prevent escape of the gas and firing of the same in the generating room.
 (f) No person shall have charge of the apparatus unless he has been properly instructed in its management to the satisfaction of the Chairman.
 (g) The gas shall not be allowed to come into contact with copper or copper alloys, either in the generator and storage vessels or in the pipes and fittings.

78. As regards fittings the bye-laws applicable to gas lighting will also apply to acetylene lighting.

79. Under no circumstances will the production or use of highly compressed or liquified acetylene be permitted.

Cinematograph Lanterns.

80. The owner or lessee of such premises shall give the Chairman 24 hours' previous notice of any intended exhibition of a cinematograph lantern or other similar apparatus involving the use of a lengthy combustible film.

81. The films, when not actually passing through the lantern, shall be kept enclosed in metal cases. The film which is passing through the lantern shall be re-wound, either automatically or by hand upon another bobbin as fast as it emerges from the lantern front or at least directed by one of the operators into a large box lined with asbestos-board. A trough of glass full of alum water in front of the condenser, in order to intercept the heat from the illuminant, shall be provided at the discretion of the Chairman.

82. A wet blanket or other large and heavy wrapper shall be kept ready to smother fire in case of accident.

83. Acetylene gas shall not be used in cinematograph lanterns.

84. Not less than two operators shall be engaged in manipulating such lantern, and no other persons shall be within ten feet of the lantern during the exhibition. The whole duty of one of the operators shall consist in taking charge of the film after it has passed through the lantern.

85. No match, candle or any other naked light shall be used, nor shall smoking be allowed in proximity to the lantern.

Fee for Inspections and Tests.

86. The fee for all inspections and tests under these bye-laws shall be paid by the owner of the theatre, and shall be on a scale to be fixed by the Chairman.

Penalty Clause.

87. Every person guilty of a breach of any of these bye-laws shall be punishable (a) with fine which may extend to twenty rupees, and, in the case of a continuing breach, with fine which may extend to ten rupees for every day during which the breach continues after conviction for the first breach, or (b) with fine which may extend to ten rupees for every day during which the breach continues after receipt of written notice from the Chairman to discontinue the breach.

Port Adelaide river—Additional new beacons placed—Amended sailing directions.

No. 412 (second publication).—The President, Marine Board, Port Adelaide, has given notice (No. 18 of 1906) that in accordance with previous notices, eight extra Beacons have been placed on the north and east side of the cutting. The Beacons are painted black, and the lanterns green, from which a green light showing towards the cutting is exhibited; a white light is also exhibited from the back of each lantern showing towards the shore.

All the green light Beacons are numbered from the first or seaward Beacon with the letter "G" added, as follows:—No. 0G being outside Beacon; No. 1G, near the reflecting Beacon; No. 2G, opposite the old boat channel. This light indicates the turning point from No. 2 (red) lead towards No. 3. All the others, that is, Nos. 3G to 9G, both inclusive, are placed opposite the corresponding numbers of the white light Beacons on the other side of the cutting.

All the single light Beacons are placed about 15 feet back from the cutting, and painted red to starboard and black to port. The lights are white to starboard and green to port from seaward.

The red light on the pile Beacon south of No. 3 being no longer required has been discontinued.

In consequence of the above alterations the sailing directions have been amended to read as follows:—

Sailing directions.

By Night.—In approaching the Anchorage, vessels of deep draught should not bring the white light on the old structure to bear north of N.E. by E. in order to avoid the four-fathom patch, which bears N.W. half N. from the light on Wonga Shoal; then get No. 1 lead (which consists of two red lights vertical 10 feet apart, and two white lights vertical 11 feet 9 inches apart) in line; keep these in line passing between the occulting light on the red buoy and the outer green light on the north bank, also between the other green lights on the north bank and the white lights on the revetment mound.

Steer on the same line until the two red lights of No. 2 lead are coming on; then steer with them in line until abreast of No. 2G Beacon; then direct the course to pass between No. 3 and No. 3G Beacons; and so on from Beacon to Beacon round the point until No. 9 is reached. From a safe distance off No. 9 the lights of No. 10 lead will be seen; keep them in line until the red light is about a quarter of a point open to the right of the white light of No. 11 lead; then gradually alter the course to bring the lights of No. 11 lead in line; keep them in line (a sharp look-out being kept for the mooring buoys on the starboard hand) until the lights of No. 12 lead are seen coming into line; proceed as before by altering the course before the lights are on with each other. The same applies in the change from No. 12 to No. 13 lead. When the lights on the wharves are seen opening out off Luff Point, alter the course so as to round the point at a safe distance, and then up the centre of the channel, looking out for the mooring buoys on the starboard hand.

In going outwards the directions are just the opposite to those given for coming inwards; but in such case, in changing from one lead to another, the course should be gradually altered when abreast of the low (red) Beacon of each lead, except No. 2 lead. In this case, when abreast of No. 3 Beacon, gradually alter the course to a safe distance off No. 2G until the two red lights of No. 2 lead are in line, then proceed outwards with No. 2 lead in line.

By Day.—The directions by day are the same as by night, merely substituting the Beacons for the Lights.

This affects Admiralty Charts 2389A and B, 1750 and 1752.

During the progress of the work at the Light's Passage Harbour Works, masters of vessels exempt from pilotage may, if they so desire, avail themselves of the services of a pilot to assist them in passing such works, either in or out, at one-half the usual rates.

If the usual exemption flag is not hoisted it will be taken as a signal that a pilot is required. At night if a pilot is required the usual signal for a pilot should be shown.

N.B.—Owing to the nature of the work in progress, this notice may require to be amended from time to time, and therefore should be treated as tentative only.

AUSTRALIA, SOUTH COAST—SPENCER GULF.

Corny Point light—Alteration in character.

No. 413 (second publication).—The President, Marine Board, Port Adelaide, has given notice (No. 19 of 1906) that it is intended, on or about the 1st January 1907, to alter the characteristics of the above Light in the following respects:—

Instead of the Light being obscured over the Webb Rock and thence inshore as at present, a Red Sector will be shown over this Arc, i.e., between the bearings of N.E. $\frac{1}{2}$ E. and N.E. by N. $\frac{1}{2}$ N., where it is shut in by the first point to the Southward of the Light-house.

The Red Sector will be visible for 14 miles, the full range of the Light.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE BOARD OF REVENUE ON WARDS' AND ATTACHED ESTATES FOR THE YEAR 1905-1906.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—LAND REVENUE.

Darjeeling, the 18th October 1906.

RESOLUTION—No. 2679T.—R.

READ—

The Report of the Board of Revenue on Wards' and Attached Estates in the Lower Provinces for the year 1905-06.

The Report was submitted punctually this year.

2. Number of Estates under Management.—The number of estates under management at the close of the year was 164 as against 168 in the previous year in the Province as then constituted.

3. Payment of Revenue and Cesses.—The total payments on account of revenue and cesses due to Government represented 89·0 per cent. of the demand as against 96·0 in the previous year. The greater part of the balance is due from the Tagore estate.

4. Collection of Rent and Cesses.—The total collection of rent and cesses due to estates was 96·1 per cent. on the current demand as against 96·0 per cent. in the previous year.

5. Balances.—The total uncollected balance due to estates under management amounted to Rs. 51,02,436 or 74·7 per cent. of the current demand of the estates, as against Rs. 70,83,361, or nearly 77 per cent. in the preceding year. In the Presidency Division the increase is more than three lakhs, due mainly to the assumption of charge of the Panihati, Bhukailas No. III and the Janbazar estates. The increase in some of the estates in the Patna Division is due to the damage done to the bhadoi crops by heavy floods during the year. In the Bhagalpur Division the balances have increased owing chiefly to the addition of the Banaili (7 annas) estate, which was taken in charge during the year. In the Domparg estate in the Orissa Division it is reported that the balances cannot be materially reduced till the completion of the settlement and the introduction of the certificate procedure. The heavy balances in some of the estates in the Chota Nagpur Division are attributed to partial failure of crops. There was a decrease in the number of certificates filed during the year, which amounted to 7,425 as against 9,016 in the previous year. The decrease was shared by all the divisions. The number of rent suits filed during the year showed a slight increase, being 2,135 as against 2,062 in the previous year.

6. Reduction of Debts.—Altogether Rs. 24,01,483 were paid in liquidation of debts as against Rs. 47,34,774 in the previous year, in the Province as then constituted. The balance at the close of the year amounted to Rs. 2,17,26,500 as against Rs. 1,77,50,515 at the close of the previous year. The increase is mainly due to the assumption of charge during the year of the Banaili estate, the debts of which amount to over 48 lakhs.

7. Cost of Management and Expenditure on Improvements.—The total cost of management was 9·2 per cent. of the current demand as against 10·6 in the preceding year. The percentage was below the prescribed limit in the Presidency, Patna and Chota Nagpur Divisions, while in the Bhagalpur and Orissa Divisions it was 11·6 and 16·0 as against 11·4 and 14·5, respectively, in the previous year.

The total expenditure on works of improvement and schools and dispensaries amounted to Rs. 2,36,563 as against Rs. 2,49,935 in the previous year. The Lieutenant-Governor trusts that advantage will be taken of the development of the Agricultural Department to secure greater continuity and system in the carrying out of agricultural experiments.

8. Tours of Managers.—The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to notice that there has been some improvement in respect of tours of Managers of estates. The tours of the majority of the managers extended over 90 days or more. In the cases of those who failed to spend the prescribed period on tour the reasons have been fully explained by the Board.

9. Education of Wards.—The Lieutenant-Governor desires that the Board will submit a separate report on the subject of the education of the wards, which is one of very great importance.

10. The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are due to the Board for their careful supervision and efficient administration of the estates under their charge during the year. The good services of the officers commended by them will be noted by the Appointment Department of this Government.

11. The following extracts from the report are published for general information.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

R. W. CARLYLE,

Chief Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

Extracts from the Report of the Board of Revenue, Lower Provinces, on the Administration of Wards and Attached Estates in the Lower Provinces during the year 1905-06.

Para. 3. Of the 168 estates which were under management at the close of the year 1904-05, 36 estates, including Bhukailas No. I. which, during the year under report, had been transferred to the district of Tippera, were made over to the Province of Eastern Bengal and Assam. Thirty-seven new estates were brought under management, including the six estates of the district of Sambalpar, which was added to this province in October last, making a total of 169 estates under management during the year under report. Five estates were released during the year, and the number under management at the close of the year was 164.

5. The percentage of rent and cesses paid on the amount due decreased from 72·8 in 1904-05 to 69·6 in the year under report.

Rent and cesses due to superior landlords.

6. The collection of rent and cesses due to the estates was 96·1 per cent. on the current demand, as against 96·0 per cent. in the preceding year.

Collection of rent and cesses due to the estates.

Presidency Division.—Since the submission of the returns, the actual collections in the Bawali wards' estate have been reported to be 67·7 per cent. on the current demand, against 39·8 per cent. shewn in Appendix I. The lower percentage was due to the exclusion from the report of a sum of Rs. 11,622 collected jointly by the Common Manager of the whole Bawali estate and credited to the general funds. The Common Manager who has also been appointed Manager of the wards' estate has been instructed by the Collector to shew its receipts separately. The high prices and failure of crops in East Bengal affected the collections in the two Bhukailas estates (82·1 and 57·4), the major portions of which lie in that Province. The Janbazar estate (35·6) was under management for a few months of the year only.

Patna Division.—The collections on the Bherathpura estate (84·7) which was taken in charge during the year suffered from disadvantages unavoidable during the first year of the Court's management. In the Mahtha (82·9) and the Narhan (85·3) estates the poor results are ascribed to the damage done to the bhadoi and aghani crops by the floods.

Bhagalpur Division.—The Banaili (7 annas) estate (7·8) was taken in charge only a month before the close of the year. The whole estate is leased out to the 9-annas proprietors, who adjust the bulk of the rent against the interest due to them, and pending arrangements for a further loan from them, the adjustment was not made before the close of the year. The collections in the Khagra estate were 118·9 per cent. of the current demand. This result is particularly satisfactory in view of the fact that proposals for the release of the estate, which have since been carried into effect, were under discussion during the year, and great credit is due to Mr. M. M. Halliday, the Manager, for the good collections, more especially as it was only necessary to file certificates and rent suits in 72 cases.

Chota Nagpur Division.—In Ranchi, the low percentage (84·3) of collections was due, it is stated, (1) to the settlement operations, (2) to the realization of costs of settlement, and (3) to the partial failure of the rabi crops. The Deputy Commissioner, however, thinks that there was lack of effective supervision over the tahsildars as the permanent Manager was on sick leave, and an officiating Manager was in charge during the collecting season. The bad results in the Pandra 2nd and 4th kismats estate (68·0) in Maubhum are due chiefly to the non-realization of royalties from lessees of coal-mines. In the Kashipur ward's estate, the poor collections were due to the fact that the estate only came under management in the middle of October with very large arrears outstanding against it. Moreover the accounts of the estate were in some confusion. In the Dhalbhum estate in Singhbhum, the rent payable by the Dhalbhum Syndicate to the estate has not yet been ascertained.

13. The question of carrying out programmes of agricultural improvements and experiments in wards' estates has been under consideration during the year, and it is proposed to discuss it at the Commissioners' Conference.

Agricultural experiments and improvements.

Farms.

More definite arrangements than at present exist are required in order to secure continuity which alone can give useful results, and it is hoped that it will be possible to take advantage of the development of the Agricultural Department so as to ensure this object.

Sripur farm, Hatwa estate, Saran.—During the year a change was made in the management of the farm, which has now been placed under Mr. Mackenzie, a practical planter and agriculturist and an expert in cattle-breeding, who performs the double duties of Superintendent of the farm and Circle Officer. In view of the establishment of the Pusa Institute and the Divisional farm at Bankipore, this farm is to continue as a demonstration station only and the net cost of working it is not to exceed Rs. 10,000. The Director of Agriculture has been asked to advise on the steps necessary to bring about this result. Cattle-breeding, it is reported, has made good progress, and the young stock are said to be promising. So far they have consisted of the calves that were brought in at foot when the cows were purchased, or those bred from the kheri or local bulls which were subsequently condemned. The farm only obtained a good bull of superior class in November 1904, and real improvement begins with the stock subsequently obtained. The weather was very favourable for the rabi harvest, and the threshing of oats and other grain was completed unusually early.

14. Bu-dwan Division.—In the Nyagram estate attestation and operations under section 103A of the Bengal Tenancy Act were finished, and the final publication of the records was commenced during the year.

Survey and record-of-rights.

Presidency Division.—The Backergunge properties of the Tagore and Bhukailas Nos. II and III estates are under settlement. During the year attestation work in 68 out of 82 villages of the former estate was completed, and that in respect of the remaining villages is still in progress. The record-of-rights has been published in respect of 211 villages. The records of 124 finally-published villages have been received, and 127 cases under section 105 and eight under section 106 of the Bengal Tenancy Act instituted. They are all pending. The record-of-rights in respect of fifteen villages appertaining to the Bhukailas No. II estate was published during the year. In the Syudpur trust estate the survey and record-of-rights in respect of dihis Siromani and Maheswarpasa have not yet been completed. Attestation work is now going on.

Patna Division.—In Patna, the preparation, in accordance with the settlement records, of the rent-rolls of the villages of the Guzri estate, situated in the district of Purnea, will shortly be completed. In the Deo ward's and Deo Rani's estates in Gaya such rent-rolls have been prepared, mutations are being recorded, and the necessary registers are being kept up. The boundary marks were inspected by the Manager, and a register of boundary stones has been opened in the Deo ward's estate. The work of revision of rents in the Hatwa Raj estate in Saran has made satisfactory progress. The number of mutations has increased considerably in respect of purchased holdings, and efforts are being made to bring the records up to date. The records are also kept up to date in the three petty estates in that district. In the Bettiah estate in Champaran, the khatians of the newly-purchased Motihari mahal are being copied in the Collectorate and will be supplied shortly. There were 1,470 applications for mutation in villages held direct. The thikadars reported 273 mutations, 1,084 resettlement of vacant tenancies and 511 settlements of waste lands. Endeavours are being made to ensure further improvement and to induce all thikadars to report mutations regularly. Four thousand stone pillars purchased during the year are being sent out to tahsildars and Factory Managers for the replacement of damaged and missing pillars. Mutation registers have not been maintained in the Mahtha's estate in Muzaffarpur, but the present Manager has issued instructions for the opening and maintenance of these registers. In the Narhan estate the working rent-roll of all the estate villages, except one in the Patna district, has been adjusted according to the settlement papers, and 819 mutations were registered during the year.

Bhagalpur Division.—General operations under the Bihar and Sonthal Parganas Settlement Departments for a survey and the preparation of a record-of-rights have been going on during the year in all districts of the Division, except Darjeeling, and these embrace the properties under the Court of Wards situated within the areas dealt with. In Monghyr only the traverse survey was done, but the settlement operations will eventually extend to the villages belonging to the Ratan estate south of the Ganges. In the Bhagalpur district settlement operations are now in progress in the south, and before long the whole of the Banaili estate will have been settled. In Purnea the record for most of the Khagra estate has been completed, but in some villages only attestation has been finished, and cases under section 103A of the Tenancy Act are being heard. In the Sonthal Parganas, Pakour was the ward's estate dealt with during the year, and there attestation was finished and the draft record published in the Bengali villages. Survey operations will extend to the Rohini and Punasi estates during the ensuing field season. This will be the third settlement of that part of the district since the enactment of Regulation III of 1872.

Orissa Division.—The survey and settlement of the Dompura estate in Cuttack were begun during the year. The relaying of traverse lines was completed, and 15,301 acres of the total cultivated area of 16,000 acres were cadastrally surveyed. Records were written for 4,681 acres. The proposed work in the Parikud estate in Puri has been postponed to the current year. In Sambalpur the operations were completed in all but two estates.

Chota Nagpur Division.—In Ranchi seven of the estates were under survey and settlement during the year. In another estate, the settlement of which is being carried out separately, the record-of-rights is being prepared by a Deputy Collector. The Pachete estate in Manbhum spent Rs. 520 on the survey and settlement of three villages and Rs. 161 in the measurement of certain properties. The Patkum and Katras estates also spent small sums for the measurement of certain lands. In Singhbhum, in which the survey and settlement of all the estates, except Dhalbhum, were completed in 1903-04, some of the terms of the patta and record-of-rights as drawn up by the Settlement Officer in 1903, have been objected to by the Raja of Porahat, who is the superior landlord of all the encumbered estates in the district, except Dhalbhum. Government has appointed Mr. A. N. Moberly as Settlement Officer for the purpose of revising the record-of-rights, and this work is now in progress.

16. There has been a satisfactory decrease in the number of certificates filed during the year under report which (after exclusion of figures for the transferred districts) amounted to 7,425 as against 9,016 in the previous year. All the Divisions shared in the decrease.

Operation of the Certificate Procedure.

21. During the year under report the Court of Wards Act, IX (B.C.) of 1879, was amended by Act I (B.C.) of 1906. The most important provisions introduced by the new Act are as follows:—

Laws.

- (i) Under the old Act the Court of Wards incurred considerable risks when it borrowed money for the purpose of paying off debts carrying high rates of interest. This was due to difficulty in promptly ascertaining the amount of indebtedness of estates. It has, therefore, been enacted that creditors shall be required to register all debts within a period of six months from the assumption of charge of a ward's property; that they shall furnish particulars and documents in support of their claims; that debts not so registered shall, save when the Court relinquishes charge, as provided in the new section 10E, become extinguished, and that when claims have been received within the period specified, the Court of Wards shall investigate them and decide which of them are to be admitted wholly or partly, or are to be wholly or partly rejected. It has also been provided that all proceedings in the Civil Courts shall, if necessary, be stayed during the first year of management. It is open to the Court of Wards, when admitting a claim, to make proposals in writing for its reduction; an acceptance of such a proposal will be binding on the claimant; if he refuses it, he will be able to sue for the claim in a Civil Court, if it was registered within the prescribed period. The Court of Wards will thus know the total liabilities of the estate before borrowing, and, where the estate is inextricably involved, will be able to relinquish charge.

- (ii) Section 13A has been inserted in order to enable surplus money from Trust Funds to be invested in loans to wards' estates. It gives power to the Court of Wards to retain charge of estates after the death of the proprietors concerned, or after they cease to be disqualified, till all the debts and liabilities of these estates are cleared in full. The Court of Wards had this power hitherto only in regard to estates of persons disqualified under section 6(e), but the new Act has extended it so as to cover proprietors of the other classes mentioned in section 6. This will greatly facilitate the power of the Court of Wards to borrow money at a low rate of interest.
- (iii) Section 34A added by the new Act provides for the recovery of expenses incurred by a Collector in taking action under sections 31, 32 or 33, if the property is not taken charge of.
- (iv) Part VII of the Court of Wards Act regarding suits has been made applicable to the case of the properties of all wards of the Court, except in respect of suits instituted or pending in the High Court.
- (v) All employes of the Court of Wards have been declared public servants for the purposes of the Indian Penal Code.
- (vi) For the purposes of Part VII and sections 60 and 60A of the Court of Wards Act, a person whose property is under the Court of Wards by virtue of the second clause of section 11, or charge of whose property has been retained under section 13A, shall be considered to be a "ward," but only in respect of such property.
- (vii) The method of publication of certain notices under the Act has been clearly stated.

The estates in the district of Sambalpur, which has been lately added to this Province, are managed under the Central Provinces Court of Wards Act, XXIV of 1899, and the rules framed thereunder. The Commissioner is the Court of Wards for these estates. The amendment of the Chota Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, VI of 1876, is still under consideration.

23. Miss Cornelia Sorabji continued to hold the appointment of Legal Adviser to pardanashin ladies under the Court of Wards.

General.
Legal Adviser to pardanashin ladies under the Court of Wards.

During the year under report she paid visits to the ladies of seven estates in this Province, in most cases on several occasions. She also visited several estates in the districts which now belong to Eastern Bengal and Assam. She was able to prevent litigation between the proprietrix of the Narhan estate and her son-in-law, and has devoted much attention to the health and education of the daughter of the proprietrix. She has conducted much business on behalf of the Maharani of Bettiah, and has removed a good deal of friction in regard to the management of the Lugma and Ratan estates in the Bhagalpur Division. She also rendered great assistance in the difficulties which arose in connection with the assumption of charge of the Janbazar estate. Apart from purely business matters, Miss Sorabji's visits and companionship have conduced most beneficially to the welfare of the ladies with whom she has come in contact, and the Board desire to express their appreciation of the value of her services.

Since the close of the year the terms of Miss Sorabji's appointment have been revised with the approval of Government. Her retainer has been raised from Rs. 200 to Rs. 800 a month, and it is proposed that she should periodically visit all the estates in the Province which are the property of pardanashin ladies or of which the proprietors are under the guardianship of pardanashin ladies. Arrangements are now being made to give effect to these proposals. The Board consider it desirable that Miss Sorabji should not merely be employed to settle difficulties after they have arisen, but that she should gain confidence beforehand, so as to be able to prevent troubles from occurring or from assuming serious proportions. If the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam accept the new arrangements, it is proposed that the Bengal Government should continue to share Miss Sorabji's services with that Government.

40. During the year under report one hundred estates were under management under the Ohta Nagpur Encumbered Estates Act, VI of 1876, nineteen estates having been brought under protection during the period. Three estates were restored to their proprietors, leaving 97 estates under management at the close of the year.

Number of estates.

44. Debts amounting to Rs. 5,33,248 were paid during the year under report and Rs. 40,68,930 remained due by the estates under management at the close of the year.

Debts of estates.

Hazaribagh.—In one of the estates in this district the debts other than arrear rents and cesses have been paid off in full. In six of the remaining estates payment of debts was in excess of the provision in the schemes, while in the others it fell short. The deficiency in the case of the Doranda estate is due partly to the special grants made for the diragaman ceremony of the proprietor's wife and the sradh ceremony of the proprietor's uncle, and partly to heavy law expenses; in the Dharguli estate to a special grant of Rs. 4,000 for the marriage expenses of the proprietor's daughters; in the Nowdiha estate partly to heavy law expenses and partly to a special grant made for the performance of the sradh ceremony of the eldest wife of the proprietor; in the Morna estate to the collections of an important mukarrari tenure having come to a standstill owing to the proprietor putting forward a claim for the resumption of the tenure in consequence of the death of the original mukarraridars; in the Kapka estate to a special grant on account of the marriage of the daughter of one of the proprietors and also to money having been kept in hand to meet the expenses of another marriage in the proprietor's family in the beginning of the current year; in the Hosir I estate to the payment of arrear rents and of costs of suits in respect of two villages; in the Hosir II estate to short collections; in the Paganj estate chiefly to the non-receipt of the expected award for the lands taken up for the Gaya-Katras Railway; in the Kheshmi estate partly to the postponement of the sale of a portion of the estate by which it was estimated that Rs. 60,000 would be raised, and partly to the exclusion from the rent roll of the estate of the demand of a village and to the cost of litigation in connection therewith; in the Chakmanjo estate to payment of heavy law charges; and in the Jeridih estate to the short collections of the year under report.

Ranchi.—No schemes have been sanctioned for three of the encumbered estates under management in this district. The scheme of the Kulmunda estate was found unworkable and a revised one has since been sanctioned. The entire Parba estate was in the possession of a zarpeshgidar when brought under management. The Deputy Commissioner proposes to submit a revised scheme after cancelling the zarpeshgi lease. The Jingi estate which, according to the sanctioned scheme should have been released in the year 1902-03, has been retained under management owing to the debts due by it not having been fully paid off. The Deputy Commissioner proposes to submit shortly a revised scheme for this estate. In ten estates the payment of debts was in excess of the provision in the schemes, while in the remaining estates it fell short. The short payments were due partly to short collections of rent and partly to unforeseen expenditure, especially under the head "Law Charges" in some of the estates.

Palamau.—Schemes have not been sanctioned for six out of the 21 encumbered estates in Palamau. In seven of the remaining fifteen estates, the payments exceeded the provision in the schemes, while in the remaining eight they fell short. In Manka and Pankri the deficiencies were small. In Jaipur the deficiency was due to short collections; in the Tori estate partly to excess law charges and partly to poor collections; in the Babhandih (R. Singh) estate to the grant of Rs. 1,500 for a marriage in the proprietor's family; in the Babhandih (L. B. Singh) estate to the cost incurred in the institution of certain suits; and in the Karar (U. C. Singh) estate to short collections. The Deputy Commissioner has not explained the deficiency in the Burhibeer estate.

Manbhum.—In one of the estates no scheme has yet been sanctioned. In three of the remaining estates, the payments exceeded the provision in the schemes, while in the other estates they fell short. The deficiencies in the Tundi and Patkum estates are reported to be due to some of the creditors to whom debts were payable not having come forward to receive payment within the year. In the Bharamahal estate the deficiency was due to the payment of Rs. 1,000 to the proprietor for a marriage ceremony. In the Naro estate it was partly due to short collections and partly to the payment of arrear rent and to the grant of Rs. 299 to the proprietor on account of a social ceremony. In the Manbazar and Torang estates the deficiencies were due chiefly to short collections.

Singhbhum.—In two estates only did the payments fall short of the provisions in the scheme. In the Kera (G. D. Singh) estate, this was partly due to short collections and partly to the payment of Rs. 241 to the proprietor for repairs to his houses. In the Kera (J. N. Singh) estate it was due chiefly to the payment to the proprietor of Rs. 300 for the marriage of his daughter and of Rs. 100 for repairs to his houses.

RESOLUTION ON THE REPORT OF THE DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL, FOR THE PERIOD OF 15 MONTHS FROM 1ST APRIL 1905 TO 30TH JUNE 1906.

REVENUE DEPARTMENT—AGRICULTURE.

Darjeeling, the 31st October 1906.

RESOLUTION—No. 3089T.R.

READ—

The Report of the Department of Agriculture, Bengal, for the period of 15 months from 1st April 1905 to 30th June 1906.

Read again—

The Resolution on the Report of the Agricultural Branch of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture, Bengal, for the year ending 31st March 1905.

The last Report submitted on Agriculture was for the year ending 31st March 1905. To secure uniformity in regard to the period covered by the reports of the Provincial Agricultural Departments and the dates of their submission, and to make the reports available at the same time for the compilation of the general report of the Inspector-General of Agriculture, the Government of India, in their letter No. 6—231-1, dated the 8th March 1906, directed that the period covered by all reports of the Department of Agriculture should be the year ending the 30th June, and that the reports should be submitted by the Provincial Directors of Agriculture by the 15th September. The present Report, therefore, covers the period of 15 months from the 1st April 1905 to the 30th June 1906. It was submitted with commendable punctuality.

2. Charge.—The Department was in charge of Mr. N. D. Beatson Bell, as a branch of the Department of Land Records and Agriculture, till the 16th October 1905. On the 17th October 1905, Mr. C. E. A. W. Oldham was placed on special duty for the purpose of organising a separate Department of Agriculture. On receipt of the sanction of the Secretary of State to the appointment, Mr. Oldham was appointed to be the Director of the Department of Agriculture from the 3rd April 1906.

3. Organisation of the Department.—The lines on which the Department was to be organised were indicated in paragraph 3 of the Resolution of this Government on the Report for the year ending 31st March 1905. Mr. Oldham, after taking charge, prepared a detailed scheme for the development of the Department extending over ten years. The scheme is under the consideration of Government. A site for the Provincial Agricultural College has been selected at Sabaur near Bhagalpur; the lands required have been acquired; and plans of the necessary buildings have been prepared. Owing to a large increase in the number of applications for seeds and implements, the establishment of a seed and implement store became an urgent necessity. A godown near the office of the Director of Agriculture has been hired for the purpose; a stock of seeds and implements has been collected; and a Superintendent has been appointed to look after the store. Steps have also been taken to form two separate collections of implements, manures, and seeds to be sent round, in charge of competent officers, to fairs and agricultural and industrial shows, for exhibition and demonstration. The preparation of the weekly weather and crop statistics has been made over to the Department; and the preparation of all rainfall statistics has also been transferred to it from the office of the Meteorologist, Calcutta.

4. Scientific Experiments.—Experiments in the cultivation of jute were carried out on the lines indicated by the Inspector-General of Agriculture, and the results have been summarised in the Report. A note showing the work done in connection with the selection of seeds is appended to the Report. Four special jute farms were established in Purnea, Berhampore, Krishnagar, and Chinsura; and work was conducted under the supervision of the Deputy Director. The proposed legislation to penalise the fraudulent watering of jute is still under consideration. About three-fourths of the area under jute cultivation is included in Eastern Bengal; and the Lieutenant-Governor awaits information as to the action which the Government of Eastern Bengal and Assam proposes to take in the matter.

It is to be regretted that the experiments made to introduce superior varieties of cotton again failed, the season being very wet even for Bengal. Attempts to improve indigenous varieties of cotton by seed selection are being continued; and a continuous record is being kept of the names of the raiyats, the character of the soil, the nature of the season, etc.

The results of the experimental cultivation of Muzaffarnagar wheat have not been encouraging on the whole, the unfavourable weather of the year being largely responsible for the failure. A scheme for future work in regard to Indian wheat has been framed by the Board of Agriculture. To give effect to the scheme in its entirety a wheat specialist will have to be appointed to control and guide the work of the Province. The question of the appointment of an expert is under the consideration of the Government of India. Meanwhile, Mr. N. N. Banerji has been deputed to make an agricultural survey of the different varieties of wheat.

5. Irrigation Experiments.—It has been decided to abandon the experiments, undertaken on the lines indicated by the Irrigation Commission, especially with regard to economy in the use of water, until it is possible to carry them out on a larger scale, and at more suitable sites, where an officer of some standing can supervise the work.

Last year, Mr. N. N. Banerji was placed on special duty in connection with well-irrigation. He visited the United Provinces, and made himself acquainted with the practice of irrigation from temporary wells, which have proved in famine years so valuable a resource in the eastern districts of those provinces; he then toured round the districts of the Patna, Bhagalpur, and Chota Nagpur Divisions in order to ascertain whether there are any insurmountable obstacles to the extension to those districts of the methods of well-irrigation which prevail in the United Provinces and to indicate localities in which the sinking of wells may be beneficial. He has completed his tour, and the report of the results of his enquiries is awaited. He has, meanwhile, submitted proposals regarding the training and maintenance of an expert well-boring staff whose services could be lent to landlords and cultivators. These proposals are now under consideration.

6. Agricultural Stations.—It has been decided by the Government of India that experimental farms should in future be designated agricultural stations. It has further been ordered that a separate annual report of each agricultural station, containing a continuous scientific record of experimental results, should be prepared; that an account of the administration of the station should be appended to the Annual Report of the Agricultural Department; and that, with a view to the dissemination of results when an experiment has become sufficiently advanced to yield definite conclusions, separate bulletins, containing an account of the experiments and the results achieved, should be published and widely distributed in the areas affected by the experiments in question. In view of these orders, a short account of the administration of the existing agricultural stations has been given in Appendix IV of the Report. The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that considerable progress has been made at the stations, and that the Department is now in a position to make several definite recommendations as a result of the experiments carried out. A site for a new agricultural station for South Bihar has been selected near Bankipore, and steps have been taken for the acquisition of the land. The Director has also selected a site near Ranchi for a station for the upland tracts of Chota Nagpur.

7. Experiments in Government and Warās' Estates.—The Lieutenant-Governor notices with satisfaction that this important matter is receiving the special attention of the Director. It is hoped that with the appointment of an expert supervising staff and the issue of instructions as to the manner of recording and reporting results of experiments, considerable improvement will be effected. The further report on this subject promised by the Director is awaited.

8. Sericulture.—The Bengal Silk Committee continued to do useful work. Owing to the transfer of certain important silk districts to Eastern Bengal and Assam, the Government contribution from this province to the Committee has been reduced to Rs. 10,000 a year, with effect from the 1st April 1906.

The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that the Tributary States of Mourbhanj, Keonjhar and Dhenkanal, are showing an enlightened policy in regard to sericultural and agricultural development.

In May last the principal firms interested in the silk industry submitted a strong representation, drawing attention to the marked decline in the industry in this province, and asking that prompt measures might be taken to re-establish it. A small Committee was, accordingly, appointed to enquire into the present state of the silk industry and the causes of the alleged decline, and to suggest remedial measures. The Committee have completed their work and their report is under consideration.

With a view to the improvement of the tassar silk industry, a farm has been opened at Chaibassa in the district of Singhbhum, and work has been started under the supervision of Mr. N. G. Mukharji.

9. Agricultural Education.—Seven out of nine students passed at the final examination from Sibpur. Two passed students have been selected to be sent to the United States of America, at the cost of Government, to study Agriculture at the Cornell University, Ithaca. Sir Andrew Fraser is glad to find that very satisfactory reports have been received of the progress made by the four students deputed to the University last year. The Director of Agriculture, Bengal, will be asked to convey to Mr. Bailey, the Director of the College, the thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor for the kind interest he is taking in the welfare of the students.

An agricultural class has been attached to the Hazaribagh Zilla School. Some improvement appears to have taken place in the attendance of students at the agricultural classes of the several schools and colleges; and useful work is reported to have been done in some places. It is hoped that the classes will attract more students and that attendance will become more regular when the Provincial Agricultural College is established, especially if scholarships are provided by District Boards.

The Lieutenant-Governor notices with satisfaction that the important question of the practical training of sons of cultivators is receiving the attention of the Director.

10. Publication of Agricultural information, &c.—It is to be regretted that the Director has not yet been able to arrange for the publication of an Agricultural magazine. His proposals as to the staff required for the work are awaited.

11. Agricultural Associations.—Divisional Agricultural Associations have been formed in all Divisions, except Bhagalpur, under the presidency in each case of the Divisional Commissioner. Divisional Agricultural Inspectors, selected from the passed students of the Sibpur Agricultural classes, have been attached to the Associations of the Burdwan, Presidency, Patna and Orissa Divisions to act as expert advisers on all questions that may come before the Associations, and to assist the members of local Associations in their work. Agricultural Associations have also been formed in almost every district. It is satisfactory to note that these associations have already done useful work.

12. Indigo.—The Lieutenant-Governor is glad to observe that very encouraging results have been obtained from the experiments made in the manufacture of indigo and the cultivation of Java-Natal seed.

13. The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are due to Mr. N. D. Beatson Bell for his management of the Department while it was under his charge, and to Mr C. E. A. W. Oldham for the able manner in which he has discharged the duties of his new office and for the excellent and interesting report he has submitted. His Honour is glad to notice that Mr. F. Smith, Deputy Director, has been commended for his conspicuous zeal and for his close and careful supervision of the work done at the agricultural stations and jute farms under his charge; and he desires to acknowledge the services of Messrs. D. N. Mukharji, N. N. Banerji and N. G. Mukharji. The thanks of the Lieutenant-Governor are also due to the Bengal Chamber of Commerce for the help courteously given by them to the Department. In conclusion, His Honour desires to place on record his appreciation of the constant assistance rendered to the Department by Dr. J. W. Leather, Imperial Agricultural Chemist, and of the valuable work performed by Mr. Bergtheil and his Assistants at the Research Station at Sirsia.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal,

R. W. CARLYLE,

Chief Secretary to the Govt. of Bengal.

The mean pressure, temperature, etc., are deduced from eye observations.

The maximum and minimum temperatures are obtained from self-registering thermometers. All the thermometers are verified, and the readings have been corrected to a standard constructed and verified at the Kew Observatory. They are exposed under a thatched shed open at the sides, and are suspended four feet above the ground.

The barometer readings are corrected to those of the standard, Newman's No. 86, formerly at the Surveyor-General's Office.

The hygrometric elements are obtained from Tables III, IV, and V of the official tables computed in the Meteorological Office, and based on Regnault's modifications of August's formula.

The directions and the movement of the wind are taken from the trace of a Beckley's anemograph.

The mouth of the rain-gauge is one foot above the ground. The rainfall reported on any day is for 24 hours preceding 8 A.M. of that day.

No. 2871 For.—The 12th November 1906.—The following is republished for general information.

R. W. CARLYLE,

Chief Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

Circular No. ^{51—F.}₁₈₈₋₄, dated Simla, the 9th October 1906.

RESOLUTION— By the Govt. of India, Dept. of Revenue and Agriculture.

In connection with the raising of the status of the Forest School at Dehra Dun to that of Imperial Forest Research Institute and College, the Government of India have had under consideration the questions of the system of recruitment for the Provincial Forest Service, and of the training both for that Service and for the Subordinate Executive Service. After consulting Local Governments, they have arrived at the following conclusions, which are based upon the general principle that it is sufficient for them to prescribe maximum limits of expenditure and minimum limits of qualifications and training, and to leave each Local Government within those limits to draw up rules for its own Forest Service.

2. While the Government of India attach great importance to the efficient training of Deputy Rangers, Foresters and Guards, they consider that the training of these subordinate officials should now be left to Local Governments. They have accordingly decided that the Vernacular class hitherto maintained at the Forest School, Dehra Dun, shall be abolished. They trust that all Local Governments will make satisfactory arrangements for the training of the Subordinate Executive Service below the rank of Ranger, and will be glad if each Local Government will in due course inform them as to the system which it has adopted with this object.

3. In future the education to be given at the Imperial Forest College will be conducted entirely in English, and will be designed for the training of candidates for the post of Ranger and for the Provincial Service. The ordinary course will last for two years, its main object being to give such an education as will fit a candidate for appointment as Ranger. At the close of this period of two years an examination will be held, on the results of which three classes of certificate will be issued, known respectively as the Honours, Higher Standard and Lower Standard certificates. Candidates will be admitted to this course in accordance with the College rules.

4. In addition to the ordinary course of two years arrangements will now be made at the Forest College to give a third year's training, both theoretical and practical, designed to fit the student for early appointment to the Provincial Forest Service. Ordinarily no student will be admitted to this third year course unless he has obtained the Higher Standard certificate at the close of the two years' course, and unless his Local Government or Native State desires that he should remain at the College for a third year. Should however a Local Government or Native State desire that any particular student should undergo only a selected portion of the College training, or that any selected Ranger should be given the third year's course, without having passed by the Higher Standard, or some years after he has so passed, the Principal may arrange to give him the required training, provided that he is satisfied that the student's qualifications are such as to enable him to benefit from the course of instruction desired, and that there is room for him at the College. He may also, on the same conditions, admit any private student who is prepared to defray his own expenses.

5. The Government of India are prepared in future to leave it to Local Governments to draw up their own rules regarding appointments to the post of Ranger, subject to the following conditions. The rules should provide for the appointment as Rangers of subordinate officials of long service and tried ability and probity, in order to encourage efficiency among the Deputy Rangers and Foresters. In such cases selection may be made by the Local Government without restrictions as to the special training the officers may have undergone or the educational certificates they may have obtained; but it may sometimes be advisable to require a selected subordinate to undergo a special course of training or to pass specified examinations before his permanent appointment to the class of Ranger. Direct appointments to this class however should only be given to trained candidates who have obtained the Higher Standard certificate at the Forest College, and have satisfied such other conditions as the Local Government may think fit to impose. It will in future be left to Local Governments to give what weight they choose to the Honours and Lower Standard certificates of the Forest College. It will also be for them, subject to the rules of the College, to draw up their own rules as to the selection of candidates to be admitted to the ordinary College course; and they may grant to such selected candidates, whether already in the service or not, a stipend not exceeding Rs. 50 per mensem for the two years' course.

6. The Government of India have learned from the reports submitted by Local Governments that there is a general feeling of dissatisfaction with the existing standard of qualifications of the members of the Provincial Service. This inferiority of standard appears to be to some extent due to the present practice of appointing to the lowest grade of Extra-Assistant Conservator men who have served for a considerable period as Rangers, so that a candidate who looks forward to an appointment in the Provincial Service cannot expect to attain to it until he is somewhat advanced in years, and has poor prospects of reaching the higher grades of that Service. The Government of India think it of great importance, in order to maintain a high standard of efficiency among the Ranger class, that officers of that class should remain eligible for promotion to the Provincial Service, and are accordingly pleased to rule that in future a Local Government may appoint to the lowest grade of Extra-Assistant Conservator any selected Ranger of long service and of tried ability and probity, irrespective of the educational certificates he may hold, but subject to any special training or examination which the Local Government may see fit to prescribe in each case. In order however to encourage men of good education and good social standing to enter the Provincial Service, they consider it desirable to introduce a system under which a Local Government may select candidates for direct appointment to that service; and in order that such specially selected candidates may acquire the higher qualifications necessary to fit them for the duties of the Provincial Service, they have, as already explained, resolved to arrange for a third year's course at the Forest College. Such candidates may be selected by the Local Government either before or after completion of the ordinary two years' curriculum, but before being allowed to take up the third year's course, they must have obtained the Higher Standard certificate of the College; and before appointment to the Provincial Service they must have obtained a certificate from the Principal that they have satisfactorily completed the third year's training. Candidates who are specially selected by the Local Government for direct appointment to the Provincial Service may be granted a stipend not exceeding Rs. 100 per mensem, during the course of three years' training or such portion of it as the Local Government may prescribe. When such a candidate has satisfactorily completed the third year's training at the College, he may be posted to the Forest Service either as a Ranger or as a probationary Extra-Assistant Conservator, but may not be permanently appointed to the Provincial Service until he has completed at least three years' satisfactory service. It will rest with the Local Government to decide whether the probationary period should be longer than three years, and how the candidate should be employed until he is given a permanent appointment in the Provincial Service; and until he can be absorbed in the permanent staff, he may be given such salary as the Local Government thinks proper, not exceeding Rs. 100 per mensem for the first three years, or thereafter Rs. 200 per mensem. It will be for the Local Government to decide when such a candidate should be given a permanent appointment, and whether any proportion of vacancies in the Provincial Service should be guaranteed to candidates of this class. If any Local Government considers it necessary to compensate the existing staff of Rangers for their diminished prospects of promotion owing to the introduction of this new class of selected candidates for direct appointments in the Provincial Service, the Government of India will be prepared to consider any definite proposals which it may desire to make with this object.

7. In order to meet the peculiar circumstances of Burma, which already possesses a Forest School of its own, the Government of India are pleased to approve of the following modifications in the scheme described above in its application to that Province. Pending the establishment of an English course at the Burma Forest School, Conservators may make direct appointments as probationary Rangers of natives of Burma with a knowledge of English on a pay of Rs. 75 per mensem. Men so appointed will be on probation for two years, during which time their removal or dismissal will rest with the Conservator. After two years' approved service they may be confirmed in their appointment by the Local Government, but will not be eligible for an appointment on more than Rs. 100 per mensem until they have obtained a Higher Standard certificate in the English course at the Burma Forest School or at the Forest College. Candidates selected for direct appointment to the Burma Provincial Service, though they may undergo their first two years' training at the Burma Forest School, must complete the third year's course at the Imperial Forest College, and must thereafter remain on probation for at least three years, during which time they may be given such salary as the Local Government may prescribe, not exceeding Rs. 175 per mensem for the first three years, or thereafter Rs. 200 per mensem.

8. The attention of Local Governments is invited to the changes which have been made in the Forest Department Code and in the rules of the Forest College; and they are desired to submit for the information of the Government of India any rules they may draw up to carry out the objects of this Resolution.
